GEN. TYLER'S PROPOSITION.

A Scheme to Give Salem Weekly Advertising in a Good Paper.

In the parlor of the First National bank yesterday afternoon, a dozen or so members of the board of trade assembled to listen to a proposition to be submitted by Gen. Tyner, general western agent of the St. Paul Pioneer-Press. He said he had just left Portland, where the State Immigration Board had seen the usefulness of the offer he submitted to them, and through their assistance he had obtained 200 subscribers to the daily issue of his paper. He proposed to give Portland a good write up, not being at all niggardly in the space he occupied, and then to publish in the Saturday issue for a year whatever matter might be sent from that city for publication, to the extent of one or two columns. He wanted to make a similar arrangement with the business men of Salem; if they would give him 50 paid up daily subscriptions for one year, he would give this town and its immediate surroundings a handsome write up, of two or three columns, and publish a column of matter from this city every week for a year.

The offer was taken under consideration by the board of trade members present, and at a second meeting held in the council chamber, at 10 a. m. to-day the above proposition was again submitted.

At the meeting at ten this morning, a great deal of needless time was taken up in discussing the proposition, from a political standpoint.

Mr. Albert startled the entire number of gentlemen present, by branding the scheme as one likely to secure the dissemination of republican literature throughout this state, to bear on democratic votes, but after a long wrangle, the meeting concluded to recommend the adoption of General Tyner's proposition, and to endeavor to raise the subscriptions. The scheme meets the approval of the business men, generally, and if pushed will likely work great benefit to the state of Oregon.

Fell from a Load of Hay.

Yesterday Frank Stout, a prominent farmer living near Carlton, Yamhill county, fell from a load of baled hay while hauling it to market, receiving serious injuries about the scalp, face and spine by striking upon rocks. An ugly gash crosses the chin, part of the nose is cut off, and the scalp is split back from each corner of the forehead to the crown of the head, the skin dropping down over his face. He weighs about 270 pounds, and had he not struck the brake rope in his fall would probably have been killed. The wounds are said not to be necessarily fatal, but it is not known to what extent the spine is injured.

Equal to the Appeal's Man's Pig.

The Blandon Recorder man is trying to keep even with Guild of the Silverton Appeal. Guild told of a man who owned a cow that was suckled by a pig. Now the Recorder man says, that Doc Cox, near Denmark, has a cow, whose calf died soon after birth, which contracted an attachment for a pet lamb. The lamb sucks, and the cow caresses it with all the affection imaginable.

The Agricultural Board's Pamphlet.

State Printer Baker informed the writer this afternoon, that the type on the pamphlet being published by the State Board of Agriculture has all been set, and that the forms will all be off the press by the last of next week, and the book ready for the binder. This will probably be the most comprehensive descriptive work on Oregon ever published. It will slight no portion of the state, and will give full information regarding this great state.

"Three of 'em."

Chas. Cox, Chas. Chase and Geo. Brown—Salem's best guitar players—are to play the accompaniment to the male quartet at the Choral concert to-morrow evening. This quartet consists of four selections, and is to be a very pleasing performance. Don't forget the guitars.

No One to Blame Now.

The Shasta Express this morning consisted of ten cars, including three Pullman sleepers, two first class, one emigrant and one smoking car, all crowded with people going through. A few got off to look around, and one asked in a tone of great surprise: "Why, is this the capital of Oregon?" at the same time looking at the dry flat around where the train stops. This gentleman was probably looking at the country, as he passed, and perhaps visiting towns which a view of commended to him, but he went on through Salem. The railroad company can be blamed for this situation no longer, though, and so the trouble will have to go without blaming anybody. For, of course, it would not do to blame the people of Salem that the depot is not located, hereafter, in the city.

Charles Dickens' Readings.

Says the S. F. Morning Call of Charles Dickens, the reader who appears here next Wednesday night: Mr. Dickens has a remarkably pleasing address and speaks more with the accent of an American than an Englishman. As he concluded and was in the act of leaving the platform a perfect shower of bouquets rained upon him from the front seats and the galleries, until the floor was literally covered with bunches of flowers. His success was so phenomenal as to leave no reason to doubt but that an equally large audience will greet him on Wednesday evening, when his subject will be "Dr. Marigold" and Bob Sawyer's Party."

A New Industry.

Mr. Hash, who owns a thousand goats, is moving his band from the camp just above Shoshone on Little Wood river, farther north, near the foot hills. He shipped over 4,000 pounds of mohair (Cashmere goat wool, last week, and Mr. John Harris of Goose creek also has about 8,000 pounds of mohair, both shipments going to New York. The profit of raising goats is about twice as great as that of sheep. The average clip of a well bred Cashmere goat ranges from three to five pounds, and formerly mohair brought as high as 75 cents to $1 per pound. We believe it now runs from 40 to 60 cents.—Shoshone Journal.

A Picture.

The father and mother of young Wright, the boy that was murdered near Yaquina last week, are divorced. At the funeral, or the intervening time between the murder and the burial, not one of the children would speak to the mother although they spent several hours in prayer for the forgiveness of the assassin, forgetting entirely the dear mother who had watched over them in the cradle in the days of their helplessness, and refusing to offer a word of consolation to the woman who gave them birth in her hour of bereavement.—Corvallis Times.

Not So Bad as Reported.

The injury to Fayette Lane, who was run over by the north bound train at Roseburg on Tuesday night, was not so bad as at first reported. The train passed over and crushed his left leg below the knee, and this leg was amputated. He is uninjured otherwise. He will probably be able to pull through, with no other inconvenience than a wooden leg.

General Tyner of the St Paul Pioneer Press said to-day that the Willamette valley was the fairest spot he ever laid his eyes upon, and that he never saw a prettier town than Salem. This from an extensive traveler like Gen. Tyner, is no small compliment.

Capt. John D. Biles, tax adjuster of the O. R. & N. Co. is in the city, on one of his periodical visits. Capt. Biles says something must be wrong, as this is the first time he ever struck Salem when there were no taxes due against his company.
