THE MYSTERY SOLVED.
Gibbs Safe Behind the Prison Bars at Last.
IS THE REAL GIBBS, THE MURDERER
Caught After Many Weeks of Careful Strategy by the Various Authorities Over the State.
PORTLAND, October 13.—Gibbs is captured and the public mind set at ease. He is now safe behind the prison bars at Yreka, Siskiyou county, California.
Notwithstanding the police of Portland placed no reliance in the report that the man captured at Yreka was Gibbs, the identity of the murderer was yesterday established beyond all question of doubt, by photographs received by Sheriff Kelly from the sheriff of that place.
CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE CAPTURE.
The following account of the capture of Gibbs is furnished by the Yreka Journal:
"The colored man arrested was first tracked crossing the Anderson ferry at Klamath river, wearing a railroad cap at the time, which he afterward threw away, securing a white wool hat, but wore a straw hat when arrested. He stole a boat at Hamburg Bar to go down the river, which the Indians took away from him, and then journeyed down to Sciad, but returned again to Hamburg Bar. Taking an Indian and Tom Quigley, well armed, to stand guard outside, the deputy proceeded to the place. Clark-son asked the Indians at the ranch-ette if they had a fire inside, stating that he would like to warm his hands, which were very cold, and was invited to come in. While warming himself, he inspected the colored man, who sat close by with his head down and arms folded, and jerking out a pistol placed it under his prisoner's nose, making him throw up his hands, which he held close and tight against his breast. On searching if he had any weapons a pistol was found in the breast pocket of his coat, against which his arms were closely pressed.
HE WAS INVISIBLE.
The circumstance of the crime with which Gibbs is charged are so thoroughly fresh in the minds of the public that a repetition would be a mere waste of words. Suffice it to say that it is one of the most singular cases on record in the annals of crimes committed in this state. The murder was committed early in the evening, and for over three weeks the murderer was completely lost to view as if he had been swallowed up in the Willamette. Even after he was captured, his identity was not established until more than a week later.
Never has there been made such a determined, persistent, conscientious search for a murderer in this state. Many clues were tracked down, and officers were sent north, east, south and west, but all to no avail. The murderer eluded detection until after he crossed the Oregon line into California.
The reward offered for the capture of Gibbs is $1300. Of this sum $200 is offered by Sheriff Kelly and the remaining $1100 is made up through voluntary subscription.
Ends an Murder.
SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 12.—Two printers named Frank D. Romayne and T. M. Hughes, typesetters in the Tribune office here, met in front of the office yesterday afternoon and renewed a quarrel which had been going on for two weeks. Both were armed. Hughes fired five shots, one ball going through Romayne's body and killing him in a few minutes. Romayne fired no shots. Hughes was arrested by a deputy United States marshal and taken to the penitentiary.
Murder and Suicide.
EVEREST, KANS., Nov. 12.—Mrs Mary Brinck, wife of the wealthiest farmer of this (Brown) county was shot and killed yesterday by Frank Zolludick, a farm employe, who afterward committed suicide. No one was at home at the time when the tragedy occurred excepting Mrs. Brinck and no cause can be given for the deed. Zolludick had been on a spree for a week past.
Chief Justice Fuller and Secretary Blaine were once fellow reporters in the Maine legislature.

IN EAST AFRICA.
A NEWSPAPER MAN TO MEET STANLEY.
A Thrilling Account of the Experience of Lieutenant Tiedmann—The Peters Expedition.
NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The Herald's correspondent at Zanzibar cables as follows: Captain Wissman has sent me word that I can go up the country with my expedition to meet Mr. Stanley and carry him supplies of tea, quinine, tobacco and other necessaries. Captain Wissman will give me an escort in addition to my own men, but say that I must fly the German flag. Captain Wissman comes here from the coast to-night. The German government asked him yesterday to give me every assistance. Captain Wissman captured Sanaani yesterday with the loss of two killed and four wounded, the Bahahen fled in a northerly direction. The road to Sanaani and Mpwapwa is now open.
BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Letters from Lieutenant Tiedmann give a graphic account of his quarrel with the Massals when ascending the Tana river. The trouble arose from Tiedmann's endeavor to procure boats in which to transport his men. The natives refused to sell the boats. Then Tiedmann tried to take the boats by force, whereupon the natives assumed a threatening attitude and finally advanced upon the lieutenant and party with uplifted javelins. Tiedmann was obliged to order his men to fire in self-defense. The natives of several villages joined in the cry for vengeance and pursued Tiedmann and his party, who only escaped by hiding in a field in the darkness.
The Hansing company at Zanzibar has telegraphed to the Emin Relief committee as follows: Reports say that the Somalis dispersed Peters' column, killing two Europeans and wounding another. The Germans at Lamu do not believe the rumor to be well founded.
A PATHETIC STORY.
Another Sad Result of the Great New Mexico Blizzard.
DENVER, Nov. 12.—A Trinidad special to the News says: Another sad result of the recent snowstorm in New Mexico reached here today. Some months ago a family named Potts, consisting of husband and wife and four children, settled a homestead claim near Carrizo, about 100 miles from here. The family being very poor the wife and eldest daughter came to the town and took washing while the remainder of the family lived on the ranch. On the 29th of last month, the day before the storm began, Potts and a boy named McCash started to Trinidad for provisions, leaving the three other children, the eldest of whom was fifteen, at the ranch. The storm caught the man and boy the second day, and they have not yet been heard from, and the probabilities are that they were frozen to death. As there was only a limited amount of provisions and fuel at Pott's ranch, and it is now thirteen days since they were heard from, it is more than likely that they perished of cold, or died of hunger. The mother and daughter are nearly distracted. A party will leave here tomorrow to investigate.
