LET EXPANSION BEGIN AT HOME

FROM an American viewpoint the European war has wrought one good thing: It has stimulated tremendously an introspective survey of American export trade, causing the manufacturer in the United States to analyze, as he never has before, the opportunities presented for market extension abroad and the means whereby he can prepare himself to participate in an increased foreign trade in American wares.

But, important and commendable as these developments are, a single truth stands boldly in relief: Market extension should begin at home.

The merchant of the great city and the merchant of the small town know that for many years the American people have had a blind penchant for foreign-made goods. Anything from a hat to a jack-knife must have a foreign label to be salable to a very large percentage of the population. So strong has such prejudice grown that some less principled American manufacturers have attempted to meet it by putting foreign labels on their products. And thousands of American citizens have gone abroad to buy goods that could be had in better grade and at lower cost in the United States merely to be able to say that their purchases were made abroad. Not a few have carried this curious brand of "patriotism" still further by smuggling their purchases, beating the government out of its legitimate revenue.

The time has come to put a stop to such practices, to correct the abnormal national mental condition out of which they arise. The time has come for a country-wide campaign to keep American trade at home, to educate the American people to buy American-made goods, to extend our trade in the United States by showing the American consumer that quality is more important than a foreign label, by educating him to an appreciation of the fact that our American factories turn out some of the world's finest goods.

In education, in art and music, in science, and in too many other branches of human activity Americans are prone to regard native products lightly. More than one prima donna from the ranks of an ordinary American family has taken a foreign name on coming back to her own country. Innumerable American families have sent their sons abroad for education, not so much because of the real benefits that accrue to anyone from travel and resulting broadened experience, as because they have the idea that American universities are not good enough, though many American universities and colleges are training large numbers of young men and women from all parts of the civilized world, and in many respects American educational institutions do lead the world.

American artists know that, as a rule, they must expatriate themselves and make their reputations in Europe before they can expect to enjoy unusual standing in the United States. And so it has been throughout business and the professions. A foreign stamp has come to be regarded as evidence of superiority, in spite of the fact that the shoddy, in men and materials, is less prevalent in America than anywhere else in the whole world.

The time has come to overturn these ideas—to develop among our people a newer and broader patriotism, practical in its character, looking toward American support for American industry.

The foreign made goods that are superior in quality, that are more reasonable in price, make a legitimate appeal to the American pocketbook. But the label that testifies to foreign manufacture of itself means nothing, and should no longer be permitted to exercise a tremendous influence on American trade.

Let market extension begin at

Boston Has Six Outfielders for Three Positions in World Series

The Boston Braves, who will play the Philadelphia Americans for the world baseball championship, the first game opening tomorrow at Philadelphia, are well supplied with outfielders. Manager Stallings has six young men to fill three positions.

His regulars, at least the men who have played in the most games, for it is difficult to tell what Stallings considers a regular, are Connolly, left field; Whitted, center, and Moran, right. Mann, Devorel and Cuthers will get a chance to play if any of these men show signs of inability to hit the Athletics' pitchers.

home; let American goods enjoy free opportunity to compete for American favor; do away with prejudice, and American industries will take on new life.

American goods are good enough for Americans.

Insist on having them when you buy!

Honor the American label as you do the American flag!—American Lumberman.

BUT WHAT has the war to do with the permanent closing of the gates at Klamath Straits. Now is the time to get busy.

WE CAN'T SAY that the Germ crop will be in any way shortened by the fact that Germany is at war. But we can say most positively that the local crop of microbes, mosquitoes and other means of carrying germs of disease into the home can best be shortened by filling the Ankeny canal.

"HOG MARKET feels loss of a nickle," says a market report lead. No more keenly than we would, we'll wager.

TOMORROW'S CHALLENGE—"What's the score?"

SOME OF THE proposed new measures are beneficial—others are harmful. Register, therefore, and vote on them. Don't wait to wall if the bad ones become laws.

WAR to the east of us, war to the west of us, trouble to the south of us, and—war tax confronting us.

WHICH WOULD you rather have, a good pipe full of tobacco or a pipe full of good tobacco?

THERE IS ONLY one way to be on the right side of politics—be on the inside.

KID GLOVES have also gone up. Claudius says he isn't worrying, but is willing to trade for a couple of pounds of sugar the gloves he bought for and wore at a banquet about ten years ago.

Skulls and Jaws Are to Form the Exhibit

United Press Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8.—One of the educational features of the hygiene display in the social economy exhibit of the Panama-Pacific exposition will be the largest collection of skulls and jaws of prehistoric and modern races of men and of skulls and plaster casts of the dental equipment of lower animals ever exhibited. These skulls will demonstrate that the soft foods of men of civilized races and of domestic animals have caused diseases from which many barbarous races and all the wild animals are immune.

By means of plaster casts and stereopticon slides the causes of disease of the teeth will be shown.

There will be a large display showing the comparatively maxillary anatomy of various animals, including man, and explaining why wild animals and savages seldom have toothache.

The display will include a reproduction of the $2,500,000 Forsythe Infirmary for children in Boston, with its modern dental and hygiene equipment, and of a model hygiene dental office. It will occupy 400 square feet of space.

Fractures His Nose

Howard Dayton, connected with the Coon electrical store, has his nasal appendage in a metal cast, as the result of a spill from a motorcycle on the Pelican City road last night.

Wages of women operatives in the silk mills of China are nearly at the vanishing point, as they only receive 2 cents a day.

At the request of a number of yacht clubs in this country and abroad, the management of the Panama-Pacific exposition has decided to postpone the international yacht regatta from April, 1915, to August and September, 1915.

According to a Warsaw correspondent a German dirigible was shot down near the fortress of Modlin, and the German crew captured.

OPENS UP NOSTRILS, CLEARS HEAD, ENDS COLDS OR CATARRH AT ONCE

Instantly Relieves Swollen, Inflamed Nose, Head, Throat—You Breathe Freely—Dull Headache Gone—Nasty Discharge Stops.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the Nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stuffed-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dizziness and headache disappear. By morning, the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will disappear. End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and breaks the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of congestion; soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed, nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its runny nose, foul mucous dripping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.
