

What the War Moves Mean

By J. W. T. MASON
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—For the first time since the Isonzo battle started, there is now a possibility that Gorizia will be captured by the Italians.

General Cadorna has changed his tactics after six months of experiment and is now concentrating his forces on a twelve-mile front before Gorizia. He has tried to advance along the whole front simultaneously.

The French and British several months ago abandoned long lines of fortifications, and the Italians now have followed suit. The result of this is seriously endangering the Austrians at Gorizia, and is making possible the first considerable Italian victory.

Fall of the city may possibly require the retirement of the Austrians to Trieste, fifteen miles southward. Trieste is the real objective of the Italians. To protect Trieste, the Austrians might recall troops from the Russian and Serbian fronts. Thus Italy would exercise for the first time a beneficial influence on the allies' fortunes by relieving the pressure on the eastern fronts.

A new process of creosoting Douglas fir has recently been developed which does not impair the strength of the timber.

British War Council Goes to Paris

Top—Premier Aquilino. Bottom—David Lloyd George

Several members of the British war council, the new body which has been placed in absolute control of the war, have gone to Paris to consult with the French cabinet. It is believed the purpose of the visit is a consideration of action to support Serbia. The war council is headed by Premier Aquilino. Other liberal members are David Lloyd-George, minister of munitions, and Chancellor McKenna. The unionist members are Arthur J. Balfour, former Unionist premier and now first lord of the admiralty in the coalition cabinet, and A. Bonar Law, present unionist leader and now secretary for the colonies.

Facts of Interest to the Farmer

Feeding Potatoes to Hogs

Potatoes as profitable feed for hogs are receiving attention from agricultural experts. Department of Agriculture experiments indicate that 4 to 4 1/2 bushels of cooked potatoes (18 to 20 cents a bushel) will add as much weight to hogs as a bushel of corn (80 cents a bushel). During surplus production and consequent low prices it may be advantageous for the farmer to feed potatoes to his hogs rather than haul them to market. Potatoes are fed to best advantage when cooked or steamed and mixed with other feeds. Raw potatoes, fed alone, often cause "sour." On the other hand, in small quantities, they add succulence to the diet, and may be beneficial to the pigs. In cooking potatoes for feeding hogs, only enough water should be used to make a mealy mash to prevent burning. The meal should also be mixed with corn meal of some other grain. Skimmed milk, tankage or meat meal probably adds to the usefulness of the feed.

Warding Off Hog Cholera

In its campaign against hog cholera, which annually destroys livestock to the value of many millions of dollars, the Department of Agriculture has issued suggestions to hog owners to aid them avoiding infection. Hog cholera is most prevalent in late summer and fall. These suggestions deserve particular attention now. They are: To keep hog cholera out of the herd: 1—Locate your hog lots and pastures away from streams and public

Strahorn Tells of His Central Oregon Journey

Enthusiastic over the reception he had received in Central Oregon, when he traveled over the route of the proposed Oregon, California & Eastern railway, Robert E. Strahorn returned to this city and plunged into a mass of engineers' reports, says the Portland Journal.

Mr. Strahorn was accompanied from Bend by C. C. Chapman, chairman of the Oregon development bureau of the Chamber of Commerce. A delegation of other Portland men went with him to Bend, attending the reorganization meeting of the Central Oregon Development League.

"All Central Oregon was electrified by the declaration of A. L. Mills at the meeting," said Mr. Strahorn. "He told them he would do everything in his power to help put the developing road through. Taken as an evidence of Portland's interest, the effect was magical, and roused an enthusiasm that ran ahead of us into every corner of the territory.

"We went first to Lakeview after leaving Bend, and it was really touching to see the farmers and their families gathered at crossroads to see us go by. We stopped and talked to them, and heard them ask us what it was they could do to help. At Lakeview people had gathered for miles and miles. Some came from points that cannot possibly be placed in railroad connection.

"I told the people of Lakeview that I would allow them to make history by handing me the first twenty-three miles of the survey on a silver platter.

They rose as one man, and pledged everything we wanted. "One thing that impressed me with the interest the people are taking in the railroad was the fact that the delegation from Harney county went with us all the way from Bend to Lakeview, and from Lakeview to Klamath Falls.

"Klamath Falls welcomed us with one of the biggest demonstrations I ever saw. They had prepared a statement of resources and potential traffic that was complete in every detail. At the banquet in the White Pelican hotel a delegation of high school boys filed in and the spokesman declared the boys wanted a share in the railroad development, and pledged their help in any way possible.

"That incident was only one. In almost every town where we went I was called upon to talk to the school children. Sometimes they formed little parades along the street.

"It was pathetic, almost, to see all these evidences of the interest Central Oregon has in the railroad project. They are welcoming anything that will release them from isolation. They want to belong to Portland—that is another thing Portland should consider more. Although Lakeview and Klamath Falls are now tributary to San Francisco, they promise to bend every energy to get into communication directly with Portland.

"Though we left Klamath Falls in a Pullman car, we had to get off at Weed, Calif., and wait three hours in the rain for a train to bring us to Portland. It took nearly twenty-four hours. That is what everyone has to do who comes to Portland from that city."

disinfectant, one part compound cresol solution to thirty parts of water. Where hog houses are small, turn them over, exposing the interior to sunlight.

Wallow holes and cesspools should be filled in, drained or fenced off. All runs underneath buildings should be cleaned and disinfected and then boarded up. Destroy hogs that do not fully recover, as they may be carriers of cholera infection.

In 1914 in the construction of ships and boats at the ship building yards of Oregon and Washington, nearly 13,000,000 board feet of high grade lumber and timbers were consumed. Australian ironbark contributed 35,000 board feet to this total.

Over a million and a quarter board feet of wood is used annually in the mines of Oregon for props, lagging, ties and raffle boxes.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become over-wroked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.
