

HEART DISEASE 30 YEARS!

Short Breath, Palpitation. Mr. G. W. McKinsey, postmaster of Kokomo, Ind., and a brave ex-soldier, says: "I had been severely troubled with heart disease ever since leaving the army at the close of the late war. I was troubled with palpitation and shortness of breath. I could not sleep on my left side and had pain around my heart. I became so ill that I was much alarmed, and fortunately my attention was called to

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

I decided to try it. The first bottle made a decided improvement in my condition, and five bottles have completely cured me." G. W. MCKINSEY, P. M., Kokomo, Ind. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1.00 per bottle for 5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

THE BUTCHER BIRD.

HE KILLS FOR PLEASURE AND PUTS HIS VICTIMS OUT TO DRY.

He Hanga Snakes, Birds and Chipmunks on Thorny Bushes—A Veritable Terror of the Woods—A Born Thief as Well as Murderer—The Half Breed Idea.

No bird native to this country is so little known and surely none has such striking habits of life as the shrike, or butcher bird. He is a member of a family comprising some 200 species, of which only one well defined subfamily is resident in North America. Bold, daring, handsome, he is at once the braggart and the bean of the woods. At a little distance a southerner would readily mistake him for the mocking bird.

His bluish gray plumage, tail tipped with white and broad black patch across each eye give him a trim, jaunty air quite pleasing to the eye, but, alas, a dreaded object to smaller and weaker birds. His habitat is northern North America, and though he breeds in the high ground of New England and New York he grows more common after the Canadian line is crossed.

The shrike is a born tyrant. Not content with killing and devouring all insects large enough to attract his fancy, he attacks snakes, moles, mice and small birds whenever opportunity offers. His disposition is as unlovable at home as abroad, for seldom are two or more seen together but they are engaged in an ugly family quarrel. They are truly carnivorous, and except for certain weaknesses of bone and muscle would rank as true birds of prey.

There is one strange, uncanny characteristic, however, which separates this woodland bully from all known birds. Naturalists have watched it, studied it, pondered over it and written long pages of inexplicable explanations of it, and common people have doubted in their superstition or ignorance whether it was the doing of a bird or a demon in bird form. Today it remains as deep a mystery as it was 100 years ago.

This is the puzzle: The butcher bird in his riotous love of killing slays many more victims than he has any possible use for. He seems to do it for the mere fun of the thing. Instead of leaving the dead, however, he carries them one by one to some thorny hedge or tree and there impales them in all sorts of fantastic positions in the branches. It gives one a start to come out of a piece of woods when gunning and see a thorn tree laden with a ghastly crop of locusts, toads, sparrows, grass snakes, lizards and chipmunks.

If the shrike ever returned to feed upon his grim hoard, there would be an explanation of his conduct, and he would be credited with the epicurean taste of a thoroughbred vulture who likes things "a bit gamey." But such is not the case. The weird fruit hangs for days upon the limbs, and if hawks or crows do not find and steal it it will rot until only a few tiny white skeletons remain to tell of the massacre.

Comparatively few dwellers in the backwoods know this eccentricity of the butcher bird, and hence arise many curious and apparently well authenticated stories of trees that catch birds in their branches and of storms that rained down toads and lizards, so that the trees were full of them.

The butcher bird is a born thief as well as a murderer and often meets his death while hopelessly endeavoring to kill and carry off a tame pet bird from a cage or to rob a hunter's cabin of fresh meat. Any tidbit he finds he will steal, even if only to suspend it from a locust bough hard by. The Canadian fur traders and trappers despise him heartily and never lose a chance to kill him. The half breeds call him "Whiskey Joe" and claim he is half drunk all the time, and hence does these foolish things.

He will spy on the most carefully hidden trap and always manage to purloin the bait without being caught. The wild country north of the great lakes is a favorite haunt of these butchers, and the Indians who hunt and sell furs to the Hudson Bay company complain bitterly of the depredations of "Whiskey Joe."

The shrike builds a bulky, somewhat elaborate nest of heavy sticks below, and upon this foundation a warm covering of bark, leaves and grass is laid. It is usually in some low tree, and the eggs, which are somewhat smaller than a pigeon's, are decidedly pretty. They are of a grayish green mottled, speckled and scratched with reddish brown. The young nestlings begin their education by wrangling and fighting as soon as hatched, in which amiable diversion their fond parents set them striking and perpetual examples.—New York World.

A Will on a Canceled Bond. John Morris, who died in this city leaving an estate valued at $2,500, had written the following upon the back of a canceled bond of the Milwaukie Building and Loan association, No. 5, which expired April 7, 1889. It was taken as expressing his testamentary desire and was probated accordingly after proper identification: PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15, 1894. This shall be found, valid, when I am gone, and, mamma, I shall leave all to you, and you, and mamma, shall be a darling over Annie, and if mamma shall be a darling over Annie, and if what is left be split divided among them. It won't be long before they will mis me. John Morris.

Philadelphia Ledger. A Good Idea. "Yesterday," said Joe, the painter, "I discovered a very simple method of avoiding payment of tips at the restaurant. When the bill is presented, I pay the exact amount and nothing more. The waiter looks daggers. Then I get up and say: "My compliments, your establishment is very well managed. I have made a capital dinner."

"Pretend to take him for the landier, d'ye see?"—Petit Parisien.

AT THE MEADOW GATE.

To be here, love, were ever sweet, With thy fair figure drawing nearer. Each bending flower that trips thy feet Has made the dewy pathway dearer. What waiting heart that does not know The step that quickens in its beating? When cheeks, though lips are silent, glow With pleasure, is there need of greeting? If dear, thy form with feeling stirr's Till in thine eyes the lowlight flashes And eyes become love's messengers, Why prison them in drooping lashes? —Charles K. Bolton in Detroit Free Press.

SOBERING UP IN TURKISH BATHS.

The Eibitons Rounder's Sure Method of Having a Clear Head Next Morning. "Hardly a week passes," said the manager of an up town Turkish bath establishment, the doors of which are never closed, "that we are not called upon to certify to the fact that some gentleman has passed the night with us. The all night business is to a great extent made up from gentlemen who have drunk a little more than is good for them. They do not want to go home in that condition and are anxious to be all right in the morning.

"They come in here, take a sweat, a shampoo, a plunge and a rubdown and are then prepared for a refreshing sleep, awakening in the morning little the worse for the indiscretion of the early evening before. That the explanation of their whereabouts is not satisfactory to wives or parents in many instances I judge from the frequency of application for proof of the same.

"Not long since a lawyer's clerk went over the register of our patrons for a period of two years, and, fortunately perhaps for the gentleman in whose interests the research was made, found his autograph (written quite frequently in a very unsteady hand) over 50 times in that period. I have since heard that this proof prevented the filing of a divorce suit that would have created a sensation within the select 150 of the chosen Four Hundred. I am thinking very seriously of getting up a printed form, like one I am told was once used in a Denver bathhouse, which when filled up would read something like this:

(Seal.) Scrubard's Turkish Bath, New York, Oct. 6, 1894. This is to certify that Mr. Small has entered this establishment at 11 p. m., Oct. 5, and left at 10 a. m. of this date. J. BROMIDE, M. D., Resident Physician.

To Whiten the Hands.

Concealed red hands may be whitened by using a few grains of chloride of lime added to warm soft water for washing. All rings and bracelets must be removed before this is used, as the chloride of lime will tarnish them. A soap containing this ingredient may be prepared as follows: White powdered castile soap, 1 pound; dry chloride of lime, 1 1/2 to 2 ounces. Mix and beat this up in a mortar to a soft mass with a sufficient quantity of rectified spirit. Divide the mass into tablets and wrap it up in oil silk. It may be scented by adding to the mixture a couple of drams of oil of verbena. In using chloride of lime it is very important to be careful to avoid getting any of the powder into the eyes, as it is exceedingly irritating and may even cause blindness.—Popular Magazine.

Lamont's Hobby.

Politics is Lamont's hobby. Dan would rather talk politics than eat. Mrs. Lamont once told me that she was frequently awakened at night by Dan's talking politics in his sleep. His knowledge of New York politics is encyclopedic. He knows every politician in New York city of any note and could off-hand give a good biographical sketch of them all. He knows the name of every member of every congressional, state, senatorial, assembly and county Democratic committee. He's thoroughly familiar with the political history not only of this country and New York, but of every other state in the Union and of every country in Europe. Lamont is not in politics for what there is in it in a financial sense. He's in it simply because he loves it. It's his hobby.—Rochester Post-Express.

Warmth In Old Age.

In old age remember that warmth and an even temperature are just as essential to the welfare of the aged as proper food. Many old persons die from bronchitis, for example, induced by exposure to a temperature which, harmless to the young and middle aged, acts severely on the lungs of the old. The bedroom of an old person should be kept at a heat of not less than 60 degrees, and natural chills should be especially guarded against. In respect of the feeding of the aged, second childhood is like the first childhood. "Little and often," is the motto, and old people should have their food given them in a state of easy digestion, above all things.—New York Dispatch.

Not at Breakfast.

English Sparrow—Mr. Swallow, join me at breakfast tomorrow. I have invited a company of gay birds, and we will have a jolly time. Mr. Swallow—Make it dinner, and I will accept. Look at my swallow tail. I don't want to be taken for a Chicago bird.—New York Herald.

Reassured.

"Jonah," expostulated the whale, "do keep still." "Certainly," answered the famous man, "now that I know where I am, I'm sure but I had been caught in a folding bed, don't you know?"—Detroit News-Tribune.

The most splendid pair of shoes on record were those worn by Sir Walter Raleigh on great court occasions. They were of buff leather, covered with precious stones and valued at $35,000. In shipping potatoes in extremely cold weather paper inside and outside of the barrel affords the best protection known.

Athletes.

One and all bear witness to Alcock's Porous Plaster as a valuable for their ailments. James Robinson, the athletic trainer at Princeton college, Princeton, N. J., says:

"I have found it imperative to have pure and simple remedies on hand in case of cuts, bruises, strains, sprains, colds, rheumatism, etc. Shortly after entering upon my profession, I discovered such a remedy in Alcock's Porous Plaster. I tried other plasters but found them too harsh and irritating. Alcock's Porous Plaster gives almost instantaneous relief, and their strengthening power is remarkable. In case of weak back, put two plasters on the small of the back and in a short time you will be capable of quite severe exercise. In "sprint" and "distance" races and jumping, the muscles and the feet and legs sometimes weaken. This can invariably be relieved by cutting the plaster in narrow strips, as a to give free motion and applying on muscles affected. Brandreth's Pills rectify the secretions.

Judge Saunders

Says that For Rheumatism Hood's Sarsaparilla is the Best.

Judge T. H. Saunders of Osceola, Neb., senior vice-commander and present commander of J. F. Reynolds Post, No. 26, G. A. R., voluntarily writes: "I was in the army four years, was wounded and contracted sciatica and rheumatism. I have suffered ever since. I lost the use of my left leg and side, and have tried almost every medicine known, and I think I have had the best physicians in the country, but failed to get any relief. Every spring I was flat on my back, and must say that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the Best medicine I have ever taken. It has done me the most good. It was recommended to me for rheumatism, and I am satisfied and know that it will do all that you claim Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures for it. I do not want to say that it will raise a fellow from the dead; but it will come the nearest to doing it of any medicine I have ever known." T. H. SAUNDERS, Osceola, Nebraska.
