CLYMER NOTES.

Mrs. John King is slowly recovering from a severe attack of sickness. Farmers in the hills have generally finished plowing their summer fallow.

J. P. Humphreys, who is usually the first among the farmers in this vicinity to begin the work of the season, has already cut and stored part of his hay.

Mrs. M. A. Short has returned from her visit to Goldendale, W. T., accompanied by Miss Jennie Belle Short, who has been visiting relatives in the territory since last autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. George Given have returned from their trip to Canada, and George Clymer and family have returned from Princeville.

The Turner camp meeting, the Dunkards' annual meeting at Maclean, and the secular picnic at Silverton last Saturday, have engaged the attention of our people during the past week.

Next fall there is to be a base ball boom in Pendleton. The new hotel at Dallas is being hurried along, and it will be completed by Aug. 1st.

West Side:—A German, whose name we were unable to learn, while engaged in cutting wool for J. H. Moran one day this week, caught the ax on a limb over his head and when the ax did come down it struck the German in the forehead, cutting an ugly gash.

The Astorian Transcript complains of two dozen sacks of putrid salmon being put up in that place, and asks, "how can the high reputation of Columbia river salmon be maintained under such circumstances?"

Albert Miller, an "engaged" young man of Harrisburg, has learned officially that there is a right and a wrong place for giving to his sweetheart a token of his affection.

His pre-honeymoon ardor so overcame him that he kissed his betrothed on the street. Arraigned before the court for this impropriety, the too-fond swain pleaded that he had often kissed his girl in the parlor without protest—in fact, to her evident enjoyment—and he did not suppose she would object to a snatched salute on the street.

The stern judge, long out of practice in Cupid's court, gave the young man two months in jail to learn the difference between kissing a young lady in her own parlor and committing the act of osculation in a public place. The right thing at the wrong time is often an offense.

That's what men are who plod along—trying to do their business, when they are half dead. Their eyes are dim and throbbing; their head aches; the children annoy them; their wives lose their charms; they lose their ambition; they make mistakes in their accounts, and hate themselves and everyone else.

TELEGRAPHIC SPLINTS.

Buffalo Bill's next enterprise will be to conduct a party of British nobles across the plains. The start will be made early in the fall.

The Providence (R. I.) bank defaulter, Pileher, was nabbed in Montreal on Tuesday, and will be brought to this country for trial.

Sidney Howard Gay, author of Bryant and Gay's "History of the United States," died at his residence in New Brighton, Staten Island, after a three years' illness caused by affection of the spine.

J. B. Haggin, the millionaire mine owner of California, has been selling out his stable of thorough-breds in New York. The sum realized on the sale is $116,000.

The London Times attributes the failure of the republicans to nominate Blaine to his absence from the country. "But," it adds, "as he is no friend to England, we can afford to regard his defeat with considerable equanimity."

"To see how things are run by those controlling the Yosemite valley would make any honest citizen's blood boil," said L. H. Silman, a stage driver and part owner in a stage line running from Milton to the Yosemite, while in conversation with a Chronicle reporter yesterday.

"I can't talk about it without getting angry, and neither could you if you were in my position. For a merely nominal sum two men named Kaufmann and McKinney have secured from the Yosemite commissioners the exclusive right to all of the pasturage, stable, carriage, horse and other facilities in the valley, and they set their heels on the necks of people who are obliged to patronize them. It is a shame the way in which they are treating the campers there. They are in fact driving them away by their actions. They won't give them any decent ground to camp on and they charge 3 cents a pound for hay and 4 cents for barley for their horses. This sort of thing is outrageous."

"Yes," remarked a gentleman from Sonora, who happened to be present, "the hay is worth about $40 a ton and the barley about 14 cents a pound."

"Then," said Mr. Silman, "they overcharge on everything else. What do you suppose they charge to keep a horse over night? Two dollars. Just think of it. Why, a dollar would be dear enough for such service. We were before the commissioners at their meeting last week with an application for the privilege of stabling our stage horses there independent of the monopoly. The request was refused. The rates were $1.50 before we made the request; now they have put them up to $2, and, mind you, this is only for keeping one horse over night."

—[San Francisco Chronicle.]

On the sergeant's desk in the Twenty-third sub-precinct police station, at the Grand Central station, an excessively inky potato is always to be found.

"It makes a new pen as good as old and an old one as good as new," says Sergt. Haradon, and when his pen troubles him in any way as he tries to write he jabs it into the tuler. He claims that it is the sovereign remedy. It takes off a brand new steel gloss in a jiffy, and in an equally satisfactory way it cuts off the rusted and corroded surface of a pen long in use.
