TO CROSS THE OCEAN IN THE SKY.
A Balloon Without Passengers Soon to Be Started on a Transatlantic Trip.
To cross the Atlantic the enterprising mission upon which a balloon will start from Germantown. The balloon will not carry any passengers, but it is intended to pilot the way for a monster airship that will carry at least two voyagers. The inventor of this new airship is Charles P. Fent, of 4,555 Lena street, Germantown.
Mr. Fent has been working on the problem of aerial navigation for the past fifty years, and is now convinced that he has solved it. He is an eminently practical business man and works at his invention at odd hours. He has tried every scheme of aerial navigation that has been suggested in the past decade and a half, and has reached the conclusion that all schemes of propulsion by machinery are impracticable. The air current, in his opinion, form the only motive power that can be relied on. The balloon which Mr. Fent has now projected is on the old principle of the hot air ship.
The experimental machine that will be started across the Atlantic is completed, and is an exact model of the larger one that is expected to later carry over the inventor. The hot gas that will inflate the bag will be generated from gasoline, which is chosen on account of its enormous volatile proportions and great lifting power.
In the completed machine the gasoline will be carried in a rectangular tin can, holding exactly ten gallons. A small tube runs from the can to an upright brass pipe, about 3 inches in diameter and about 6 feet long. This pipe is lined within and without with asbestos. It passes up into the gas bag, while the tin receptacle remains below. The gasoline is ignited at the tube that passes into the pipe near the bottom, and the flame shoots up the pipe to the top, where it is arrested by a cap.
The bag is made of a preparation of paper, and is rigged so that it cannot sway and come in contact with the flame. This flame will be constant, and experience shows that the ten gallons will last just forty hours, or ten hours longer, according to Mr. Fent's calculations, than will be necessary to carry the airship across the Atlantic. Mr. Fent believes that the balloon will make the passage in thirty hours.
The gas bag on the pioneer balloon measures 22 1/2 feet in diameter. Underneath the oil can has been suspended a copper buoy shaped like a big top and weighted at the bottom, so that it will float in the water in an upright position. It is surmounted by an American flag, and is suspended by a hook that will unfasten if it comes in contact with the water. This will be filled with directions to be returned if found. This will only become detached in case of accident and in the unexpected event of the balloon falling in the water. In the large balloon for passengers it will be made large enough to float the passengers in case of accident.—Philadelphia Press.

RAILROAD COLLISION.
ASPEN, Colo., July 13.—A horrible railroad accident occurred at Aspen Junction last night. A special train was backing from the water tank to the switch to the Aspen track, when the rear end of a passenger coach crashed into an engine coming out from the round-house. The coach was broken off and the hot water and steam poured into the broken end of the passenger car, horribly scalding thirteen passengers—five men, seven women and one child. All that was possible was done to relieve the sufferings of the unfortunate.
The disaster was probably due to an error of judgment on the part of the "whistler" bringing the engine out from the round-house. He thought to clear the main track before the passenger train reached him, and was pushing his engine at a high rate of speed. Just at the moment he struck the rear corner of the passenger coach, tearing a hole in it and ripping the valve from the engine. Torrents of scalding steam and water poured in upon the victims, and of twenty-five passengers in the coach three were killed and several others were severely injured. The injured were taken to the hospital, but only one is expected to survive. Tonight the remainder of the injured are resting quietly, with good chances of recovery.
Seven persons were scalded to death. Thirteen were scalded in all. It is now reported that none of the injured can survive. A party of Midland officials have just reached here from the scene of the accident. They made a preliminary examination.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN GILMAN.
PORTLAND, Or., July 13.—Captain J. M. Gilman, a well known pioneer resident of this city, who has been in poor health for some time, died of heart failure at 11:45 yesterday forenoon, aged 65 years. Captain Gilman was a native of San Francisco in 1849 on a ship which brought out the machinery, etc., for the first steamer which ran on the Sacramento river. He put the machinery on the boat and acted as engineer in her for some time. He came to Portland in 1852 and since that time resided here continuously. He was an engineer on river steamers here in early days, and was associated with Messrs. Alsworth, Reed and Thompson in organizing the Oregon Steam Navigation Company. He accumulated considerable property, among which is the hotel on First street which bears his name.

PROFIT IN BONNET MAKING.
The greatest mistake which amateur bonnet makers are guilty of is to use too many materials. Simplicity is the first thing to be aimed at in making a bonnet. A great many English ladies have taken lessons in millinery classes for the purpose of perfecting themselves in the details of this work so that they can manufacture their own hats. It is somewhat astonishing to discover how trifling is the cost of the materials of a very costly bonnet. There are very few bonnets sold at fifteen and twenty dollars which cost the manufacturer more than one-fifth that sum.
Out of the enormous profit of 300 or 400 per cent, most be counted the price of an establishment in Broadway or on Fifth avenue, the wages of expert trimmers and forewomen, which range from twenty-five to fifty dollars a week, and of the array of small employees. So it happens that the business of the fashionable retail milliner is not altogether the bonanza it might seem. The bills of fashionable customers who deal at large millinery establishments, rumor whispers, are hard to collect, and not infrequently they go to protest and judgment before they can be collected.—New York Tribune.

During the recent session of the legislature it was too busy to print in the state that reached successfully carried out its duties in Oregon politics. It successfully opposed all the schemes of the "money trust" and the "political bosses." It advocated the law that passed giving the Oregon railroad commission power to fix just and reasonable rates of freight and to regulate the operation of the railroads. It secured the passage of a law to open the right to free and unrestricted use of water.
THE CAPITAL JOURNAL favors a reform in national finances, to the end that the present excessive money system of supply for the individual currency may be supplanted by the government issuing direct to the people an adequate supply of legal tender money, with a coin basis sufficient to sustain a sound banking principle. It favors election of all officials by the people, or are directly responsible to the people, by direct vote of the people. It favors the abolition of all offices that are not necessary to the people's rights and that secure to the people the right to free and unrestricted use of water.

DEMOCRATS OF OHIO.
CLEVELAND, July 13.—The delegates to the democratic state convention are arriving here and indications are that tomorrow will witness the largest gathering ever assembled in the Buckeye state. Although the preliminary meeting of the delegates will be held tomorrow, the convention will not be held until Wednesday. That Allen W. Thurman, son of the "Old Roman," is to be temporary chairman, is apparent to all except the friends of the other candidates, and also that Governor Campbell will be renominated on the first ballot although the friends of Lawrence Neal insist that their candidate has a fighting chance. Governor Campbell's friends are complaining of the circulation of a story to the effect that he contemplates declining the nomination after winning the fight and that the Campbell men are then to throw the nomination to McMahon, Dayton. The story has received no general credence.
