WRITE THYSELF AN ASS.

That is what Editor Kaiser of the Ashland Record, the leading Pennoy Democrat editor of Oregon, says to his Democratic editorial brethren. He lets himself loose after this heroic style:

"The Oregon Democratic editor had a splendid opportunity this time of writing himself down as ass of the worst kind of male variety. And he did it to perfection. His main campaign started off in turning on the floodgates of vile vituperation, abuse and vilification on Gov. Penoyer, Gen. Weaver, Mrs. Lease and the Populists generally. In his stupid assinity he went the whole length and shouted himself hoarse calling on everybody to "vote for Democratic principles." The national committee caught the bray of the Oregon ass and told him to vote for Pierce, the Populist who says he don't believe in any portion of the Chicago platform! The Oregon Democratic editor obeyed like a thoroughbred jackass and brayed forth that you must vote for Pierce, too! Finally the national committee took another twist at the tail of the long-eared Oregon animal (to get at his brains) and the Democratic editor told the faithful to vote for Gen. Weaver! What a sorry spectacle the Democratic organs presented! Such humiliation should break the heart of even an ass. All of which goes to show that a newspaperman should be a man of sufficient judgment to look out for himself, though he is cavorting around in a barnyard of jackasses.

A POINTER.

If he had not been a millionaire's son-in-law does any Republican suppose Whitelaw Reid would have been nominated for the vice presidency, or that old loyal birthplace of Republicanism like Michigan, Illinois and Kansas would have cast their electoral votes against Republicanism so strongly as they have? As the rank and file can have no interest with any aristocratic tendency within the party, it seems they did about what might be expected on election day—snored the tendency under.

The people, the workingmen, the farmers, the brawn and muscle of our country do not approve of such nominations from a political party of intelligence, if the millionaires do. In catering for votes a political party that will deliberately choose the little handful of plutocrats in preference to the masses can meet with but one fate in a government of the people, and that is defeat.

It will be said, it is easy to say such things after election results are known to be decided. Why did you not say this before? It was not necessary. To have done so would have been words wasted and odium incurred. Now Republicans have time to think for a few years. They will do some thinking, too. The chances are favorable to the party putting up a ticket in 1896 that will be more to the liking of the masses of voters than the gang of millionaire hoodlums who control our money, lands and transportation, and who also want control of our national government.

THE COMING CITY ELECTION.

The people of this city ought to be allowed to elect their city officers without drawing party lines, without setting in motion all the wheels of party machinery and the train of influences that reaches from the occupant of the white house to the smallest ward politician.

No one imagines that they will be permitted to do this. Yet it would be the wisest, sensible thing to do—to select our city council and city officers upon their merit as men and on their devotion to good city government, rather than upon their merit as partisans and the tariff question.

It will be presumed necessary to set the party machines and rings at work. Spurred on by a national success, Salem Democrats will wish to score further victories and the smallest office in sight is sufficient to set the mouths of Politicians watering. The Republican city committee will not be caught napping and has already ordered primaries held to put up a party ticket.

It is not a political issue that is at stake in Salem. A city government that has exhausted city credit, has extensive litigations on its hands and hardly knows where to turn for relief, will find no relief in political methods. The only relief will be found in electing wise, conservative and capable men who manage their own affairs well and of politics.

The people may

Photographing Bullets.

It is no news that cannon balls and bullets can be photographed as they pass through the air, but Professor C. V. Boys has recently made some experiments in photographing flying bullets that cast new light upon the motion and their effect upon the air through which they pass.

Professor Boys does this by putting through a box lined with black cloth, and so arranged that the passing bullet itself completes an electric circuit and causes a flash of light in the box, which, though lasting only a millionth of a second, suffices to imprint a photograph of the bullet on a sensitized plate contained in the box.

Not only are the bullets themselves photographed, but also the atmospheric waves created by their passage. In front of the bullets are seen the waves of condensation and behind them the waves of rarefaction, and interesting observations have been made on the peculiar forms of these waves.

As each bullet dashes through the box it touches the terminals of two wires in the electric circuit, and the little cloud of dust into which the ends of the wires are polymerized also has its image imprinted on the photographic plate.

Professor Boys has experimented with the photographing of charges of small shot fired from shotguns, and the final result of these experiments is awaited with much interest because it promises to throw light upon the manner in which guns of different patterns scatter the shot—Youth's Companion.

A Test of Strength.

Tradition has immortalized Adargoma, of Grand Canary, who could wrestle for two consecutive hours, and having been thrown undermost in a certain contest got his antagonist between his legs and arms and squeezed him so that his bones began to crack.

The native was subsequently sent as a prisoner to Spain, where he befriended the people by his performances. One day in Seville he was visited by a braving youth of La Mancha, who was anxious to try a bout with him. "My good friend," said Adargoma, "as we are going to wrestle together it is only reasonable that we should begin by drinking something."

A large bowl of wine having been brought, he took this in one hand and continued to address his challenger: "If with both your arms you can overpower one of mine, so as to hinder me from drinking every drop of this wine, we will try your strength together. If not you may return to your home." The struggle took place, and Adargoma by degrees drained the bowl in the coolest manner without spilling a drop of the wine. His one hand was more than a match for the other's two.—National Review.

So Note It Ho.

Mr. Jones had just taken a high degree in a secret society to which he belongs, and which carries on its meetings in the still hours of the late night and early mornings. It was 3 a. m. when he reached home and found Mrs. Jones, contrary to custom, sound asleep.

"Wake up, Maria," he shouted, brandishing a new sword which had been added to his regalia; "wake up and congratulate me. I am now a Prince of Jerusalem!"

Mrs. Jones sat up and looked at her husband by the waning light of a 3 o'clock moon and the night lamp. "Jeriah!" she said, in a voice that chilled him like a Manitoba wave in January. "When a man comes home at this hour of the morning and says he is a Prince of Jerusalem, there is something the matter with him and he should be treated accordingly."

And he was.—Detroit Free Press.

Disc Two.

Early in the present century it was introduced into English collections of hymns through the compressed translation or paraphrase of it given by Scott in his "Lay of the Last Minstrel," and few hymn books now are without the solemn, apocalyptic strain, "That day of wrath, that dreadful day." But our attention is attracted by an extraordinary number of versions which have been made of the hymn, about 100 in English and ninety in German, being on record. Next to this among Latin hymns may be ranked, although at a long interval, the "Adeste Fideles," of which there are thirty-eight English versions, a number far surpassed by the sixty-three of Luther's "Guten Nacht," "Ein feste Burg."—Quaker Review.
