MINE TROUBLE.

Two Companies of National Guards Sent to the Scene.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March, 1 .-Governor McCorkle received a dispatch late yesterday afternoon from Eagle, a mining town about thirty miles east, saying there was trouble with the strikers there, and saking him to send ing miners should come out. They went to Wiant's mines about 300 strong with 50 guns. The working miners took refuge in the tipple, all armed. The strikers when within about 100 yards, began firing. The men in the tipple replied with telling effect, killing one man and injuring several.

Asking River Protection.

CORVALLIS, March 1 .- (Special.)-Pursuant to resolutions passed, the common council, and the Business Mens' Association, of Corvallis, have forwarded their joint petition to Hon, J. N. Dolph, John H. Mitchell, Binger Hermann and W. R. Ellis, senators and representatives in congress, asking that they use all honorable means to secure an appropriation from congress, to complete the work began four years ago on the Willamette river, just above Corvallis. The petition recites the fact that the revetment built by the former appropriation is not of sufficient strength or extent to confine the river to its channel during high water-that great anxiety is manifested by the pubhe lest the channel of the river should change, and thus deprive the upper Willamette valley of cheap transportation and leave the Southern Pacific without a competitor above albany. Further petitions from citizens will follow.

GLADSTONE'S LAST UTTERANCE.

His Ultimatum to the House of Lords.

AGREES TO AMENDMENTS BUT PROTEST

He Invokes the Higher Power of the Nation.

LONDON, Mar. 1 .- In the House of Commons this afternoon the Lords amendment to the Local Government bill was taken up, Gladstone addressed the house with marvelous energy and vigor. He said the government felt that the operation of sending and resending a bill from one house to another had continued long enough. To continue the process would be a loss of dignity to both houses and the government had decided to stop the operation and take a decided course. The government had the choice of rejecting the house of Lords amendment and abandoning the hope of passing the bill or accept them under protest with the hope of soon reversing them. The government had adopted the latter

Gladstone continued: "We have now reached the acute stage. It appears the lords desire to annihiliate the whole work of the house of commons. The differences between the houses is not temporary or casual. This is a state of things, I am compelled to say, that cannot continue. There is a higher authority than the house of commons, namely authority of the nation, which alone can decide." Gladstone closed by asking the house to accept the lords'

Hon, A. J. Balfour, conservative leader, replied. He said Gladstone's speech was a declaration against the ancient constitution of the realm. The home rule bill had convinced the country that legislation must be controlled by a chamber which would not betray

At the conclusion of Balfour's speech, the amendments were agreed to, 278 to 37, and the house adjourned. While Gladstone was talking it was whispered on all sides that the great Liberal leader was making his last speech to the commons. His delayed attack on the lords, delighted the radicals and the Irish members.
