

KENTUCKY FOOL DEMOCRATS.

Cleveland is a great man. First he and his man Carlisle, who was a free silver senator, told the Kentucky Democrats that they should not adopt a silver platform, even after nearly all the county conventions had declared for it. And they yielded.

Then Cleveland told them that if they put up Pat Martin for governor he would beat him. And he has done it. The poor fool Democrats knew and felt that the rank and file fools wanted Martin and so they put him up for governor and he made a fool canvass according to his fool convictions as a silver man and the office-holders and Democratic bankers and capitalists who worship Cleveland went to work to elect the Republican candidate and succeeded.

Poor Kentucky fool Democrats! They will know better next time than to cross the superior wisdom of a man of destiny. What business have the poor fool Democrats of Kentucky advocating silver or anything else that the people want, when Cleveland and Great Britain have provided a good enough financial system for them?

They have been taught a good lesson and will next year no doubt obediently fall in line and cast their votes for the great mogul of British goldbugdom for a third term. Pat Martin and General Blackburn had better get rid of their 16 to 1 Lily and get into line with DEMOCRACY.

"GOD BE MERCIFUL."

That was the hymn so very appropriately sung at the conclusion of the Vanderbilt-Mariboro u g h wedding. The choir should have added, "to me, a sinner." It will take an infinite amount of mercy to forgive the folly of the Vanderbilts in wasting their millions on such a son-in-law.

God was merciful enough to the Duke to allow him to get his wedding presents landed in New York without paying duty. The Duke is a fair sample of a great many of the swell crowd, both in this country and in Europe, for smallness and meanness. He revealed enough of his true nature to make all sensible people think that Miss Ten-Million Consuelo will come tramping back home with her wings badly scorched from a brief flutter about the candles of royalty.

NO BRITISH SYSTEM.

The elections Tuesday are not a victory for the single gold standard. The feeling that we do not want a British monetary system is stronger than ever in the hearts of the people.

The Cleveland administration threw its influence against Maria and Blackburn, the silver leaders in Kentucky, showing that Democracy is no longer a matter of principle with them. It has given away to plutocracy, pure and simple.

The American people must stand up for an American financial system, regardless of the wishes and dictations of John Bull. The contraction of our currency upon a gold basis, and that basis at the mercy of foreign creditors, is repugnant to our ideas of a people's government.

A subscriber says we should pay some more attention to the Pendleton Tribune editor. He is too small. His name does not appear on the paper he edits. He, like the paper he edits, is owned by someone else. There is too much of such irresponsible editorial work.

THE JOURNAL Saturday will contain a large supplement of the social news and the woman news of the city written up in an attractive manner.

POLITICAL BANKING.

The arrest of George Boggs, the former City Treasurer of Tacoma, is not likely to give the city and part of the $212,000 whose loss it has been caused to mourn through his agency, but it may discourage other officials from following in his footsteps. Mr. Boggs managed the municipal politics of Tacoma on the dangerous principle of going into political partnership with banks. He deposited immense amounts of city money in various favored banks, with the apparent understanding that it should not be drawn out. In return the banks went actively into politics, put up heavy contributions to campaign funds, and acted generally as the financial backers of the Treasurer and his friends. The result of this policy appears not to be entirely satisfactory to anybody. The banks have failed, the city is next door to bankruptcy, and Boggs is in jail.

On the whole we know of no business in which the maxim that honesty is the best policy is more useful than in banking. A bank's credit is as delicate as a woman's reputation, and when a banker begins to indulge in shady schemes the end of his rope is not far off. Perhaps insolvency is not the worst he has to fear, as the local young Napoleon of finance, "Dick" McDonald, has found out.

It is especially bad policy for a bank to go into politics. If public deposits are accepted with the idea of keeping them indefinitely through political favoritism, and loans are made on that basis, the bank is at the mercy of any political enemy whom the chances of war may bring into office. It is needless to dwell upon the disadvantages of the political banking system for the taxpayers. Tacoma has burned her fingers so badly that when she gets them out of flour and cotton she may be expected to keep them away from the fire.—S. F. Examiner.

THE CONVERSATION BORE.

We all know him. He is the man in whose conversation the personal pronoun "I" predominates. He has lived for ages, and still we find him in every group that gathers for social converse. No matter what subject is broached, it is not long until he has a monopoly of it. Let some one lift it out of a personal groove, and essay to discuss general topics, and the result is repetition of the same performance on the part of the bore.

Does he suppose that he or his business is of all-absorbing interest? What a pity there is not some way to get rid of him. But he is yet in his youth. He will live as long as time lasts. It is useless to try to educate him to be something different. The only thing to do is to avoid him as much as possible, and when it becomes necessary to remain in his society, do the best you can at felling his attempts at self-discussion.

The Register thinks Senator Alley has bitter feelings against Eugene. The Register does not know Col. Alley. He is not a man who harbors bitter feelings. He is a hard fighter for what he believes is right, but he is open and above board, too generous to an enemy for his own good. As far as being guilty of the vice the Register speaks of, he is innocent as a child. And the people of Eugene know that, Mr. Register, better than you seem to.

Folk & Co. will get up another Salem directory. It is some time since this Portland firm has bled this city. The last directory they got out took a thousand dollars out of the city for advertising in its pages and covers. They will now ask every Salem business man to give them an ad. Better spend your money in the columns of Salem newspapers.

The accounts of the conversion of the daughter of an American plutocrat into an English duchess are enough to disgust any intelligent man with American title-worship and snobocracy in general.

Football is overcoming all prejudice and is attracting more attention than baseball ever did. If the Salem team will keep cool heads and tackle lower they can beat any college team in Oregon.

ONE CENT DAILY FEATURES.

A large, complete telegraphic report. A large and complete foreign news department.

Detailed and accurate reports of social, local and personal news. Society events and woman news written up by Salem's only woman newspaper reporter. A daily social news department.

It is getting to be understood by many that THE JOURNAL is on the inside for Associated Press news.

A special edition Saturday with two pages of social review of the week.

A Saturday page of literary news and criticisms of new books, and symposium by best writers.

And Platt has control of the election machinery in New York for 1896. What's the matter with Platt? Isn't he a decent boss than Croker? If we've got to be bossed let it be done decently!

Oregon Republicans can study the election returns with little profit. They reveal nothing but disgust with Democracy on one hand and hypocrisy on the other.

New York City prefers to take its bossism and corruption straight. Boss Platt is not in it with Boss Croker.

SATURDAY'S JOURNAL will be a home—more home news than ever.

To forget and forgive easily is better than to carry on a feud.

Original.

John Hookham Frere was a scholar and a man of much literary ability, but one of those whose work, for some reason, finds a very slight hearing. But even if his literary work should be quite forgotten the stories of his absence of mind will live as long as incongruous error continues to amuse.

One day he sat repeating some verses to Mr. John Murray in Mr. Murray's office, and his host became so interested in the poem that he asked the poet to go home with him to dinner and continue the recitation. Mr. Frere, startled to find it so late, excused himself. He had been married that morning, he said, and it was already past the hour when he had promised his wife to be ready for their journey into the country.

Another such story rests on the authority of his wife herself. Mr. Frere had just been introduced to her at an evening party and offered to take her down stairs to procure some refreshment. He became so interested in their conversation, however, that he drank the glass of negus he had poured for her and was about to conduct her up stairs when she laughingly remonstrated with him for having forgotten her needs.

"This," she said, "convinced me that my new acquaintance was, at any rate, very different from most of the young men around us!"—Youth's Companion.

Unique Advertising.

A tale is told of Robert Bonner and of his belief in advertising. One day he engaged a whole page of a newspaper and repeated a two line advertisement upon it over and over again. It must have been repeated 5,000 times upon the page in the smallest type.

"Why do you waste your money, Robert?" asked a friend. "I noticed that same line so often. Would not half a page have answered your purpose?"

"Half a page would never have caused you to ask the question," replied Mr. Bonner. "At least five people will ask that to every line, was the way I figured it."—New York News.

A Pious Maiden.

Mlle. Jonjon visited one day a village church and began to sing with her usual enthusiasm. There was a powerful echo in the old church, and each sound that she uttered was distinctly repeated. This did not disturb her in the least, for she at once exclaimed, "It is only the good God who is answering me."—Paris Figaro.

FOOTBALL AT CORVALLIS.

Anxiety Over the Outcome of Next Saturday's Game.

As the day approaches for the initial football game the O. A. C. is to play in the series of intercollegiate games, interest in what the result will be, increases says the Corvallis Times. It is to be played on O. A. C. field next Saturday, and will be between the O. A. C. and Pacific University eleven. Increased interest is placed on the result, because of the ugly fact that if O. A. C. should suffer defeat, it will shut the eleven out from further contests for the pennant, a fact that, since they have a coach engaged to train them until after Thanksgiving, would leave them in an embarrassing situation. That is to say—their guns would be loaded, cocked and primed, but there would be no enemy on which to draw a bead and pull their triggers. Interest is augmented too, by the fact that it is known that in the O. A. C. team there is excellent material, but on account of the late start made in beginning the work of training which leaves the players not in first class condition for the game, the eleven is handicapped and the prospect for them to come out of the game victorious, is by no means flattering. All this conspires to awaken all classes to a realization that there is danger of defeat in the air, and leads to a discussion of the facts and a universally expressed hope that next Saturday's game may end in victory for the home team. In fact interest in football is so aroused that juvenile teams with members scarcely out of swaddling clothes are in training all over town, and contests are almost as numerous as there are backyards and alley ways for them to happen in.

The O. A. C. eleven is hard at work, and Coach Downing is proving to be the right man in the right place. Four ten minute innings with a three minute rest after each, are played every evening, and are followed by a run and a rub down at the dormitory. Several new players are developing strength and aptitude for the game, and if the trick of interference is satisfactorily improved during the current week, there will be fair chance of a victory, Saturday.

All the merchants in town have agreed to close their places of business during the progress of the game Saturday afternoon. The Pacific will arrive by the west side, and will be launched at Caithorn Hall. The "kick off" will be made promptly at three o'clock. A grand stand, large enough to accommodate 200 or 300 has been erected for the accommodation of spectators at the admission price of 10 cents per head. Admission to the grounds will be at the old price of 25 cents. Arrangements have been made with the O. C. & E. people to carry passengers from Corvallis to Albany after the game, and a large delegation of visitors is expected from our sister city down the river.
