A Clown's Tragic Death.

Auguste, the great French clown, whose reputation was European, has come by his death in a circus at Dresden under circumstances peculiarly dramatic. He was making one of his usual "saute de carpe," amid the applause of the crowd, when, with an awkwardness that was irresistibly comic, he fell. He not only fell, but on the ground indulged in contortions that delighted his public, and, to crown all, simulated death, lying rigid and motionless in the middle of the arena. It was the supreme art of clownery and was recognized and rewarded by the applause of an intelligent audience. They had seen him do this kind of thing before, but never so well. However, as he remained motionless, a groom went up to him and found that again and for the last time he had deceived his public. The vertical column was broken, and the man was dead. He was known as a French clown, but his name was William Bridge. It is not easy to create an entirely new circus clown, and poor Auguste did that.—Paris Letter.

Swiss Retaliation.

Since the famous Melin tariff of 1892 became the law in France the commercial relations between that country and Switzerland have been the cause of much vexation on both sides. The Swiss are determined to retaliate by every means in their power. The latest enactment of the federal government is directed against the French newspapers, some of which have a considerable circulation in French Switzerland. Hitherto these papers have been dispatched in bundles by the trains. The moment the new law is put in operation they will no longer be permitted to enter the country in this way. Each copy must pay a small fee of 1 centime. It is true that a centime is only about a fifth of a half penny, but the new tax will practically raise the price of French half penny papers to a penny and of penny papers to 3 halfpence. A very large number of French papers nowadays belong to the first category, and of these it will be seen the price is to be exactly doubled.—London News.

An Aged Minister's Wooing.

Phoebe Irwin, a spinster of 55 years, brings suit against the Rev. Christopher Lazenburg, a superannuated Methodist 80 years of age, for a sum of money for blighted affections. Lazenburg has preached in various portions of this state and is widely known in the conference. Plaintiff avers in her petition that defendant sought her hand in marriage; that his suit was accepted and the day for the nuptials set. The reverend gentleman, however, had occasion to make a trip to Paris before the time appointed for the wedding, and when he returned his affection for the plaintiff had considerably cooled off, and he wished to disregard his solemn promise. The law to be pursued by the defense has not yet been made public, but it will probably be misplaced confidence on the part of the defendant.—Ottawa (La.) Dispatch.

Why Does the Beard Hasten to Be Gray?

A New Yorker not in his first youth said: "My beard is 20 years younger than my hair and looks 30 years older—that is, as you see, it is almost entirely white, while there are comparatively few even gray hairs on my head. They are not in evidence, either, while the whiteness of my beard jumps to the eyes, as the French say. Will some barber or other capillary wise man answer this conundrum, Why does the beard grow white so much sooner than the hair?"—New York Sun.

A King's Ears.

One night shortly before the taking of Maillezeis, while d'Aubigne, as was apparently his custom, was sleeping with M. de la Force in a room opening out of Henry's bedroom, he said to his companion, "La Force, our master is a skinflint and the most ungrateful man on the face of the earth." La Force, who was half asleep, did not hear, and muttered, "What do you say, d'Aubigne?" upon which the king, who was noted for his quickness of hearing, quietly said, "He says I am a skinflint and the most ungrateful man on the face of the earth." The story is unfortunately not quite authentic, for it is only given in the notes of the early editions of the memoirs and does not appear in the manuscript. But in his history d'Aubigne relates a similar story in which when his bedfellow did not hear his remark, the king chimed in with "How deaf you are, don't you hear that he says I want to marry my sister to several brothers-in-law at once?" "Go to sleep," coolly replied d'Aubigne, "we have plenty more things to say about you."—Macmillan's Magazine.

Franks of Globe Lightning.

A very singular story is told concerning the vagaries of one mass of globe lightning. A tailor in the Rue St. Jacques, in the neighborhood of the Val de Grace, was getting his dinner one day during a thunderstorm, when he heard a loud clap, and soon the chimney board fell down, and a globe of fire as big as a child's head came out quietly and moved slowly about the room at a small height above the floor. The spectator, in conversation afterward with M. Rabinet, of the Academie des Sciences, said it looked like a good sized kitten rolled up into a ball and moving without showing its paws. It was bright and shining, yet it felt no sensation of heat. The globe came near his feet, but by moving them aside he avoided the contact. After trying several excursions in different directions it rose vertically to the height of his head—which he threw back to prevent it touching him—steered toward a hole in the chimney above the mantelpiece and made its way into the flue. Shortly afterwards—"when I supposed it had had time to reach the top," the tailor said—there was a terrible explosion, which destroyed the upper part of the chimney and threw the fragments onto the roofs of some adjoining buildings, which they broke through.—Chambers' Journal.

Dyspepsia Cured

"My wife has been a great sufferer with Dyspepsia. Three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla have perfectly cured her. At times the lightest food would distress her terribly. She could not sleep and had dreadful sick headaches. She tried different medicines, but none did her any good. At last Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and two bottles gave relief—made her perfectly well. She is not now troubled with any sick headaches, can eat heartily and sleep well."—Mrs. Otis Merritt, Addison, Maine.
