THE WAY IT LOOKS ABOARD.

A representative of the CAPITAL JOURNAL not long since had an interesting talk with a well read, well traveled and keenly observing gentleman, who has spent a portion of his time in Australia, New Zealand and the other Oceanic colonies, and the conversation becoming political, he had some very interesting thoughts which were suggested by his experience among the antipodes. He was in Australia in 1884, when the eyes of the wool growers of that country were eagerly turned on the United States, anxiously watching for the very result which the democratic majority in congress is now trying to bring about—free trade in wool.

Early that year Sir Henry Parkes, one of the shrewdest, ablest men in Australia, made a trip to this country to obtain the drift of public opinion and to assist as far as possible in formulating a free trade policy. He returned home a short time prior to the national conventions, and assured the people there that better times were coming for them; that the free trade element was dominant in the democratic party and that a change of administration was more than probable. Cleveland's nomination followed, and the rejoicing in Australia was far more enthusiastic than it was in Buffalo. Sir Henry Parkes' prophecy of a change was fulfilled, Cleveland was elected, and the people of those colonies were wild in their joy, uprooted in their delight. Now the hour had come when their wool, which is grown at a mere nominal cost, could be thrown upon the markets of the United States in free competition with that of our own country, and they would reap a rich harvest. But, think goodness, they have so far been disappointed, and they will be as long as the American sheep raiser has eyes to see upon which side his bread is buttered.

The same gentleman remarked that the theory that a protective tariff is a tax paid in higher prices by the consumer is false as stairs of sand. Victoria is the only colony in the Australasian group which has a protective policy and it is by all odds the most prosperous, wealthy and enlightened. Manufactures of all kinds are in a prosperous condition, and everything is just as cheap as in any of the others, while its laborers, farmers and mechanics are well paid and live comfortably. It is the belief of the gentleman we speak of, engendered by the feelings and expressions he has witnessed abroad, that British interests, in the home empire and in her colonies, will spend millions of dollars if necessary to secure Cleveland's re-election and the establishment of free trade; and we can very naturally expect it, after the expressions of the English press, upon the issuance of Cleveland's message to the present Congress.

Farmers of Oregon, do you want an administration in control of our affairs, whose great aim is to build up the industries of other countries at the expense of our own? That is the policy of the democratic party of to-day, else it could not be so heartily endorsed by the foreign countries that desire to compete with you in our markets. "When your neighbor's house is on fire, take care of your own," has long been recognized as a good maxim, and it applies to a whole people as well as to individuals. Do not be misled by the sophistries of the free-trader. You will have to raise the revenues necessary for the expense of the country in some way, and it is far better to obtain it by way of protecting our industries, than it is to cripple them, and then be compelled to go down in your pockets for the necessary funds to keep the wheels of government running.

LET THE PUBLIC KNOW.

As the time draws near for the holding of the republican primaries it behoves the voters to obtain the run of the "slates" made up, so as to vote intelligently and make every vote tell. It is the duty of the party leaders, also, who figure in making up those slates to make them known so that the general public will have no excuse for kicking afterwards on account of having had slates sprung on them the day of the primary which had been cut and dried in some back room by a few professionals. Star chamber proceedings are contrary to the spirit and genius of republicanism, and every attempt to lead them blindly to the polls is sure to meet resentment from the masses of the party. Any attempt to pack delegations in the interest of any one candidate should be effectually quelled, and they should be chosen with a view solely to the nomination of a whole ticket that will meet the hearty approval of the voters at the general election. Let good citizens be sent to the county convention—men who wear no man's collar, and men who hold the success of the party above that of any individual member of it.

To the end above suggested, the CAPITAL JOURNAL offers the use of its columns tomorrow evening to publish the tickets that are to be presented at the primaries next day, so that every voter in the city may see them and deliberate as to how he shall vote. Let everything be open and above board, and the result will be far more satisfactory than if brought about by secret movements.

A PARTY OF OPPPOSITION.

Our democratic neighbor says the republican party has dwindled into simply a party of opposition. Well, the signs of dwindling are not very prominently visible at present writing, but as to being a party of opposition, yes; and a mighty sturdy opposition democracy has experienced from it these past thirty years. Yea, brethren, it is a party of opposition—opposition to traitors and to every treasonable feeling; opposition to every infringement of human rights and human liberties; opposition to every fraud on the ballot box; opposition to every toadyism to foreign royalty; opposition to the surrender of American industries to foreign competitors; opposition to all schemes that would pauperize our producers, our laborers and our mechanics; opposition, in fine, to every doctrine of democracy that is calculated to subvert the basic principles of our grand nation. That's the kind of an opposition party the republican is, and that's the flag under which it will sail to success next November.

COL. GRANT says, with reference to the suit of Gen. Badeau for services upon Grant's memoirs, that Badeau was simply an amanuensis a portion of the time, and was employed to do the drudgery of the work, for which he was paid. Badeau wished to be considered a joint author of the work, but General Grant declined the proposition, as he did not wish to put anything out under his name except what he wrote entirely himself.

C. W. SHIRELY, nominated by the prohibitionists for commissioner of Clatsop county, comes out in the Astorian in a card declining to run on that ticket.

Mrs. J. ELLEN FOSTER, of Davenport, Iowa, one of the ablest lecturers and temperance workers in the whole nation, says that the third party movement is full of peril to the cause of temperance. Mrs. Foster has been a prominent figure at every point in the temperance battles of that state, and she does not speak from whim or speculation when she makes the above assertion—she knows it to be a solid truth.

SAM GIBSON, one Polk county republican who has never known defeat, is a prominent candidate for the shrievalty of that county. John Bones, of Ballston, who came within two votes of getting the nomination last convention, is also named as a probable candidate.

P. F. CLARK, of Zena a staunch republican and a warm supporter of the CAPITAL JOURNAL, was in the city to-day. He is a close political observer and when he prognosticates good prospects of republican success in old Polk this year we feel encouraged.

If J. D. LEE leads the republican ticket in Polk county, the success of the entire ticket is doubly assured.
