Ray Schalk, the New White Sox Catcher, Who Looks a Champ

Ray Schalk, the young American association catcher, has been almost the sensation of the American league this season. He shows even better form than in the 23 games he played with the White Sox at the end of the season of 1912. He finished the season with a batting average of .286, but this year he promises to go far beyond that. In the first 16 games of the year he batted .366, leading his club. Schalk's throwing this year is perfect. He has a snap something like that of Jimmy Archer, the great Cub catcher, for he is able to throw to bases without moving back his right foot to get a swing. The photograph shows him throwing with his toes even, proving that he can snap the ball without the swing needed by most catchers. If Schalk continues as he has begun, he may equal old Billy Sullivan, for years the greatest catcher in the American league, a catcher who was usually mentioned in the class with Johnny Kling of the Cubs and Roger Bresnahan of the Giants.

BEGIN SURVEY OF DESCHUTES

PRELIMINARY WORK IS DONE JOINTLY BY RECLAMATION SERVICE AND THE STATE OF OREGON.

Bend, Or., May 12.—Preliminary work on the co-operative state and federal survey of the Deschutes river, for which $50,000 was appropriated by the Oregon legislature and $50,000 by the federal government, has been started. Engineer John T. Whistler of the United States reclamation service was here last week for a few days, returning Sunday to Portland, where he has headquarters.

Assistant Engineer Thomas Hawthorns is here now, and has begun reconnaissance work at the Benham Falls reservoir site. At the Hotel Bend, Monday evening, he said that a crew of men will arrive in a few days, and go into camp at the falls. The work will probably require 18 months for completion. The reclamation service is in charge, but the state will have supervision also. Mr. Whistler, who did the engineering work in connection with the building of the power dam here, will be up again from Portland in a short time.

Jack Britton, Who Sent Rivers West

The moment Joe Rivers, conqueror of Leach Cross and many other good lightweights, was face to face with a match with Jack Britton, the Chicago boxer, he hurried west. Rivers and his manager, who had gone east to fight Cross, and had won, remained in New York City for several weeks, looking about for other matches. They complained that Freddy Welch, the British champion, and others, would not meet him. Thereupon up stepped Dan Morgan, manager of Britton, with an offer to have his man box Rivers. "We will take 22 1/2 per cent and let Rivers have 27 1/2 per cent of the house to get a chance at him," said Morgan to Billy Gibson, manager of the Madison Square club. "We are sorry, but we have got to take a train for the west at once," was the answer of Rivers' manager. Britton was recently beaten by Paekie McFarland, the wonder of the sockyard, and the rest of the world, but few others in his class think they can do it. All the lightweights spend most of their time side-stepping him, and he finds it difficult to get a match. Many of them will fight McFarland, for the "short cut," knowing that the Chicago boy will draw sufficiently to repay them well. Anyway, McFarland is considered so good that it doesn't hurt a second-rater's reputation much to be beaten by him. To be whipped by Britton, who is not rated so high, would damage them more.

HENWOOD TRIAL BEGINS AGAIN

CASE ONE OF THE MOST SENSATIONAL IN THE HISTORY OF THE WEST—DEFENDANT SAYS HE WILL BE FREE.

United Press Service. Denver, May 12.—"I expect to be acquitted and a free man after my trial is over. I have been waiting nearly two years to go to trial, and I am glad to make my side plain to the public. I am not a murderer, and shall prove it." This was the statement made today by Frank Harold Henwood, whose second trial on a charge of murdering George Copeland in the Brown Palace hotel in May, 1911, began before District Judge Butler this morning. A wild bullet, fired by Henwood, when he shot down Sylvester Voughpl, a St. Louis millionaire aeronaut, struck and killed Copeland, a bystander. Henwood was tried and convicted of the Copeland killing, and sentenced to life imprisonment. He has never been out of the penitentiary, having remained in the county jail while his attorney, John T. Bottom, fought for, and was granted a new trial in February. The new trial was granted on the grounds that the first was unfair in that the state forced the defendant to go to trial immediately after the shooting, before the defense was prepared, and while the public mind was much inflamed against the defendant.

The first trial was one of the most sensational in criminal history of the middle west. It attracted national interest because of the prominence of the principals. Henwood and Voughpl quarreled on the night of May 24, 1911, in the bar of the Brown Palace hotel over the latter's attentions to Mrs. John W. Springer, the beautiful wife of one of the wealthiest and most prominent business men of Denver. Voughpl died 13 hours after the quarrel from a pistol wound. A stray bullet struck Copeland, and another struck James W. Atkinson, a Colorado Springs contractor. Copeland died two weeks after the shooting, and Atkinson was crippled for life. Henwood went to trial on June 26, 1911, charged with murdering Copeland, the court overruling his demand to be tried on the Voughpl murder charge first. Henwood collapsed during a terrific cross-examination. Mrs. Springer testified surrounded by nurses and physicians that Voughpl had taken a picture of Henwood from her wall torn it to bits and warned her not to accept Henwood's attentions. Henwood testified Voughpl showed him the torn picture, and taunted him with losing Mrs. Springer's affections, after threatening to kill him. Henwood's plea was self-defense. Although Mrs. Springer left town after her husband got a divorce, she was expected here today or tomorrow to testify for the defendant.

NOBODY CAN TELL IF YOU DARKEN GRAY, FADED HAIR WITH SAGE TEA

Druggist Says When Mixed With Sulphur Prevents Dandruff and Falling Hair. Common garden sage brewed into a soapy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, then left to age and carefully filtered will turn gray, streaked and aged hair beautifully dark and lustrant; remove every bit of dandruff; stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 25 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wroth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of messy home druggist make their own, but it isn't nearly so nice as "Wroth's." While waxy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wroth's Sage and Sulphur you can tell, because it does it so amazingly so evenly. You just dampen your hair or wet brush, letting the tonic soak at a time. Do this tonight and tomorrow all gray hairs have disappeared, after another application color will be restored to your hair and you will have a more youthful and lustrant hair even. Local Druggists can supply you with "Wroth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" or you can get it from the following:
