KLAMATH IRRIGATION PROJECT.
By W. H. Hellemann,
U. S. Reclamation Service.

The Klamath Project has sufficiently progressed in the building of its irrigation system to invite settlement in a large way. The lands of this project were largely in private ownership before the time the Reclamation Service began its comprehensive scheme of irrigation development.

Previous to the entrance of the government into this field, two small private irrigation districts existed on the project and the nucleus for farm settlement and town building was already established. Upon the advent of the Reclamation Service, adjustment was made of existing water rights in the district, and land in private ownership was subscribed to the project, in accordance with the terms of the Reclamation Act.

At the present time there is but little land in the project open to homestead entry, and establishing a home generally entails the purchase of land from the present owner.

The purchase of land in private ownership under a government project may be considered by many settlers as having material advantage over homestead entries on public land, as, for instance, the more rapid acquirement of title, though the water right obligations are the same in both cases.

A person purchasing land from a private owner at once establishes sufficient title to obtain some credit at the local stores. Such a condition is not possible in homesteading.

Klamath Falls is at present the principal town in the basin, and is the county seat of Klamath County. It is a town of 2509 inhabitants, has a number of substantial homes, and is well located, having on one side the Link River with its water-power possibilities, and a lake frontage on both Ewauna and Upper Klamath lakes.

Numerous additions have been platted to the older portion of the town. Several hot springs issue in or near the town limits, and an adequate water supply for municipal and domestic use is derived from pure cold springs located within the city limits.

AT SETH'S SERENADE.

When Seth got married we had a bee,
And went up to his house for a shivaree.
Some took drums, and some took pans,
And some took whistles, and some tin cans
With strings in the bottom and rosam to rub,
And they howled like wildcats at every scrub,
And the dullest noise that ever was made
Was the whoopiedow at Seth's serenade.
But we carried something beside the noise
To that little home, we girls and boys.
And after the bang, and fun, and din,
Seth gave us an invite and we went in,
And under each arm was a bundle hid—
We loaded them down, that's what we did!
Pounds of this and pounds of that—
Bundles were big and bags were fat.
And then the squire a speech he made
For the rest of the crowd at Seth's serenade.

"We're here to wish ye long life," said he,
"And a way that is smooth and as straight as can be."
Start every day as ye startin' now
With a smile on your face and a care-free brow.
So I bring ye to-night—friends Seth and May—
A can of the cheer that starts my day.
Then he crowned the heap—he's a knowin' man—
With a Chase & Sanborn coffee can.
And before we left we had coffee made—
'Twas the best of the treat at Seth's serenade.
