POSSIBILITIES OF GOAT INDUSTRY
A Careful Investment of a Thousand Dollars Well Looked After Will Double Itself Inside of Two and a Half Years
Hundreds of inquiries regarding the possibilities in the United States of a great goat industry are now reaching the department of commerce and labor. These inquiries are the result of a recent statement by the bureau of statistics of that department, that $250,000,000 had been sent out of the country in the last decade to purchase goat skins for use in this country, and that the commercial value of the 500,000,000 million goats which these skins represented would, had they been grown in the United States, have approximated $1,000,000,000. These suggestions, coupled with the further fact that goats of the class supplying the skins in question could be grown upon semi arid and semi mountainous land in the United States now practically unutilized, have added to the interest indicated by the inquiries now being made.
The statement of the bureau of statistics as to the number and value of goat skins now being imported, was coupled with extracts from a statement by the United States consul Canada at Vera Cruz, Mexico, originally published by the bureau of manufacturers of the department of commerce and labor, in this report Consul Canada says:
"Goats are raised in every state of the republic of Mexico. * * * The industry is largely confined to the central table lands. * * * There the animals thrive everywhere, and can be raised at a good profit over a wider range of territory than that on which cattle may be successfully raised. * * * The dry plains of Nuevo Leon, with scant growth of brush, are able to support large flocks of goats, though these same plains will not produce corn, grain or grass unless water is supplied for irrigation. * * * The extent of territory which could be given to the raising of goats without in any way interfering with agriculture, is very large. Vera Cruz has tens of thousands of acres of land so steep and rugged that it cannot be farmed profitably, but these rugged mountain sides furnish ideal feeding grounds for goats. * * * The value of the goat depends upon three things, meat, tallow and the skin. * * * The matter of fresh meat in the farming districts of the hot country is greatly simplified by the breeding of goats.
In small, isolated communities it is risky to slaughter an ox or cow, as the flesh is liable to spoil before it is consumed. The small carcass of a goat makes it entirely practicable to kill frequently without risk of loss.
In the state of Tobasco the inhabitants are never at a loss for fresh meat on plantations where goats are raised, and where formerly meat was almost unknown. * * * The flesh alone would make it a profitable industry, for the carcass of an animal will bring from $1 to $1.50. Fats of all kinds are high priced in all parts of the country. * * * At two years a fat goat will yield six to ten pounds of clear tallow, which will be worth from 75c to $1.50. * * *
The most valuable part of the goat is the skin, worth $1.25 to $1.50, and the constant trend of prices is upward." (These figures of values are presumably in Mexican currency, in which the dollar is equivalent to about half a dollar in United States currency.)
The consul adds that the increase in the number of goats is very rapid, since they begin breeding from six to eight months of age, and breed twice a year, bringing forth two, and not infrequently three kids at each breeding season. A single shepherd, it is said, will look after at least 1,000 goats. He adds: "A careful investment of $1,000 well looked after can certainly be counted upon to double itself inside of two years and a half, and to give at least 50 per cent per annum from the end of the second
