A GOOD MOVE.

To Prevent the Spread of Contagious Diseases.

Mayor Bishop and the committee on health and police, of which Alderman Burrows is chairman, have determined to insist on compliance with the ordinance requiring that a danger flag be displayed at houses where contagious diseases are present.

The penalty for a failure to observe this ordinance is a fine $100 or less, and every person should take due notice as the city officers propose to see that the law is strictly enforced from this time on.

The colors of the flags to be displayed for different contagious diseases are as follows: Smallpox—yellow. Scarlet fever—red. Diphtheria—white. Meningitis—blue. Any other—green.

Better cut that out and preserve it for future reference.

No-To-Bac for Fifty Cents. Guaranteed to cure all cases, makes weak non-stomach, blood pure. 50c. All drug stores.

Old Soldiers

If you served ninety days in the Union Army or Navy during the War of the Rebellion, and made a HOMESTEAD ENTRY OF LESS THAN 160 ACRES PRIOR TO JUNE 22, 1874, you are entitled to an additional right which I will buy, paying highest price. No middle men, you deal direct. Widows and minor orphans of such deceased soldiers have the same right. JERE COLLINS, HELENA, MONTANA.

Her Idol Shattered.

From the Washington Star. She was a girl from Cairo, Illinois. In her wide eyes was the far away expression as of one who dreams at high noon. This was her first visit to the great white Capitol. With one of her male relatives—an elderly man—she was seated at a table in the House Restaurant.

"The applause of listening senators to command"—she may have been unconsciously repeating this line to herself, for her lips moved, and she was a solitary girl. Her elderly male relative watched her without indicating the amusement he felt.

She was wrapt. He was bored. He perceived that her mental exaltation was almost too great for speech. Her American history was yet green in her mind, he reflected. Here she was, under the shadow of the beautiful dome, surrounded by the custodians of the nation. Here she was, inhaling incense from the sacred flames of Liberty—capital L. The fixed, pallid countenances of Declaration signers, Websterian periods, voices hoarse with the rage of patriotism, fiery sparks from the clash of intellects, air-swinging arms, defying the world, right or wrong; the brows of statesmen hectic flushed with love of country—the mind of the girl from Cairo, Illinois, was a jumble: Her coffee grew cold.

"—And if they do, I'll sulk 'em! Yes, sir, I'll sulk 'em! Grown confounded self-righteous all of a sudden, haven't they? I remember the time when any one of the three of 'em—" The Cairo girl suddenly came to and looked around. The man with her smiled complacently.

"—Try to bamboozle me out of this, after I've worked on it for four years? Not much, they can't! The thing's going through! It's got to go through! I'll make it so sultry for those fellows—" The Cairo girl's memory was groping among the files of cartoons she had seen.

"—Oh, now I know who he is!" she finally said, and she mentioned a name to the man with her. He nodded.

"Why," she said, "he is always represented in a frock coat, with his right hand behind the two first buttons, and so dignified! Can it be possible—"

"—And I'll just casually happen to mention on the floor that little scheme of theirs back in '91, and see how they like it. Huh! I'm too old a bird to be hectoring and bullying by such—"

"When the two statesmen passed out, arm in arm, the Cairo girl's face was a study. She sighed.

"Wait a minute, and then look over there," said the man with her. She looked. The benign looking old gentleman with the smooth shaven upper lip and the white chin beard had a Welsh rabbit and a bottle of ale in front of him. But the girl sat up straight in her chair.

"Gracious! what a knife!" she exclaimed in a whisper.

"Glance over to that corner," said the man with her, yawning behind his hand.

Her glance took in a man whose portrait she had seen in the papers since her earliest childhood. Opposite him at his table sat an elderly lady. There was a long black cigar in the statesman's teeth, and the elderly lady was enveloped in a blue haze of smoke. The statesman was contentedly puffing away.

"Oh, it can't be!" said the girl. A smooth looking committee clerk, with a pen behind his ear, sailed in with half a dozen letters in his hand. He went up to the table at which the Chairman of his committee sat.

"These have got to be answered today," said the clerk. "Old Frenzy's kicking up a pother in the Legislature over your delay lo—"

"My boy, go away; go away! You write 'em. You know what to say. Tell 'em—oh, go away, I'll see you after a while."

"Why, don't they write all their own letters?" inquired the girl from

An Excellent Combination. The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinal laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the company printed on the front of every package.

St. Patrick's Day.

In the morning there was a special religious service at St. Joseph's church, conducted by Rev. Daly, who is a descendant of the old saint, and attended by many Irish people and others.

On the streets many admirers of the noble saint of Ireland donned the green in commemoration of his services.

From 2 to 6 p. m., Mrs. E. Hofer, assisted by her sister, Miss Florence McKinnie, entertained about fifty young ladies and young married lady friends at their home in Lincoln Park. Whist and music were followed by refreshments, and the beautiful day lent not a little enjoyment to the occasion.

This evening, Miss Marian Gray will entertain at her home, corner of Perry and Cottage streets, the members of the Philodossian literary society of Willamette University, and invited friends. The occasion is the regular semi-term social meeting of that society, but the event will be known as a "St. Patrick Day's Party."

This evening it is the purpose of Salem Camp W. W., to entertain its friends at Reed's opera house. The speaker of the evening will be Hon. Geo. K. Rogers, deputy organizer of the State of California, and his excellent work will be supplemented by a program by well-known local talent.

The whole Salem world is cordially invited to be present and to bring its friends also. A banquet will be served at the close at Insurance hall.

"Why," exclaimed the Cairo girl, "he visited our seminary when I first went there, and he made, oh! the noblest address to the girls! And just to think—" "D'ye hear him reverberate through his cravat this afternoon? No? Well, you missed it! Of all the lightweight—phaw! I had to leave the floor. But he'll learn, he'll learn. 'The public interest imperatively demands,' said he—the numskull! Wait till your turn comes on that bill—I'll pound him! I'll hammer him, gentlemen, and you—" "How perfectly dreadful!" said the Cairo girl.

A pondorous man, with an enormous watch chain, dragged in. "One of the heap muckies of the lot," said the man with the Cairo girl, mentioning a name.

"Joe," said the ponderous man to a waiter, "have 'em fix up one of those pork chops, done brown, and bring me a glass of buttermilk. Joe, and—" "She was the picture of a disenchanted young woman. The idols wrought in Cairo were shattered.

"Shall we go?" she asked. The man with her nodded. "Makes me think of the first time I ever saw a rehearsal of a Shakespearean play that I dreamed over after having seen it as a lad," mused the man, as he passed out with his young charge from Cairo, Illinois.

Best of All To cleanse the system in a gentle and truly beneficial manner, when the Springtime comes, use the true and perfect remedy, Syrup of Figs. Buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and for sale by all druggists, at 50 cents per bottle.

Inasmuch as Mr. Hendricks of the Salem Statesman has made the assertion that the only object of the Privileges Union in taking the action it has in regard to his office, is to compel him to reinstate his discharged foreman, we wish to state plainly and emphatically that such is not the case. We recognize the right of an employer to discharge any union man for good reasons, and do not wish to dictate who shall be employed, but shall ever insist upon a union office being true to the obligations which it has voluntarily assumed. The Statesman office has not done.
