ANKENY CANAL RUNNING AGAIN
WATERWAY MUCH OBSTRUCTED BY REMNANTS OF KLAMATH FALLS IN FILLING LOW PLACES AND FLOODING STREETS
Water is again flowing in the Ankeny ditch.
As is usual, this means that water is again flowing down several streets between Pine and Main, causing considerable mud, and carrying away parts of the grades, in addition to causing a heavy flow of water along Main street to the storm sewers. Low places in the city are again flooded, to become ideal sites for fever breeding.

The water was turned on Saturday by the reclamation service. Request for the water was made by W. T. Shiva.

CUPID SPOILS INDIAN TRIAL

STANLEY PETRO MARRIES THE COMPLAINING WIFE, AND THE INDICTMENT AGAINST HIM IS DISMISSED.

Portland, May 12.—A simple way out of a grave difficulty was solved by Stanley Petro, a Klamath Indian, when he was married to the young Indian girl against whom he was accused by the government of committing a statutory offense.

Myrtle Jackson, 17 years old, a pretty full-blooded Indian girl, was the bride, and she was to have been the government's principal witness in the trial of Petro in the United States district court.

Petro's people on the reservation are well to do, owning several hundred acres of land. Ever since he was indicted, he has been trying to figure a way out of his difficulty. He has been out on bond, and Wednesday came to Portland to be tried. The girl came in a little later, and they got together and talked the matter over. The girl was willing, and when her mother came to town as a witness for the government, she fell in with the plan.

About half a dozen of the Klamath gravely wended their way to the court house, and witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Judge Gatens.

United States Attorney Johnson was notified of the transaction a little later, and, realizing that he would not be able to make the wife testify against her husband, asked Judge Wolverton to dismiss the case.

MORE BUILDINGS FOR SAN DIEGO

DEMAND FOR EXHIBIT SPACE NECESSITATES THE ERECTION OF AT LEAST EIGHT MORE STRUCTURES FOR THE FAIR.

San Diego, Cal., May 12.—So much greater has been the demand for space and exhibit room at the San Diego 1915 exposition than was apprehended by the city when the project was first launched, that President D. C. Collier and the board of exposition directors have asked the city to vote an additional million dollar bond issue, and the measure is warmly seconded by the city council and the entire population.

It has been found necessary to erect eight additional buildings, besides the ten first planned by the directors, in addition to which an immense stadium is to be constructed in Balboa park, capable of accommodating the largest conventions and other gatherings.

The San Diego 1915 exposition, which it was at first thought would be largely an affair of the southwest, has grown so in favor with eastern states and foreign countries, that its scope has broadened to world magnitude in a few brief months, and San Diego will not hesitate to pour all the money necessary into the project to make it worthy of all the world expects of it as a host in 1915.

CHINESE WILL BE EDUCATED

SCHOOL AT GLENDALE EXPECTS TO ACCOMMODATE AT LEAST 200 ORIENTALS AT THIS SUMMER'S SESSION

Glendale, May 12.—Rev. J. K. Howard has gone into the business of educating the Chinese youths upon an extensive scale. He is president of the Oregon Chinese Training school, which owns a 10-acre tract near Glendale, and is preparing to erect a school to accommodate 200 Chinese students this summer.

Rev. Howard is now in Washington, D. C., where he has secured credentials from the secretary of state, and also special credentials from the secretary of commerce and labor, to bring in 100 young men from China to the United States.

Morrison Reid of Glendale, a banker, who is vice president of the school, details its plans as follows: "Each of the students will be placed under a $200 bond. In the past there has been considerable fraud practiced in the bringing in of Chinese young men as students. They have disappeared, and have failed to prosecute their work in the schools and colleges, as was anticipated. This is absolutely a new departure, however, as the school at Glendale is not a mercenary enterprise, and is not run for profit."

New Milking Machines
Three Sharples milking machines have been installed in Klamath county within the past three weeks, and an order was received for another machine from Lum Short yesterday. This will be installed in about two weeks. The machines are proving a great success, and it is expected that before the season has advanced far that many other machines will be in use. The first machine was installed at the Esell stock farm, and proved so satisfactory that the second machine was put in. Will Adams is also happy over the success of the machine now being used at his farm below Merrill.

MEN WILL MEET ONCE A MONTH

QUARTERLY MEETING OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS SUPPLANTED BY NEW ORDER—MORE BENEFICIAL.

Instead of quarterly meetings, hereafter the Klamath Chamber of Commerce members will be expected to get together once a month to discuss matters of interest to the organization and the Klamath country. The first will be held tomorrow evening.

Notices to this effect are being sent the members by Lewis Wyld, the secretary. It is believed that frequent mass meetings of this kind will create renewed interest in the work of boosting the county.

DICKEYVILLE DOINGS
(Gleaned from Dickeyville Clarion by the Bend Bulletin)

Elmer Jones went to Tecumseh last spring to accept a lucrative position with the ball team as short stop, but the captain said he wasn't short enough. Elmer is 6 feet 4 in. in his stocking feet when he wears 'em, which is not frequent. Elmer expects to go back into the crayon portrait business. A crayon portrait artist ought to make a good vaudeville attraction providing he draws well.

Renfrew Binks, the station agent, says the heat expands the rails so much that it is nine inches farther from here to Purdy Junction in the summer than it is in the winter. Miss Euphemia Mudge went into a drug store down to the city to get some complexion powder. The clerk asked her what color she wanted, and she said flesh color, of course. The clerk gave her some red ochre.

Uncle Ezra Harkins never wears any socks or neckties, and his children never know what to give him for Christmas.

The Kaiser's Only Daughter is to Wear a Simple $1500 Gown

Berlin, May 12.—Princess Victoria Louise, the Kaiser's only daughter, will be married on May 24, in a "simple" bridal gown costing but $200. That is, the gown proper will cost a mere $200. The train will cost approximately $300, and the bridal veil about $500, bringing the total outfit cost to some $1,500. Of course, the average bride would be very much "set up" if she could spend half that much on her wedding dress, but when it is considered that Victoria's papa is worth $25,000,000, and that he receives a salary of something like $26,538 per week, or $12,263 per diem, that $1,500 wedding outfit for the Kaiser's only daughter, who is marrying into one of the richest families of the great German empire, doesn't look like much, especially to the daughters of some American mere millionaires, whose outfits cost $15,000 or more.

Princess Victoria Louise and Prince Henry of Prussia, Duke of Brunswick, who are to be married on May 24.

Victoria is said to have demurred when her mother gave the instructions, "ganz einfach," or "entirely simple," to the dressmakers. "Papa is probably afraid of what those 'awful Socialists' will say," she is credited with having said. "Ganz einfach," the empress again said, and simplicity is the keynote of Victoria's wedding gown, upon which more than 80 girls and women worked far into the night, so as to finish it by May 12. By strict orders of the empress no detail of the outfit was given out until the gown was finished today, when an official description was announced by Count von Eulenburg, the Kaiser's chief marshal.

The wedding gown was made by the William N. Spitzer firm, which has made gowns for the empress and her daughter for years. It is of fine white satin, known in Germany as wasser atlas. The cut is simple and primly conventional, with high neck and long sleeves. The elaborate part is the train, or schleppe, which is between 3 and 4 yards long, all hand made, of the finest lace and hand-embroidered in a special design.

designer's name is as close as the bridal veil, or any other apt of the outfit will come to being French. The veil is 8 feet 8 inches long and 5 feet wide. The pattern is made up of 200 separate drawings of the design. It presents a fine filmy picture of blossoms.

Including the wedding dress, twenty different gowns are being made for the future Duchess of Brunswick. These include breakfast, dinner, evening and afternoon gowns and dresses for every occasion. Besides these, a tailoring firm is making twelve tailored suits for the princess, and another firm, whose specialty is lingerie, is making a chest full of these indescribable, fluffy creations. The complete wardrobe, including the bridal gown and veil, were to have been finished today, when the empress and the princess were to have made a "royal inspection."
