DIVIDED CONGRESS MAY HAMPER PLAN

CONFERES WITH DRAFTER OF ADAMSON EIGHT-HOUR LAW

Program for Completion of Legislation Started Last Session Will Be Pushed Through Congress Early in Session if Possible—Wilson Offers Four Original Proposals for Settlement.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18. President Wilson is preparing to enter personally the railroad fight next Monday.

Today he is conferring with Judge Adamson, author of the Adamson law, regarding completion of the program started in the last session of congress.

Owing to the divergence of opinion between the railroads and the brotherhoods and the division in congress between the republicans and democrats party, the problem of carrying out President Wilson's program is expected to prove serious.

Four of the president's original proposals to be acted upon by congress are: enlargement and reorganization of the interstate commerce commis-

Scene at the Copco Dam

Harnessing the Klamath River at Copco

Thirty-five miles from the city of Klamath Falls, in a direct line, and within two miles of the Oregon border, a great work is in course of construction, which, when completed will develop thousands of horse power of electrical energy to fill adequately all present and future demands within the territory contained in Southern Oregon and Northern California.

From the above illustration some idea can be had of the enormous dam structure which is being thrown across the Klamath River at Copco, by California-Oregon Power company in its work of installing a great hydro-electric development to meet the requirements of our growing community.

The location of this big power plant will be in the center of the distributing system covering 450 miles of territory, and giving electrical service to thirty-four cities and towns in Southern Oregon and Northern California.

This dam, when completed, will be 90 feet thick at the water line, 135 feet high, 30 feet thick on top and 400 feet across from one side of the canyon to the other.

Just below this enormous structure a power house is being built where two large generators will be installed, each of the capacity of over 13,500 horse power.

The foundation for this dam extends 125 feet below the water level of the river, and over 15,000,000 pounds of cement has been used in its construction up to the present time.

In finally deciding upon a site which would be secure beyond the possibility of doubt, the engineers of California-Oregon Power company spent many months in the canyon examining the geological formations and testing the firmness of various locations in order to ascertain the most suitable place for the dam.

At the point where the dam is now being built, the andesite formation, which is the oldest rock formation known in geology, crosses the Klamath River, and as a preliminary measure, and in order to determine that no cracks or break in the formation existed, two shafts were sunk in this hard rock and on either side of the river, and in the bottom of each shaft were set up and were connected by long strings in all directions to find out if there was anything else beneath the surface of the dam and river.

State Normal School for Klamath Endorsed

Rev. George H. Bennett, pastor of the local Methodist church, has written the following open letter to J. W. Siemens, president of the Klamath Commercial Club, encouraging the suggestion for a state normal school for Southern Oregon, to be established in Klamath Falls:

Dear Sir: Permit me to call the attention of your efficient organization to the suggestion made at the woman's rally a week ago, by the sponsoring officer, Mrs. Siemens, who very aptly pointed out Klamath Falls' opportunity of obtaining a state normal school.

This is a patriotic enterprise, for it is to the highest interest of all the people. The state normal school is sponsored by the State of Oregon, and would never be a financial drain upon the business men of this city.

youth of our great and growing state. Such a state school would in no way interfere with our splendid free public school system, but would prepare our brightest and best young men and women for an efficient and useful career as teachers in our public schools.

Gentlemen, permit me to urge a campaign for a state normal school in Klamath Falls.

Truly yours, GEORGE H. BENNETT.
