F ROM the standpoint of a political speech, wherein the policies of a speech, wherein the policies of a great party are discussed, the address of Milton A. Miller in the opening of county last night, was somewhat of a disappointment.

As a Fourth of July oration the speech was of a high order, such as those well acquainted with the oratorical abilities of "The Sage of Lebanon" would naturally expect of Senator Miller.

It was a most interesting speech, if not instructive, as Mr. Miller is a polished orator, with a leaning toward flowery language, relying for effect on appeals to sentiment rather than attempting to influence the mind by argument or reasoning.

which objection could have been made by members of the republican or other narties with the possible exception of the attempt to create the impression that the democratic party was the originator of the American Flag, The Star Spangled Banner, Old Glory and The Stars and Stripes, and that if the people didn't rally to the support of Woodrow Wilson, the republican party would destroy the said Flag. The common belief that there was one Fing in these United States revered and loved by all the people, whether republicans, democrats or whatever party, was dis-

PENDLETON Aug 15-President T D. The Round-Up management still has hopes that he will be able to come, for it is certain that the 1916 attendance will break all records as it is, and with Mr. Roosevelt here it would be a highwater year.

As for the show, it will be up to the usual Round-Up standard, with many new, novel and daring features. Al ready ticket reservations are double those of last year and equal to those of 1913.
