Christian Camp Meeting.
More campers, visitors and preachers still coming in. Clark Braden, of Ohio, the champion of christianity against the various forms of infidelity, has preached some sermons of wonderful power. He goes to Silverton to-day to deliver three of his lectures, and to meet and challenge to debate Mr. Putnam the secularist lecturer and leader. On Sunday the camp meeting closes with his celebrated sermon on Christianity vs. Infidelity, at 11 a. m. and the closing sermon by J. W. Webb, of Salem at 3 p. m.

Public School Examinations.
The annual examinations in the public schools of this city are being held now, and the schools will close on Friday next. The graduating exercises of A class, 1st grade, will take place at the East Salem school on Friday morning, and will consist of a literary program by the class, and an address by Hon. J. T. Gregg. The public generally cannot be invited on account of lack of room, but students will be furnished tickets for their friends.

Save the Boys.
Our patrons who are served by our carrier will kindly observe the notice he has published to the effect that he will hereafter make his collection at the beginning of each week. Weekly collections for daily papers entail great labor on the news boys, and as they are not paid a salary, but purchase their papers of the newspaper outright, all loss of time in hunting up delinquent subscribers falls upon them.

Knights of Labor Sociable.
On Friday evening next, the Knights of Labor will give a sociable at their hall on Commercial street. An entertaining program has been prepared, consisting of music, recitations, etc. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, etc., will be served during the evening. All are cordially invited. No admission will be charged.

Teast Teast!
S. Farrar & Co. pay special attention to this important article, and keep on hand a fine line of the choicest teas. Among the many choice brands which they handle may be mentioned the Cupid brand, English breakfast, Gunpowder and Young Hyson. Give these a trial.

Returned From the East.
Joseph Smith, brother of Dr. J. N. Smith, who left here last year for Iowa, where he went to attend a medical college, has returned to this city. He is accompanied by an uncle, James Young, of Washington, Iowa. Joe also attended lectures in Chicago.

Mt. Hood to Be Illuminated Again.
Will G. Steel of the Oregon Alpine club has made up a party of ten to join him in an illumination of Mt. Hood on the night of July 4th. Mt. Shasta, Cal., and Mt. Ranier, or Tacoma, are each bidding for the same sort of a performance at the same time.

New Business Firm.
Messrs. Speight and Souder, of Pendleton, are opening a notion, candy, stationery and tobacco store in Mr. Breyman's building on Court street, next door to the White corner. They intend to try to build up a business, and make Salem their home.

The Wool Market.
A JOURNAL reporter was informed that local operators were offering sixteen cents per pound for wool at present, and the present feeling is that it will go no higher until the Mills bill is settled. There is but a light movement reported at present.

Able to be Out Again.
Lieut. Isaac Scott has been confined to his room for some time with a very severe sickness, but is able to be out on the streets again, and hopes soon to be able to recover his wonted health and strength.

The Election Returns.
All the counties except Grant, Curry and Umatilla have forwarded their election returns to the secretary of state, and as soon as those three report, the official count will be made.

Foundations Being Laid.
The foundation of the new Catholic church is now being laid, and will soon be ready for work on the superstructure to begin.

REPUBLICANS IN COUNCIL.

Thurston on Blaine--Temporary Organization--Fremont Cheered.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The national republican convention was called to order at 12:20 P. M. to-day by Chairman Jones, of the national committee. The hall had been gradually filling up for some time, and a pleasant incident occurred about 11:50. General John C. Fremont, the first nominee of the republican party for president (1856) entered the hall, and was loudly cheered by everybody in the hall.

Chairman Jones in opening the convention made a speech in which he emphatically declared himself in favor of the republican idea of protection of American industry. At 12:58, Temporary Chairman Thurston arose to take the chair, when the Kansas delegation arose, saying they were not responsible for his election, and proposed the name of Warner of Missouri. (Hisses.)

Thurston in his speech referred to the leaders of 1884 amid loud applause. The statement that Blaine denied its privilege of supporting him again, brought forth mingled cries of "no" and applause from the gallery. Thurston said: "We dare not commit the political crime of nominating Blaine in disobedience to his will." He then mentioned the full list of candidates, and spoke of the republican party as the party of protection. Referred to the democratic straddle on the tariff and civil service reform questions. Said the great issue in the coming campaign would be the tariff, adding: "A great army will rise to trample out forever the pernicious doctrine of free trade"

Then the call of states was begun, and committees were named. A resolution was unanimously adopted extending sympathy of the convention to General Sheridan.

Fred Douglass and General Fremont each made short speeches full of cheer and encouragement to the party, and the convention adjourned to await reports from the committees.

Mahone and Wise, of Virginia, are making a hard fight, each for a seat, with his crowd, in the convention.

A TRACTION ENGINE.

A Steam Wagon Unloads Itself From a Train--A Remarkable Machine.

Mr. D. L. Remington of Woodburn, Oregon, is the inventor of a traction or roadway engine that is said to surpass all other machines of this kind. Mr. Remington is an old acquaintance and friend of Daniel Best of the agricultural works at San Leandro, and, by an arrangement with Mr. Best, brought one of his engines over the Oregon and California Railroad to San Leandro, arriving there with it on Tuesday morning. Immediately after its arrival fire was made under the boiler, and as soon as steam was up, the machine, under the control of Mr. Remington, unloaded itself, moving with ease and grace from the platform car on which it stood to the steep incline to the roadway, and thence to its quarters in the agricultural works. The reason for bringing this machine from Oregon was to make a thorough and severe test of its power and capacities. This was done, and in every way the machine gave the fullest satisfaction. Mr. Best and the large number of excellent mechanics in his establishment, and that of the Hay Press Company, also, were delighted with the machine and its achievements. Its performances are almost marvelous. It will draw a load of four tons up a grade of one foot in three feet, and it can be turned round in its own tracks, and it can be run forward and backward with equal facility with a locomotive on a railroad track. Any unevenness in the surface of the ground makes no difference to the machine. It will travel without upsetting on a hill-side on which a wagon could be drawn, and it will go down into deep gullies and up and out without a halt. The main test at San Leandro was to determine whether the machine would haul one of Best's great harvesters and the decision was that it would. Upon this there was no difference of opinion among those directly interested, nor among the disinterested spectators in the large crowd, among which were a number of farmers and merchants of the neighborhood. The machine will with care and perfect regularity draw the largest harvester through the heaviest grain at a speed of six miles an hour. In Oregon, it drew in the stiff, clayey soil of the Willamette valley, at a speed of six miles an hour, a gang of six fourteen inch plows, turning over two acres per hour, with the plows set ten inches deep. This was a great achievement, but the inventor says that a larger machine can be made which could be handled with the ease that this one is, that will do at least double the work of this one in soil such as there is in the Alameda valley. One of the achievements of the machine at San Leandro was to pull one of Best's heaviest harvesters out of a shed and over a steep embankment of a side track, and up a platform with an ascent of six feet in twenty. The steam gauge showed a pressure of only 66 pounds. When both engine and harvester stood on the top of the high platform, cheer after cheer went up from the delighted crowd of spectators. It was an achievement the inventor might well be proud of. But the greatest test of the pulling powers of the machine was made by putting on the brake of the harvester while on the way to the depot and bringing the main wheel of the harvester to a dead lock. There was no perceptible effect on the machine; it went along without the least check in speed.

The original machine manufactured by Mr. Remington is at work in the forests of Oregon, drawing logs to the sawmill, "grubbing," and doing the work of clearing land, among stumps and brush, where oxen or horses cannot be used at all. From the success of this trial there can be no question about these machines becoming the power for field work, plowing, harvesting, and threshing, and as they are to be manufactured at San Leandro, which is intended by the inventor and Mr. Best, the new industry will enlarge the agricultural work there to several times their present capacity, and adds greatly to the population of the town.

This Mr. Remington is a member of the family of the same name, famous for its inventive genius.—Cal. Ex.

Mr. Potter will probably be gone all summer. His friends here will miss him during his absence.
