A REIGN OF TERROR.

London is now in a bad way. As everybody is on the volunteer police who chooses to take a hand in the hunt for the unknown Whitechapel murderer, there is, as one result, a fearful jumbling in the degrees of discretion, judgment and common sense on the part of these numerous Vidocqs.

The city's reign of terror on account of the murderer seems now merging into terrorism for fear of being arrested on suspicion of being the murderer. The shallowest brains generally rule during these periods of panic, and the man who talks the most, thinks the least, and at last develops an actual mania for suspecting without the least reason for so doing, is the one to cause the most needless arrests, needless disturbance and needless distress.

In reference to the general desire that bloodhounds be used in the search for the murderer, the police have procured several of these animals and put them in training. They are not stationed in the Whitechapel district, however, but are locked in stables in out-of-the-way places, so that nobody shall know from what quarter to expect them.

The methods now employed by the police in the vain efforts to capture the murderer are exciting the East Enders to wrath, and instead of having a single criminal to find it is feared that a very carnival of crime will be begun unless something is done to appease the desperate characters of this neighborhood. A change is noticeable already for the worse, and crimes such as wife-beating assaults and affrays with knives have increased within the last two weeks in the worst districts of the East End, but what the police most fear is an open air riot which will exceed in proportion the Trafalgar square riots of last year.

Mrs. ELLIOTT, who was arrested for selling liquor to Indians and for various other crimes at Sacramento, was acquitted of the first charge Thursday afternoon because the prosecution failed to prove that Indian Mary was an Indian, though she was present and testified against Mrs. Elliott and was well known to be of full Indian blood.

PROBABLY the richest college professor in America, if not in the world, is Professor E. E. Salisbury of Yale. He is a millionaire, and his fortune was made from investments made in Boston real estate. Prof. Salisbury is about 70 years old, is a man of courtly demeanor, and has traveled over nearly the whole world.

A novel temperance crusade has been organized at Leamington, England, under the presidency of mayor. About a score of temperance workers who are cyclists have formed a club in order to promote temperance in the surrounding villages. They ride out together, headed by a bugler forming their machines into a ring, they have a right good open-air meeting.

General Harrison most happily identified one of the most conclusive evidences of America's superior advantage over all foreign countries when he said "The gates of Castle Garden have always swung inward." During the past half century the number of people from foreign countries seeking our shores for the betterment of their condition has been about 15,000,000, and half a million yearly are now pouring in with the same ambition. In this particular America stands alone among the nations of the earth. It is the living and unanswerable testimony to her extraordinary resources that such an ever-increasing army can be so readily assimilated. When some of those who have fled from poverty abroad have been unable to get themselves at once out of poverty it only serves to call attention to the enormous numbers who are provided for every year.

Suppose, for an instant, that instead of being called upon every year to provide for half a million strangers from other lands that the tide of emigration should turn in the other direction and those half million competitors in our own labor markets should leave this country to land on the shores of England, Germany, France, or any other foreign nation. How long could they stand the strain? Would it not drive any of those nations into revolution in a single season?

Let those who are now neglecting the great issue of this campaign to cry "panic" because the protective system does not convert into a Cross of the Legion of Honor the brass check attached to an ignorant laborer imported contrary to law, or does not take him out of the dingy tenement where the contractor has placed him and teach him the English language and set him up in business for himself let them take counsel of their unbiased and oft-expressed convictions and ask themselves whether they are acting the patriotic or consistent part in refusing to raise voice or pen against those who seek to level down to the foreign level that superiority which is the proudest monument of our country's prosperity.—Irish World.

SALEM business men are beginning to wake up and are making rapid strides to the front as the most enterprising city in Oregon. Let the good work go on. Let us have street railways, woolen mills, and lots of other manufacturing enterprises. We are the center of the finest agricultural and fruit lands in the world, blessed with health and all other surroundings that should make life pleasant and why should not Salem bloom and boom and grow into a great metropolis.

It is understood that an agent of the government is on his way to this coast to investigate the business of the Indian school at Chemawa. If one half is true that is rumored about the institution there will be some fine developments in that quarter as soon as the commissioner lets it out. "Let no guilty man escape." "Turn the rascals out."

THE New York Star, democratic, says Indiana will give Cleveland 12,000 majority but Blaine says that Indiana is good for 14,000 majority for Harrison and Morton—and Blaine is an excellent judge in such matters.

How He Advertised.

A gentleman, living in a small city in the west, had inherited consumption from his father, and the doctor told him he must die. He stopped taking their weakening physic and tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. In three months he was strong and well. The gentleman's neighbors knew how sickly he formerly was, and asked him to state in public how he had been cured. He advertised to lecture on a certain evening, in the public hall, and there was a large audience present. This was his lecture: A picture of himself before, and one after, he tried the remedy, and five empty bottles of Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He said nothing, but convinced his audience just the same. It outwits all—Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.
