A LITERAL DISTINCTION

Bishop Potter was known as quite a wit, and often took delight in turning his humor loose on his associates, but here is an instance where the joke, although quite unintentional, was on the bishop. He was to preach at a certain parish in the West in the evening, and the congregation was not a little amused at the somewhat ambiguous announcement of their worthy pastor, who said:

"Remember our special service next Sunday afternoon. The Lord will be with us during the morning service, and Bishop Potter in the evening."—Success Magazine.

Judge Gaynor was Tammany's candidate, yet he said that he had some difficulty in finding his way to Tammany hall. Now that he has been elected we are told that Tammany will have difficulty in locating the Judge. Well! Well! This is a strange and inconsistent old world, after all.—Portland Telegram.

It is no use denying that a suffragette threw that brick at Premier Asquith. It missed its illustrious mark by nearly forty feet, as the reports state, which is evidence that would satisfy any jury in the world that a woman threw it.

The House Appropriations committee is now on its way to Panama. When it returns and its report is submitted to Congress we shall doubtless have more of that discussion that is all on the level.

Newspaper men did President Taft many a painful turn during his famous trip; but the most ambitious service was that of writing his message to the next session of Congress.

Eugene Debs announces with his usual modesty that he is a producing workman. The trouble is that what Mr. Debs produces never buys anything.

"What does Fincher think of the Glavin statement?" is the query of an exchange. Some people can ask such simple questions!

The more we read about it the sadder becomes the conviction that when Congress convenes the insurgents will insure.

UPPER LAKE NOTES

The steamer Horset sank one of her barges just off the mill shore on Monday and the Masama sank a barge off Williamson river. The mishaps were caused by trying to drive through the thin, sharp ice. The ice is only an inch or so thick, and will soon disappear if the weather moderates.

The steamer Eagle has been laid off for the winter. Captain Wickstrom has done well and ought to take a rest.

The Long Lake people are having a fine launch built. She is 28 feet over all and 6-foot beam; will have a 16-horsepower engine and will be a very fast boat. Young McDonald is doing the work.

Alex Noeler is building a lighter for the same company. It will be used to transport the output of the box factory to the railway spur, for the present at least.

The Adams dredge has finished the canal and is now dyking the lake shore in front of McCracken's house across the lake.

Captain Bristow of the Hornet says he is the busiest man on the lake, but whether Captain Parker will stand for such a claim remains to be seen.

Captain Hanabury came within a close call of drowning one day last week. A small boat capsized with him, and but for the timely aid of William Willis, engineer of the Hooligan, he might have lost his life. The water is very cold just now.

An additional steam boiler will be installed in the mill in a few days. This will give, it is thought, all the steam required.

All the lake steamers were in port Monday. The Masama came in late in the afternoon. She resembled an arctic whaler, having plowed through many miles of ice. Two or three of the other boats went up the lake Tuesday through the channel made by the Masama on her down trip.

THERMOMETERS.

Testing Processes at the National Weather Bureau.

Each day at the weather bureau in Washington the thermometers received from various manufacturers throughout the country are put through the test of standardizing them.

The various processes through which the bulbs pass before they are labeled "accurate" are easy, inasmuch as there is practically little scientific work attached to the test. When a thermometer is first handed to the man in the testing room it is dipped into a vat filled with a compound far below the freezing point. It is thrust in at the point where it happens to be at the time and worked up and down until the degree of the compound is reached. Having then recorded the lowest temperature, the process of testing for the highest is begun. This is just as simple as testing for the low temperature. The bulb is dipped into a vat of water, first at 90 degrees. Then it is worked gradually until 150 degrees is reached. If the mercury in the bulb will indicate 150 degrees further testing is unnecessary, because that is a tolerably warm temperature and one seldom if ever reached by natural heat.

A thermometer the bulb of which contains mercury will not register lower than 25 degrees below zero—that is, mercury will freeze at that point. In this country very little use is found for thermometers showing more than 25 degrees below zero, but in the far north they are of course necessary. Such instruments, however, contain spirits in the bulbs instead of mercury, but even this fluid becomes sluggish when 40 or 50 below zero is recorded, and it will seldom show 60 below.—Harper's Weekly.

Shampoo.

A mid-eighteenth century traveler, who is the first person known to have made English of the word "shampoo," wrote that "shampooing is an operation not known in Europe and is peculiar to the Chinese, which I had once the curiosity to go through, and for which I paid but a trifle. However, had I not seen several Chinese merchants shampooed before me I should have been apprehensive of danger, even at the sight of all the different instruments." The original "shampoo," as this traveler's detailed account and other allusions for long after his time show, was very much what we call "massage" now. It was from India that the word really came, and it represents the imperative of a verb meaning to knead.

A LIBERAL OFFER.

No Effort Upon the Customer to Whom It Was Made.
A business man of Dayton, O., tells this story of some commercial friends of his:

A customer who bought in a small way from the wholesalers and whose credit was not of the sort known as gilt edged visited the city and purchased a $2,800 bill of goods, paying $2,800 in cash and giving his note for the remaining $300.

After the transaction had been closed and the paper and currency had changed hands the customer said:

"Now, after a deal of that size it is customary to give a purchaser a present. Come across with it."

"We'll throw in a pair of suspenders," laughed the salesman temporizingly.

"A pair of suspenders, eh? Say, quit fooling. I really mean it. I expect you to do something in acknowledgment of my patronage."

The salesman went to the manager with the problem, and the manager said:

"Well, if he feels that way about it we might encourage him a bit. We'll do something that ought to please him greatly. Give him back his $300 note. Make him a present of his paper. That will make him a cash customer and raise his credit and save him money besides."

The salesman went back, pleased to be the bearer of such joyful tidings of liberality in business.

"Well, sir," he said, "we've arranged about that present, all right. Here," with a flourish, "is your note. We give it back to you."

The customer did not seem enthusiastic. Instead, without looking at the note he asked:

"Is it indorsed?"

"No," said the salesman in astonishment.

"Then I guess you better gimme the suspenders," said the disappointed customer.—Chicago News.

Helping the Town . . .

By banking your money in a bank in your own community you increase the community's power to do business. If substantial farmers want to borrow money there is more to loan them. If you bank your money away from home it is loaned to other farmers, merchants and manufacturers. Help your home people. Money hidden at home helps no one. Placed in a bank it is put to work in ways that help all.
