There are many reasons why they are the best. They represent all that is progressive in the art of stove making. They are rich in design, and perfect in operation. They never get out of order. They give a uniform heat, and their baking is perfection. In short, the Garland goods are absolutely the very best that can be produced for the money. More have been bought this year than ever before in the history of a single season.

THE SEAL INDUSTRY.

An intelligent exchange has the following of interest: The seal industry involved in the negotiations between Secretary Blaine and Lord Salisbury is one of much interest.

The number of seals summering on the two islands, St. Paul and St. George, approximated 4,700,000 in 1874, and will probably number over 5,000,000 now.

For the last 20 years the rights over these seas have been leased to the Alaska Commercial Company, which, however, was restrained by law from killing over 100,000 seals each year.

As about 1,000,000 young seals are born every year, the killing of this number does not seriously interfere with the natural increase of the herd.

The herd is worth from ten to twelve millions of dollars. Those between one and five years of age are the only ones that are allowed to be killed.

About June 1st the seals begin to reach the islands from their pasture grounds in the North Pacific, and the last of them leave in the late fall or early winter.

For the rest of the year they live in the sea, devouring from ten to forty pounds of fish a day, or in the course of the year about 6,000,000 tons of fish.

Of the 1,000,000 young, born each year, only about one-half return the next year, the rest falling a prey to sharks and whales.

The use of firearms is never allowed in killing them, lest the herd be frightened away.

Those selected for killing are gradually separated from the rest, driven inland and dispatched with clubs.

The annual income of the United States is between three and four hundred thousand dollars. It is not a big amount, but the industry is well worth saving, and it seems a pity Uncle Sam and John Bull can't come together like two sensible business men and make a satisfactory arrangement without the waste of any more words.

DEATH TO THE LOTTERIES.

Lottery business, so far as it is being carried on through the mails, is liable to be curtailed or stopped entirely.

President Harrison's message begins to bear fruit. The anti-lottery mail bill was approved unanimously by the senate committee on post offices and post roads, and will be enacted a law in a short time.

The admission of the new states to power and the insinuations of Democratic papers that the lottery was founded in Louisiana by Republican carpet baggers, has nerved the Republican party up to do its duty.

A State law should now be enacted prohibiting express companies and banks from receiving or forwarding tickets, collections or remittances to or from any lottery company.

That would close up the lottery business pretty tight.

Error Dies Hard.

Chief Justice Fuller, to the infinite surprise of both republicans and democrats of the States Rights school has nullified Chief Justice Taney's decision of ante bellum times, that a state law licensing the sale of imported liquor or even prohibiting its sale altogether is constitutional, on the ground of the absence of statutory provisions of the United States.

To remedy this defect and make the law conform to Fuller's decision, there is a bill pending before Congress declaring: "That whenever any article of commerce is imported into any state, territory or foreign nation and there shall be subject to the laws of such state."

Now arises a great lawyer, Gen. Trenchard Curtis, and says congress has no constitutional authority to enact such a law. Congress, he says cannot confer an authority to a state which it does not itself possess.

Chief Justice Taney, forty years ago, was of the opinion that the state had the authority to regulate and control the sale of spirituous liquors within its own jurisdiction, but Chief Justice Fuller says a state has no such authority without an act of congress to that effect. Congress is now wrestling with the subject and has a bill pending, clothing the states with authority to exercise police authority over all matters pertaining to its municipal interest.

In order to squelch this measure in the end, Mr. Curtis, a friend, no doubt, of the liquor traffic, suddenly pops up and says: "You can't do it" without amending a federal constitution for such a purpose. Truly, "when doctors disagree who shall decide?"

The liquor traffic hedged by special privileges as a great wrong and to placing its existence with these peculiar privileges and legal support the traffic leaves no stone unturned. Justice Fuller's opinion has its prototype in the recent decision of Roger B. Taney. Verily, verily, error dies hard—Roseburg Plaindealer.

Bismarck and His Dogs.

Bismarck is very fond of animals, as is natural in a lauded proprietor. When his favorite dog, Sultan, was poisoned in 1877 he watched beside the poor beast with deep sorrow.

His eldest son tried to lead him away, but he replied: "No, leave me alone," and returned to poor Sultan. When the dog was dead he turned to a friend and said: "These old German forefathers of ours had a kind of religion. They believed they would meet again in the celestial hunting grounds all the good dogs that had been their faithful companions in life. I wish I could believe that."—New Orleans Picayune.

CAPITAL JOURNAL JOTS.

Good corn weather.

The price of corn is steadily advancing.

Seattle will now have five big dailies to support.

It is not difficult to be too independent to be useful.

It will take $100,000 to run the Tacoma city schools next year.

The JOURNAL is not conservative about being a good Salem paper.

A. W. Cheney has started the Clackamas County News. He is printing a spirited little local paper.

A pretty good plan to follow is to not drink any more in hot than you do in cool weather.

The Albany States Right Democrat is officially notified that an original package of 131 has been passed by congress.

John Egan, a Wilkesbarre, Pa., notoriety, who was nicknamed "Coal-oil Johnny" was once worth $500,000, has just died in a poorhouse.

Republicans, democrats, and third party men all pull together when it comes to subscribing for a fair paper. They take the JOURNAL.

It is now discovered that the Kemper electrocution horror was largely a newspaper horror—just what the New York law was calculated to suppress.

J. W. Strange, who is receiving so much abuse for his census of eastern Oregon, has assumed editorship of the Pendleton Tribune. He will now be fully able to defend himself.

U. S. Senator Wilson disturbed the democratic senatorial spellbinders the other day by informing them that whereas the "statistics" gave the aggregate of farm mortgages in Iowa as $567,000,000 the actual count showed up only $51,000,000.

Here is a piece of Speaker Reed's finest sarcasm: "Did it ever occur to the reader what a singular dispensation of providence it is whereby those who do not have the things of this world to do, could have always done them so much better than the poor creatures who did do them? Did you ever see a sidewalk committee which could not build finer houses than architect and master workmen? It really looks as if providence had wasted its most cloying sweetness on the desert air."

Latent Power.

The late Dean Alfred well known to most reading people as the author of "The Queen's English," was an example of what a father can do for a son. The elder Alfred was a clergyman; a quiet thinker, who knew human nature and had some idea of the possibilities of the human mind.

He gave his son direction and impetus in showing him from his earliest infancy that what is generally thought difficult and for most impossible, is easy for all. The boy could write latin verse before he was eight years old.

Before he was ten he had written a history of the Jews—a childish composition no doubt, but the mere conception of it shows how conscious the boy had been made of his natural power. This consciousness he never lost. Freer than most men from vanity and self conceit, he realized in his life that each unimpaired individual mind has in it the highest possibilities of the race.

He easily became one of the greatest Greek scholars of his day. This was his life work—a labor of love in the hope of making a complete and correct edition of the Greek Scriptures of the New Testament. But aside from this, he developed in himself many other "talents" of a very high order. His hymns and lyrics are beautiful. It was said of his drawing and painting that he would have been a great landscape painter had he not been a great Greek scholar. He was a thorough master of music and had no mean skill in carving.
