power to look up the seven-day columns, now brilliant, now dim, now garlanded with peace, now crimson with slaughter, now horrid with chastisement, now radiant with love and joy.

But do not let us get an impression from chronology that because the year of time has been so long in process, they are to go on forever. Matter is not eternal. No! If you watch half a day, or a whole day, or two days, as once did, to see a military procession, you remember the last brigade, and the last regiment, and the last company finally passed on, and we rose to go we said to each other, "It is all over."

But the other thought coming out of this subject is that Biblical chronology, and indeed all chronology, is urging the world to move punctually and immediately. What an unsatisfactory and indefinite thing it must have been for two business men in the time of Ahab to make an appointment, saying, "We will settle that business matter tomorrow when the shadow on the dial of Ahab reaches the tenth step from the top."

Some Examples. Dr. Rush, the greatest and busiest physician of his day, appreciated the value of time, and when asked how he had been able to gather so much information for his books and lectures, he replied: "I have been able to do it by economizing my time. I have not spent one hour in amusement in thirty years."

Consider the Years of Many Generations. Was the Year, and the Sermon Was Regarding "The Chronology of the Bible, or God Among the Centuries."

Compare these modes of marking time with our modes of marking time, when 12 o'clock is 12 o'clock, and 6 o'clock is 6 o'clock, and 10 o'clock is 10 o'clock, and independent of all weathers, and then think of that you live now. But notwithstanding all the imperfect modes of marking hours or years or centuries, Bible chronology never trips up, never falters, never contradicts itself, and here is one of the best arguments for the authenticity of the Scriptures.

Chronology takes pen and pencil, and calling astronomy and history to help says: "Let us fix one event from which to calculate everything. Let it be a star, the Bethlehem star, the Christmas star."

Chronology enters the first chapter of Genesis and says the day mentioned there is not a day of twenty-four hours, but of ages, the word there translated as "day" in other places meaning ages.
