Ripe Old Age
It is only attained by preserving those faculties which nature has endowed us with. The contented, happy, BRIGHT EYED old man will tell us that he owes the preservation of his eyesight to proper care of his eyes during youth and middle age. There is nothing which a Scientific Optician can do for you that I will not do for you and your eyes. My glasses are all constructed to suit the requirements of the individual wearers, and in design, finish and construction I think they are not surpassed.

STAYTON ITEMS.

Frank Smith and J. Kruse, of Salem wheeled to this city on Monday.

Miss Alice Smith, of Southern Oregon, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. P. Thomas, J. E. Bennett, recently of Randolph, Neb., was in this city last week. Mr. Bennett is looking for a location somewhere in Oregon.

A. D. Gardner lost one of his big gray horses on last Tuesday. While this and another horse were being used in scraping near the Brown sawmill, one of them, a talky horse, backed against the other unfortunate animal, shoving him over, causing him to cross his legs, and breaking one at the hip. The animal was soon after shot.

The #40 Rambler bicycle, which H. E. Smith, one of Stayton's cycle dealers, raffled off last Saturday, went to Miss Annie Thomas, she drawing the lucky number.

Quite a number of local sportsmen went to Shelburn Monday to witness a horse race between Pat Murphy and Belle Flynn. All day long they scored not to race resulted, as a fair start could not be made. It is said that about $1000 in all changed hands over the results of the race. This fact is made more deplorable when it is understood that many young chaps even borrowed money and some betting all they had when they really needed the cash in order to keep alive, many being in almost destitute circumstances. But "twas ever thus," "a fool and his money are soon parted."

It saved on every pair good shoes bought at our shoe sale. Krause Bros.

Kaiser School.

A very successful school term closed last Friday. The graduating class of five was the result of the work done, namely: Miss Hallie Gilmore, Miss Effie Beardsley, Miss Lottie Clark, Walter Pearmaine and Harry Winstanley.

On Friday evening the school gave an entertainment of songs and recitations, followed by a fine talk to the class and school by Prof. Matthews, of the University, and the presentation of diplomas by Mr. Goodrich, one of the school board. This was followed by an oyster supper for the benefit of our minister, Rev. Paulson, of the Brooks charge. After this was a drama, which was rendered in three parts, and lasting until after midnight. The house was well filled, over 250 people were present and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The school has been very successful in its work, the fore part of the school was under the management of Mr. T. J. Jackson, assisted by his wife, the last part was conducted by Miss Anna Lindon, assisted by Mrs. Jackson. The school has 117 scholars in the district, and is the pride of the neighborhood.

Of Her Great Musicians, Bruno Steindel and Edmund Schuecker, Two of the City's Most Famous Artists.

MR. BRUNO STEINDEL, VIOLONCELLIST.

Salem is proud to welcome these renowned musicians, and on tomorrow night will show due appreciation of the great talent of the Steindel-Schuecker Concert Company. When such artists come to us from so great a distance to please and educate us, the entire music loving people should attend the concert. This is the best and cheapest way for Salemites to keep in touch with the world of Music and all whose eyes are open to great opportunities ought by all means to go to the Methodist church tomorrow night.

Reserved seats now on sale at Dearborn's book store. Admission $1.00 to all parts of the house.

SALEM WILL CELEBRATE.

First Step Taken for a Big Blow-Out in Oregon's Capital.

At the meeting held at Hotel Willamette last evening to consider the advisability of holding a grand celebration in Salem July 4th, a resolution was unanimously passed in favor of the proposition. F. A. Wiggins was chosen temporary chairman and F. S. Dearborn temporary secretary.

Mr. Greenbaum moved the appointment of a committee of five on general arrangements, which was concurred in, and Chairman Wiggins today named the following:

H. G. Myers, Isadore Greenbaum, Geo. Rodgers, C. H. Lane, Dr. E. A. Pierce.

The meeting adjourned to Monday evening next at the council room, immediately after the citizen's meeting.

THE BAKER MARKET.

G. R. Baker Succeeds Baker & Moyer in the Meat Business.

One of the most central places where you can buy your steaks or chicken is that of G. R. Baker, who succeeded to Baker & Moyer, at the corner of Court and Liberty streets.

Mr. Baker has had the shop refitted with a new floor, newly painted and papered, has improved his room for cold storage, and is now fully prepared to serve all who patronize him with the best of fresh, salt and canned meats.—Poultry a specialty. 5 28 3/4

Salem Camera Club.

This organization has enrolled 25 members and wants 25 more to make a success. A meeting is to be held at the Y. M. C. rooms, Friday evening at 8 p. m., to see if that number can be secured. The plan is to rent three rooms to work in, one a dark room, in the Cottle block. The cost of all this will be about $12 a month and great advantages can be derived.

To Lecture.

Saturday night J. H. Fletcher is to lecture at Annville on "Tilling the Soil." He is perfectly harmless and makes a great deal of fun for children and adults. It should be added that he does his farming from the poop deck of an old second hand bicycle that he got at a second hand store.

Too Much Ado

About Nothing!

Too many people want to make money on their wife. A great many people don't know a good thing when they have it. Many of them find out when it is too late, but too much of any thing is no good, too many strikes now-a-days, too many accidents, too many cyclones, too much cold weather, too much rain, too much capital driven out by the foolish strikers, too much liberty allowed to the agitators by the organized labor, there could be nothing better for the country at large that organized labor, the federation of labor, if managed by level-headed men, would be a blessing to the country were the men to act upright before the laws of their country and their fellow men. They could control as much if not more than capital, for they would get the sympathy of every honest, thinking man, and when capital would be in the wrong the labor would be sure to win, but if the sympathy and assistance is extended in the wrong direction, the federations of labor receive a death blow. When ever any person or persons or organization attempt to use force to deprive a person or persons from seeking employment or to labor in order to support themselves and their families, they put themselves in the wrong.

But were those men who labor, that belong to the federal union, to quietly withdraw from their places and not interfere with the owners of the property or the new laborers who take their places, they would gain a greater victory than they do by destroying the mills, stopping the traffic, interfering with the business of innocent people. Why would they gain the victory?

Why that's easy enough. The hotel keeper who lost a good cook and took a new one in his place, would soon find out that many of his best patrons were leaving him. He would ascertain that the new cook does not make as good pudding as the old one used to, and he burns the soup, his pie ain't flavored to suit him, his meat is scorched and his fish is too raw. What would be the result? The landlord would also be compelled to make up with his former cook, by paying him better wages.

There are justifiable strikes. For instance, in the spring of 1895, a steambot company running between Portland and Astoria during the dull months

They reduced the wages of the deck hands and firemen $5 per month and they agreed to restore the first of April to the old rates, but the owners were too greedy and refused to pay the men the rates agreed upon when the traffic was extra good, their boats were loaded down with passengers and were in constant drudgery with scarcely any rest.

The men struck for the old wages of $30 per month. If over a man earned his dollar a day, it was on those trips that the company refused to grant the men the pittance. It is too bad their boats wasn't where the Sullivan and Bunker Hill mills stood, without the passengers, that is the first trip S. Friedman took to Astoria, and being an eye witness will give a description how a boat can run with new hands. The whole amount that the experienced laborers demanded more per month, the boat could have made in one day. We were delayed over two hours in Portland before starting, but rather than to pay the deck hands and firemen the amount previously agreed to, they picked up a crew of new recruits, thereby endangering the safety of the passengers, the freight and their boat, and it put the whole work on the mate, for none of the new recruits could make a landing. They didn't know how to put off a gang boat nor how to tie a line, and it took double the amount of men to load and unload the hand trucks, and many a narrow escape the merchandise had from being thrown overboard, both in taking ashore and putting on. If it had not been for the pilot and mate trebling their work.

They were lucky in having the old mate and pilot and each of them trebling up in their labors and after a fashion they arrived in Astoria several hours late while they had the swiftest boats, and on account of it lots of their traffic went to the O. R. & N.

About twelve years ago Friedman was again an eye witness to a street car strike on Broadway, New York. The strikers were all gentlemen and they won. It was rather amusing how they did. I got on at Broadway and Spring with a lady and there wasn't a vacant seat. The conductors and motormen filled all the seats and they paid full fare, so no passenger could be seated. At first I didn't notice what was up, but the lady remarked that the men in New York are not as gentlemanly as they are in Salem to give a lady a seat. That caused me to look around and I saw the men and their hats drawn over their foreheads. I told the lady they were all gentlemen, although they were trying to disguise themselves as best they could. I then noticed five or six policemen in front and two or three in the rear of the car, and one or two expressions on the track ahead of us driving zigzag fashion. I told the lady they were trying to try to impede our travel, but the policemen kept up a sharp clatter at the men to give the road but the expressmen had lots of excuses and kept their slow gait so we made little progress. We finally got off and walked to our destination.

The car lines made up with the men and the next morning they ran all right again, but it is different in Warden. Friedman is well acquainted with a good many of the miners. Their work is not hard. They were getting good pay, and it is a pity that they made themselves amenable to the laws of the country, and I hope that the good counsel of the Federation of Labor will intervene that an arrangement will be made between the men and their employers for Sullivan of the Sullivan and Bunker Hill mine was always a friend to laborers and so is Chas. Sweeney of the Emma and Las Chances mine.

Just think of men quitting a job where they were getting $3.50 a day, and only half pay, look what Friedman has to do at the New Racket, and for a good many of the miners. Their work is not hard. They were getting good pay, and it is a pity that they made themselves amenable to the laws of the country, and I hope that the good counsel of the Federation of Labor will intervene that an arrangement will be made between the men and their employers for Sullivan of the Sullivan and Bunker Hill mine was always a friend to laborers and so is Chas. Sweeney of the Emma and Las Chances mine.
