Railroad Talk — Prospects — River Jots — News Summary.

The Winter Prospect.

The time is drawing near when Eastern people will begin to take their way westward to avoid the severities of the winter and to find more congenial climate for permanent abode.

The railroads report that already there are many people booked by their eastern offices. And the custom which has for several years prevailed of eastern people going to Florida to spend the winter, has about reached its flint.

Altogether the outlook for a busy winter spent in providing for an increase of population is first-class.

Dan'l Sully To-night.

To-night at the Reed appears the celebrated Dan Sully with a strong company in Daddy Nolan. Speaking of the New York Times says Dan'l Sully brought forward his new comedy of Daddy Nolan, at Tony Pastor's Theater, and scored a success.

The Snag Boat Service.

The Corvallis is at work pulling snags, and the upper Willamette is clear now as far up as Fairfield. The shallowest water in the river to that place is thirty inches, and this is sufficient to allow any of the boats plying on the upper river to travel without trouble.

The work will progress this season for about a month longer, and then a lay-up for the winter will be made. Next spring operations will be resumed and the river opened up as far as Harrisburg. Good work is being done.

Arrested for Burglary.

Deputy Sheriff Wrightman yesterday evening brought to this city and placed in jail a young man by the name of James De Bard of near Buena Vista, who is charged with burglarizing the home of G. E. Logan. He was captured about 12 miles below Salem on route to Portland.

At the preliminary examination this morning the young man was acquitted and he proceeded on his way rejoicing.

A Gross Injustice.

An Oregonian correspondent strenuously objects to the report of the government commissioner of agriculture, which says that "in Oregon there is much complaint of the yield from early freezing, rain in June, hot weather in July, and rust and blight." The correspondent says if there has been a failure of crops in Oregon this year, we of the Willamette valley have failed to hear of it up to date, or even of rust or blight anywhere in the state.

Before the Recorder.

Hary Dunn was found last night to be in a drunk and disorderly condition. This morning he was snatched from the cooler and on trial sentenced to five days.

Last night Lee Ho, George Hong, and George Sun, three wily Celestials, were arrested for gambling, preferred by Sing Hong. They gave bonds for appearance before the recorder this afternoon at four o'clock.

Prohibition Rally.

On Saturday the prohibitionists will hold an open air meeting in Salem at 1:30 p. m., for the benefit of the farmers and town people. Clark Braden and M. V. Rork will be the speakers. Also at night in W. C. T. U. hall. Should the afternoon be rainy, the opera house has been spoken for.

FROM SALEM TO THE SEA.

A Few Clipping From our Exchanges on the Subject.

When it comes to the rub Albany is likewise going to do some rustling. A good natured game of railroad getting will be the result, and there is nothing like competition.—Albany Democrat.

Albany and Salem are both vying with each other to secure a railroad to Astoria. The press and the people of the entire state are very much interested in the building of a railroad to the sea.—Astoria Pioneer.

Residents of the Willamette valley, alive to their interests, are giving considerable attention to this matter and the press of the state have none but good words and hearty encouragement for the railroad that will aid not alone Astoria, but the entire state.—Astorian.

Our neighbors in Salem and Albany are eagerly looking this way regarding railroad connections between Astoria and the Willamette valley, and take an interest in the Astoria railroad second only to Astorians themselves. A railroad from the Willamette valley to Astoria is only a question of time, and co-operation and concert of effort can greatly aid the furtherance of its speedy construction.—Astorian.

"The people of Astoria," said Hon. C. W. Fulton, of Astoria "want to establish railroad communication with the Willamette valley. Our objective point is the Oregon Pacific, because we expect that that line will in a very few years be a trans-continental route. We have begun active operations on our road, and expect that it will be completed to the seaside, a distance of eighteen or twenty miles, by spring. We have ample terminal facilities offered us near Astoria, and I am sure we can secure still better inside the corporation. I am certain the people of Astoria will co-operate heartily with the citizens of Salem in the construction of the line to the valley. They are not more anxious to have an outlet to the deep sea than we are to reach the valley, and Salem seems to me as good a point as any through which the road may pass to the Oregon Pacific." Portland News.

Two War Stories.

"One day," said Judge Gresham, in a recent interview with Eli Perkins, "I met an old soldier who had been wounded in his face, and when I asked him in what battle he had been injured he said:

"I got it the first day at Shiloh, sir."

"But how could you get it in the face at Shiloh?" I asked.

"Well, sir," he said, half apologetically, "after I had run a mile or two I got careless and looked back."

"This story reminds me of how one of Ellsworth's fire zouaves killed the first Confederate. He said that he marched out to the battle of Bull Run, and when about half way there he met a Johnny Reb in ambush.

"What did you do then?" I asked.

"Well, sir," he answered, "I drew my revolver and he drew out his bowie knife, and then I took the lead from the start and kept it clear into Washington City, and—"

"But how did you kill the man?"

"Run him to death, sir," was the reply.—Chicago Mail.
