ORGANIZE TARIFF CLUBS.

Tariff clubs should be organized all over Oregon. Harrison was elected president after the Democrats tried to pass the Mills bill. The bill now being framed by the Free Trade Democrats in Congress, and which the administration is pledged to put through, is so radical a free trade measure that even leading Southern Democrats protest against it.

Free trade in wool and protected woolens is too bitter a dose for any intelligent Democratic farmer. The tariff question must be the issue upon which Oregon shall elect a president in 1896. It must be the issue upon which the next congress is to be chosen in 1894. It must be the issue upon which a senator is to be chosen in Oregon. Organize tariff clubs.

TRYING TO GET BACK.

In the speeches of the Senators from Indiana, published in the JOURNAL the other day, it was plainly evident that the Democratic leaders in that state propose to split with the Democratic administration of the pension laws under Hoke Smith. Voorhees is especially vehement in his friendship for the old soldier. His remarks are almost tearfully solicitous lest one's pension be cut off by mistake.

Indianapolis at the last election went Republican by three thousand majority. It is going to be simply impossible to keep Indiana from electing a Republican legislature, a Republican delegation to congress, and a Republican United States senator to succeed Voorhees whose term expires March 4, 1896.

OREGON AND OHIO.

Nearly one thousand copies of the DAILY JOURNAL went to the Republican press of Ohio with an account of the way Oregon Republicans jubilated over Major McKinley's great victory.

The Daily Sentinel of Bowling Green, Ohio, copies much of the JOURNAL's four-column account of the McKinley celebration at Salem and heads it "They Ratified in Oregon," and adds:

From way off at Salem, Oregon, they heard of McKinley's 81,000 majority, and when the news arrived they fairly outdid Ohio in their tribute to the "little Napoleon." Some kind friend sends us a copy of the CAPITAL JOURNAL which devotes four columns to a report of the monstrous McKinley ratification meeting.

The headlines to the report read: McKinley Ratification—Oregon's Tribute to Ohio's Governor—Five Thousand Rejoice Over Sweeping Victories for Republicanism—Oregon's Capital a Blaze of Glory—Life-size Picture of McKinley Unveiled at the Opera House."

A Democratic orator who spoke at the ratification, made this rhyme: "Sound the loud timbrel, holler and whoop! McKinley's triumphant and we're in the soup!"

STATE NEWS, NOTES, COMMENTS.

A committee of citizens secured an appropriation from the county court of Washington county of $1000 to buy a rock crusher and build a macadamized highway from Beaverton to the Multnomah county line. They raised enough more in cash and labor to make $4571.70. They now report to the county court that they have built the road and have $783 on hand. The Hillsboro Independent calls it "a practical test of that kind of improvement. The talk heretofore has been guess work. Beside the practical working test, the report shows who are the public spirited citizens and negatively who the 'well enoughs' are."

Numerous exchanges have advertisements of money to loan in small sums. Coin is creeping out of hiding.

Oregon sends greeting to the brave Populists of Iowa who have doubled their voting strength within one year. Forty-five-cent wheat, twenty-five-cent corn and a gold standard will do the business for Iowa before 1896. Keep up the agitation.—Union County Farmer. Iowa gave the largest Republican plurality in 1892 that she has given for many years. Keep up the agitation.

A number of Oregon sheriffs are in receipt of an unique invitation from H. A. Smith, sheriff of Clatsop county, to attend the execution of John Reiter, who murdered Victor Snellman on August 4th, last, and John Hanson, who murdered his wife on the 20th of last July. The executions are to take place at Astoria Friday, December 1, 1893. The invitation is heavily bordered with black and is decorated on one end with a picture of the blind Goddess of Justice.

The present autumn is acknowledged by farmers to have been favorable for their work, and most of them are about ready to rest on their oars. Nearly all the fallow ground has been seeded and a large amount of stubble has also been plowed up and sown.

J. S. Clarkson, who has managed two national Republican campaigns, is engaged in business enterprises in New York city.

Henry Villard will settle permanently in his old home in Germany in the village of Neustadt.

"Praise be to him whose wisdom skill Has cured a fevered human mind— And now alone as victor stands The Golden compound of his hands."

So spoke a man, with tribute crowned, Of Dr. Pierce, the "world's renowned," Whose "Medical Discovery" Had vanquished pain and set him free.

One can but speak in praise of a remedy so effective and unobtrusive as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Acting promptly and thoroughly, it produces permanent cures, consumption in its early stages, scrofula, liver and kidney disorders, and all blood diseases are within the field of its unbounded success.

SUGGESTED COMMENT.

American silver is now so cheap that there is a large stream of bullion export.

Seamen are shipping from Frisco for $15 a month, $10 in advance. Formerly the price was $30.

Cabinet crises are before the people of France, Portugal, Serbia and possibly the United States.

Oregon city is setting a fine example to sister cities by building a mile of vitrified brick pavement. It is one half completed.

There was a good move in the last city council, cutting off two extra clerks in each ward on election day—the city of Salem has no money to throw away.

It seems to be well settled that these articles will go on the Wilson tariff bill free list: Wool, iron ore, coal, copper, salt, crude borax, binding twines, cotton ties and lumber not advanced in preparation beyond sawing.

The Advertising

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla is always within the bonds of reason because it is true; it always appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people because it is true; and it is always fully substantiated by endorsement which, in the financial world would be accepted without a moment's hesitation.

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

New Party Leaders.

The Populists meeting Saturday adjourned to meet on the fourth Saturday in December. Organizers for ten precincts were named as follows: Jefferson—L. S. Miles, Chas. Miller, and Jas. Curly; Marion—M. Bailey, H. Galvin; Turner—T. B. Ball, John Messer, W. P. Gilbert; Lincoln—the same as for Turner; Woodburn—Geo. T. Cline, G. O. Dyer; Lash—Messrs. Clark and Walker; Howell—B. Wiesner, Ellis Stevens, Jos. Norwood; Salem, 4 wards—R. R. Ryan, J. P. Robertson, J. M. Payne; South Salem—J. W. Jory, W. W. Culver; North Salem—O. Brewster, F. J. Beatty, E. Ogerstad; Macleay—J. S. Bosler, J. W. Jory offered a resolution that the initiative and referendum be inserted in the constitution of Oregon and this was adopted by a unanimous vote.

The Stephens Estate.

The appraisers of the estate of the late W. B. Stephens have completed their work and the inventory has been filed and recorded with the county clerk. It shows that the deceased left seventeen acres of land near the fair grounds valued at $5,100 or $300 per acre, 175 acres composing the home farm near Lake Lash valued at $50 per acre or $8,000, and personal property amounting to $152. W. H. Ringo is the administrator of the estate. F. R. Smith, J. Brooks, and A. J. Pruitt were the appraisers.

Ants Bigger Than Foxes.

Pliny, that rare old gossip, tells, among his other extraordinary stories, that of the Bactrian method of obtaining gold. The sandy deserts of Bactria in the days of that historian were, so the old man says, literally swarming with ants "slightly bigger than foxes." These gigantic representatives of the genus hymenoptera burrowed deeply into the sandy wastes, their tunnels and galleries often being hundreds of feet in extent. The earth removed from these burrows was always carried to the outside and thrown up in hills (remember Pliny says this "of a bigness exceeding that of a palace." This debris, sand, earth, etc., was soon found to be wonderfully rich in small nuggets of gold.

The danger from the ants was greater, however, than that from the Indians in the early days of gold digging in the western United States, and many stories are told of men who were literally devoured in a few moments by the fierce owners of some disturbed burrow. Some observing old hunter at last discovered that the giant ants slept during the hottest hours of the day. After that the seekers after the yellow metal only made their incursions at the proper time, and even then they only staid long enough in the deserts to fill their sacks with the golden sand, which they took home to sift at leisure. With all this precaution the ants often "swiftly pursued the fleetest horses, and it was only by using various stratagems that the invaders managed to escape alive."—St. Louis Republic.

Marie Antoinette's Main Refuge.

There is a building in Edgemoor, an old square, white house, concerning which an interesting story is told. This tradition is that at the time of the French revolution Captain Samuel Clough, the owner of the house, who sailed a ship between Maine and France, was engaged to bring to this country no less valuable treasure than the unfortunate Queen Marie Antoinette, and that quantities of rich stuffs, furniture and silver were put aboard his ship for the use of the exile, whose destination was to have been this same house, which then stood in Westport, it having been removed to the mainland on a raft 60 years ago. It is yet occupied by Captain Clough's descendants.

One circumstance which lends confirmation to the story is that a similar legend attaches to a house in Dorchester, Mass., the famous Swan mansion, then owned by Colonel Swan, who spent much of his time in Paris, but who settled permanently in this country after the French revolution, his house being adorned in princely fashion. Now, Captain Clough and Colonel Swan had money dealings together in Paris, Captain Clough in 1794 having had a contract to purchase $50,000 worth of lumber for the colonel. What more likely than that Colonel Swan, who was a warm friend of Lafayette, should have engaged the Maine captain to aid him in a plan of such great importance as the attempted rescue of the French queen, with which he is credited?—Lewiston Journal.

The Status of Cotton.

In 1887 there was $5,414,400 invested in cotton mills in the Palmetto state. Today there is probably $12,000,000 invested.

Capital has been freely invested in cotton mills and with very rare exceptions has proved to be the highest class of investment. The day of cotton mills has come, and the increase is growing as steadily as the people of the state are becoming convinced that the cotton ought to be manufactured where it is grown. If the present pace be kept up, it will not be long before there will be a cotton mill in every county. Figures, however, speak louder than anything else, and the remarkable growth of the cotton mill industry in recent years is shown by the following record of capital invested:

Year	Investment
1880, to date	$2,776,101
1884, Jan. 1	4,796,000
1888, Jan. 1	5,414,400
1892, Oct. 1	11,141,832
1893, to date	12,000,000

Didn't Know the Governor.

A distinguished person of modest appearance called at one of our public institutions the other day on official business. He was admitted by the lady in charge. He desired to see the superintendent.

"He is very busy," she replied, "and I don't think he can see you. He is talking with the governor of New Hampshire or some other state, and he has no time to see a book agent, but I'll give him your name."

"Tell him that Governor Morris would like to speak to him a moment on very important business," was the quiet reply in a dignified manner.

"The-governor-p-a-r-d-o-n. Are you Governor Morris?"

"That is my name," the governor replied, and soon all due official recognition was tendered.—Hartford Courant.

The Battle of the Waves.

Of all the Swiss lakes the lake of Lucerne has the most irregular shape, its many bays running north to south, east to west. Owing to these windings it is often exposed to violent storms, but while in one bay the waters may be lashed into perfect fury in an adjoining bay not a ripple will disturb the surface.

Thus, when a strong south wind blows down the bay of Uri, the very same wind, turned from its course by the mountains, comes from the west from the bay of Buochs.

There is a point, just opposite Brunnen, where the two sets of waves meet, and then a terrific contest ensues for mastery. At such a moment the spray is driven into the air in vast sheets to a height of 50 feet or more.

While the battle rages there may be seen under the shelter of the promontory at Treib several of the lake steamers and a whole fleet of fishing and small boats waiting for the tempest to pass. So violent is the motion that even on large steamers cases of "sea" sickness are not unusual.

The experiences gained in facing such dangers have made the boatmen of the lake famous from the earliest times.—New York Journal.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Gentlemen: I take pleasure in informing you of the very beneficial results which have followed the use of Dr. Miles' Nervine.

In the case of myself and wife. For a year I was subject to a distressing pain at the base of the brain and upper portion of the spinal cord. I lost flesh and was greatly troubled with sleeplessness.

Your Nervine was highly recommended to me. My case had been so obstinate that I had no confidence in the efficacy of any medicine. Yet as a last resort I consented to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, I experienced marked benefit; my sleeplessness disappeared; my headache was removed; my spirits and general health improved.
