"Old Abe" Famous Civil War Eagle in Scandal

United Press Service

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 22.—"Old Abe," the famous eagle who vies with Uncle Sam and Miss Columbia as a symbol of our nation, is involved in a scandal. The worst of it is, there seems to be some basis for it.

with birds, when told that his gift was not as big as "Old Abe," said: "I know that. You should remember that the male bird is never so large as the female."

PENDANTS. Dearest Public—Just returned; been away having my health fixed. Be sure and see my window, as I have some swell new pendants, both in silver and gold, at prices that will make your pocketbook laff. Oh, you graduating kid, I have something for you, so be sure and tell pa and ma, and then come down and pick it out. Oh, you June bride, there is something here for you, too; if Harold hasn't got that diamond yet, have him come down here and see me at once, as I have a bunch of good ones. Do it now, for after you are married it's everlastingly too late. Age is a state of mind, but it looks like—aw, you know, sometimes. Our slogan—You can't better the best. No trouble to show the goods, so hurry up to my aid, as I am starving. McHattan.

Moving Pictures

The Star theater announces an extraordinary attraction for today and tomorrow, when Jack London's famous story, "Burning Daylight," will be presented. This is considered the best of the London series that has been filmed up to date. The story is of the early days in the Klondyke, and portrays the life of a character known as "Burning Daylight." His many adventures, and his fast mode of living, after fortune has favored him, are a few of the events in the picture that constitute a most interesting offering. Hobart Bosworth is seen in the title role, and is ably assisted by a large and notable cast. The production is in eight parts. Owing to the length of the production the first show will commence promptly at 7:30. Two shows will be given each night, the second commencing at 9:15.

"Mother," the headliner at the Orpheus tonight, is unquestionably one of the finest pictures shown at this house. This offering, rich in settings, and depicting an old, old story of "Mother's" sacrifice and love. While the picture is of the deep, thought compelling type, a strain of comedy is furnished throughout by the twins. "The Wrong Flat," a rich, wholesome comedy, completes the bill, which will be shown for the last time tonight.

Tomorrow and Saturday the famous Chicago Tribune's War Pictures will be shown at "Klamath's Klassy Show House." These pictures were taken by the staff photographer of the Tribune, and are guaranteed to be authentic in every detail. The Belgian government sided in the making of this production, and under the contract with the Chicago newspaper, the Belgian relief fund receives half of the proceeds. Actual fighting is shown and conditions are portrayed as they are. This offering is 4,500 feet in length, and is unquestionably the greatest picture of the kind ever taken.

Day's Doings at the Big Store

A man came in this morning and bought a MOROSKEY ELBOLTRIC FELT mattress for thirteen dollars and fifty cents. We had just got it all wrapped up ready to go to the country when the dray wagon drove up with a whole lot of stuff. There was three or four hundred yards of linoleum that we are going to put on the market at sixty cents a square yard and up. There was several bales of rugs to be taken care of, mostly nine by twelve, and they will range in price from fifteen to forty-five dollars. A lot of women wire bed springs that will be about four dollars apiece. And some kitchen tables with drawers in them that we think we can sell for two dollars and seventy-five cents. Yes, and a bale of pillows, good ones, for two dollars and 50 cents a pair. And some dressers that we can sell as low as six dollars and four bits, and a bunch of couches, good ones, and the prices on these will range from fifteen to forty-five dollars. A lot of carpet lining for six cents a yard and some good heavy stair pads at one dollar and ninety cents a dozen. We are tired.
