

THE CAPITAL JOURNAL

(DAILY AND WEEKLY.)

BY HOFER BROTHERS.

THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 1895.

Wheat is 38 cents a bushel at Albany.

Prosperity's surety comes log-get dish to catch some.

Oh, education, what sins are committed in thy name!

Senator Allison is for bimetalism by international agreement.

Honor the battleship Oregon but not by taxing the school children.

Ladies, have you seen THE JOURNAL premium—"The Queen of Fashions?"

The state of New York now has a law making Lincoln's birthday a holiday, Feb. 12.

The state secretary of the P. & O. party is passing the hat to run his Salem slander mill.

The state has no use for cannons a $2500 a year to help corporations avert the rights of citizens.

There are lots of independent Americans who rather like the idea of independent American bimetalism.

No use writing long letters to the Oregonian telling how to restore prosperity. Better vote for a Republican president.

Out of the city hall controversy has come much useful light, but it does not appear that the city has been any great loser, so far.

South Dakota is to abolish its militia. The people in these times find more use for pruning hooks and plows, than for swords and spears.

If all men could see it was their duty to make the roads passable along their own property, and act upon it, what a blessed improvement it would be.

Before bicycles came in use no one used the roads, but those who had to. Now that they are used for pleasure they will be improved.

If there is anything I might have done that I have not done to kill the Democratic party I would like to know what it is.—Grover Cleveland.

The St. Paul railroad company recently discharged eleven engineers and thirty-five firemen on one division because they frequented saloons while off duty.

If Edward Swartz interfered to save his mother's life and thereby lost his own, he will be saved along with the rest. What greater thing can a man do than lay down his life for another?

It is a fact that Edward Swartz took his mother's part against a drunken father. He died for it. There is a place in heaven for that boy, although he did not make a profession of religion before he died.

The editor of THE JOURNAL has put a half mile of good road in good condition and feels prouder of it than of any work he ever did in his life. If you wish to feel the proud satisfaction of being a benefactor to the poor horses go and do likewise.

In spite of the hard times the Oregon press shows marked signs of improvement editorially as well as typographically. We note especially the Albany Herald, the Albany Democrat, the Eugene Guard and Register and The Dalles Times Mountaineer.

Mr. Kincaid's fight to get rid of the railroad commission is the battle of the people against a useless board that is entirely controlled by the corporations, to protect against whom, it is paid by the people but turns around and protects the corporations.

A valley exchange says: The Eastern Oregon papers have a great deal to say about irrigation. The Willamette valley papers don't need to have much to say on the subject. Our irrigation is all right, without any irrigation societies. Such a society would be of as much use to the Willamette valley as the present railroad commission.

KNEW NOT WHAT THEY DID.

The question of whether members of Congress knew, when they voted for the bill that demonized silver, that such would be the effect when it became a law has long been discussed. Certainly the weight of testimony is that they did not. Many of them were friends of silver and did not realize what they had done for some years thereafter. We print the statements of the men who voted for the measure, which it seems should be convincing.

In connection with the charge that I advocated the bill which demonitized the standard silver dollar, or of its dropping the silver dollar from our system of coins, as were those distinguished Senators, Blaine and Voorhees, who were then members of the house, and each of whom, a few days since, interrogated the other: "Did you know it was dropped when the bill passed?" "No," said Blaine; "did you?" "No," said Mr. Voorhees; "I do not think there were three members of the house that knew it."—Judge Kelley, of Pennsylvania, in Congressional Record, volume 7, part 2, Forty-Fifth Congress, second session, page 1,805.

If [the bill demonitizing silver] never was understood by either House of Congress, I say that with a full knowledge of the facts. No newspaper reporter, and they are the most vigilant men I ever saw in obtaining information, discovered that it had been done. Senator Beck, of Kentucky, in Congressional Record, volume 7, part 1, Forty-Fifth Congress, second session, page 299.

It passed by fraud in the House, never having been printed in advance, being a substitute for the printed bill; never having been read at the clerk's desk, the bill having been dispensed with by an impression that the bill made no material alteration in the coinage laws; it was passed without discussion, debate being cut off by operation of the previous question. It was passed, to my certain information, under such circumstances that the fraud escaped the attention of some of the most watchful as well as the ablest statesmen in congress at that time.

"Aye, sir, it was a fraud that smells to heaven. It was a fraud that will stink in the nose of posterity, and for which some persons must give account at the day of retribution."—Mr. Bright, of Tennessee, in Congressional Record, volume 7, part 1, second session, Forty-Fifth Congress, page 581.

Did the people demonitize silver? Never! It cannot be even fairly said that Congress did it. It was done in a corner, darkly. It was done at the instigation of the bondholders and other money kings, who now, with upturned eyes, deplore the wickedness we exhibit in even asking the question, who did this great wrong against the toiling masses of our people?—Senator Morgan, in Congressional Record, Dec. 12, 1877, page 144.

This legislation was in the Forty-Second Congress, Feb. 12, 1873, by a bill to regulate the mints of the United States, which practically abolished silver as money by failing to provide for the coinage of the silver dollar, it was not discussed, as shown by the record, and neither members of Congress nor the people understood the scope of the legislation.—Joseph Cannon, of Illinois, in Congressional Record, volume 4, part 6, Forty-Fourth Congress, first session, page 193.

Why the coinage act of 1873, which forbids the coinage of the silver dollar, was passed no one at this day can give a good reason.—Senator Boggs, of Missouri, in Congressional Record volume 4, part 5, Forty-Fourth Congress, first session, page 4,178.

The coinage act of 1873, unaccompanied by any written report upon the subject, and unknown to the members of Congress, who, without opposition, allowed it to pass under the belief, if not assurance, that it made no alteration in the value of current coins, changed the unit of value from silver to gold.—Mr. Richard, of Illinois, in Congressional Record, July 13, 1876, page 581.

But when the secret history of this bill of 1873 comes to be told it will disclose the fact that the house of Representatives intended to coin both metals upon the French relation instead of our own, which was the true scientific position with reference to this object, in 1873, but the bill was afterwards doctored, if I may use the term, and I use it in an offensive sense of course.—Senator Allison, of Iowa, in Congressional Record, volume 7, part 2, Forty-Fifth Congress, second session, page 1,083.

I have before me the record of the proceedings of this House on the passage of that measure, which no man can read without being convinced that the measure and the method of its passage through this House was a "colossal swindle." I assert that the measure never had the sanction of this House, and it does not possess the moral force of law.—Mr. Hon. H. C. Indiana, in Congressional Record, volume 4, part 6, Forty-Fourth Congress, first session, appendix, page 195.

WEATHER-CROP BULLETIN.

Director Pague Forecasts a Dry Season for Oregon.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture—weather bureau—issues the following weather-crop bulletin No. 4, of the Oregon State Weather Service, for the week ending Tuesday, April 23, 1895, for Western Oregon:

Weather: General and heavy rain occurred on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, especially so on Tuesday. Since then fair weather has prevailed with a rising temperature, Sunday and Monday of this week being especially warm, the warmest so far this year. The maximum temperature ranged from 50° to 80°, the minimum from 36° to 50°. The rainfall was in amount from one-half to three quarters of an inch, except in the immediate coast counties, where it amounted to over an inch. On the 16th heavy wind prevailed; on the 15th, 19th and 20th light frost occurred.

Crops: The rainfall was not needed yet no injury resulted from it. The frosts were light and little, if any, damage resulted from them. The warmth and sun shine of the past five days have been of great benefit to all vegetation. The cool nights retard rapid development, but facilitate more healthy growth. The general opinion of the correspondents is that the frosts have, so far, done little, if any, damage; in a very few exposed localities some slight damage resulted.

Peaches and apricots are about over blooming. Cherries, pears, plums and strawberries are in full bloom. In the southern counties apples are in bloom, in the northern counties about ready to bloom. Only an unusual frost—such as that which occurred in May of 1894—will prevent an unusually large fruit crop. Seeding is about over. Fall sown grain is making a good growth and spring grain is generally above ground. Hops are growing rapidly. Grass is good and the stock is improving. Warmer nights are desired. An occasional rain shower and an absence of frost will allow this year of bounteous crops of all kinds over that portion of Oregon west of the Cascade mountains.

While showers usually occur during May and June and sometimes general heavy rains occur, yet the conditions this year that a dry season appears to be probable.

B. S. PAGUE, Director.

Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, says he stands on the Republican national platform on silver, "favoring American bimetalism and is strongly opposed to the opening of the mints to the free coinage of silver products of other countries until an international bimetallic agreement has been reached."

Senator Thurston predicts that the next congress will give no financial relief, for, while there is a majority for free silver in the senate, the president undoubtedly stands committed to the gold standard. So soon as one political party is in power in all branches Mr Thurston predicts legislation on the subject.

Of course, all this is very uncertain. Mr. Thurston means bimetalism as we have it now, whereby all silver and paper money is only money when redeemed in gold.

If American fabrics can at all overcome the enormous competition of English goods in England, is it not clear that they can before long gain an entrance into every market in the world?—New York Herald, March 18, 1895.

Hardly so. If we gain an entrance into the English market for American goods, it must be at the expense of American labor.—American Economist.

It is now proven that cattle cannot be wintered on gravel.—JOURNAL.

It has not been proven. We know of cattle that had nothing to eat all winter but gravel, and they are still alive and ready for their meals.—F.O.L.

We are glad to know the Post editor is alive, but we were (not referring to him).

When the expert report of the city's expert superintendent upon the expert architect are justly referred to a new expert, another expert will probably be employed to expert the expert's expert work. Now another expert should be appointed to expert the tax payers to see that they do not get more than they pay for. Bah!

Republicanism for the people, not for the rings, bosses and hoodlums, is the only kind of Republicanism the people have any use for.

The beautiful weather continues and the last bit of good land in the low places can be put under cultivation.

The city council has fought out another round in the battle to get a piece of public work honestly constructed.

Scrofula From Childhood

"My mother has been afflicted with scrofula in her head since her childhood."

She is now in her 61st year. She has also suffered from weakness in her back for which she never expected any relief. She has faithfully tried Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has freed her system from scrofula, cured burning pains in her feet and limbs and also a pain in her left breast which prevented her from lying on that side for fourteen years. It has made her feel many years younger.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

She has taken four bottles of the medicine. We cannot recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla too highly. IMA R. VANGLIDER, Elms Green, Indiana.
