BLEAK WINDS

Chill The Oregon Volunteers

Overcoats and Blankets Are Needed Badly.

Work Appears for the Emergency Corps.

By Associated Press to the Journal.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—About 200 Oregon volunteers are in need of overcoats and the government has been asked to supply them for temporary use to be returned when the men are mustered out. If this is not done the state and city red cross societies propose to contribute to the fund for the purchase of the garments required by the volunteer soldiers.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—General Summers, commanding the Second Oregon volunteers, said:

"The government should have provided these things for the returning volunteers. We are the pioneers of an army to come from Manila, and, let me tell you, if something is not done it will be worse here than it was in Cuba.

There will be hundreds of deaths from pneumonia. The United States should turn over to the hospital and keep on hand at least 5,000 blankets and 5,000 overcoats. They will be needed, and, as their use will be only temporary, the government can have them back again. If this is not done San Francisco is going to be a great graveyard for the volunteers."

"The clothing the Oregon men wore in the tropical Philippines is all they have to protect their bodies from the pneumonia-laden fog of the presidio." The men of Oregon got ataste of San Francisco weather in July the night before last. Forty men were left in charge of the camp while the others were being entertained.

"The fog rolled in upon them in dense banks, soaking through their light khaki suits to their skins. General Summers was busy in the city nearly all day, but he reached camp last evening, shortly after 6 o'clock. The first thing that struck his eye was the number of his men doing guard duty in their khaki suits. The fog was then rolling in, and the trees were heavy with moisture. There were some people waiting to greet the general, but he overlooked them until he had cared for his men. He called his adjutant.

"Why have not those guards their overcoats on?" he asked.

"They have none," was the answer. "Well, get them some," said the general. "Scour the camp and take them wherever you find them. The boys who are going to town can afford to be without them, but those sentries must have overcoats or else the guard must be called in. I will have no guard if I cannot have overcoats on them."

"Scour the camp. Take overcoats wherever you find them. No sentry must stand guard without one. If we cannot get the overcoats we will have no guard at all. We are short of overcoats and blankets. Now, we are going to infringe on the hospitality of California and see if we can get the loan of what we need. Falling in that, I will make arrangements with Governor Geer to buy blankets and overcoats from the quartermaster's department, and then let the boys turn them in to the state of Oregon, receiving the money they have paid for them."

The Oregon men shiver while thousands of coats and blankets are piled high in the quartermaster's department at the Presidio. Only half the men have sufficient coats and blankets; the other half stand the cold as best they can. The Oregon boys have stoves in the tents, but that only increases the danger unless the men have protection outside.

"Arrangements will be made tomorrow for mustering out, and the men will probably remain here for two or three weeks before everything is over. I shall get them away as soon as possible, and they have promised to go in a body to Portland. The final payment will give to each man something like $100. The settlement will be made after leaving this city, the pay-car going north with the regiment."

THE PRESS

Is Subjected to Censorship.

Facts Leaking Out Via Hong Kong.

Facts Have Been Misrepresented to the People.

By Associated Press to the Journal.

MANILA, July 17.—Via Hong Kong. The constantly increasing strictness of censorship of the press dispatches which has prevented cabling to the United States anything that did not reflect the official views of important events and conditions has resulted in a United effort on the part of correspondents here to secure an abatement of the rigor of censorship.

It has resulted in the framing of a statement which was presented to General Otis. The correspondents had two long interviews with General Otis in the course of which they claimed that the evident purpose of the censorship was not to keep information from the enemy but to keep from the public a knowledge of the real condition of affairs here. Otis finally promised greater liberality, agreeing to pass all matter that might consider not detrimental to the interests of the United States.

The statement of the correspondents says in part: "The undersigned staff correspondents of American newspapers stationed in Manila unite in the following statements: 'We believe that from the official dispatches made public in Washington the people of the United States have not received a correct impression of the situation in the Philippines but that the dispatches have presented an ultra optimistic view not shared by the general officers in the field. We believe that the dispatches err in the declaration that the situation is well in hand, and the assumption that the insurrection can be speedily ended without a greatly increased force. We think that the tenacity of the Filipino purpose has been underestimated. The censorship has compelled us to participate in this misrepresentation by exercising or altering uncontroverted statements of facts on the plea, as General Otis stated, that they would alarm the people at home.'

Troubles.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company Running Cars.

By Associated Press to the Journal.

New York, July 17.—About two thirds of the cars on all the lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, except the Nassau system are running this morning. The cars are all policed, with from one to four patrolmen on each, except on the Putnam and Halsey street line.

President Rossiter said that the men who went out yesterday reported for this morning. Chas. W. McKenzie, chairman of the committee of strikers said today the men were holding their own and would surely win. On several of the lines petty annoyances were given men operating cars, but nothing of serious nature took place.

Labor News.

By Associated Press to the Journal. DENVER, July 17.—The supreme court today unanimously decided the eight hour law unconstitutional. The law which was enacted at the late session of the legislature applies only to mines, smelters and mills for reduction of ore.

CLEVELAND, July 17. Conductors and motormen of the street railway system, who were on strike last month, went out again this morning. They claim the company has not lived up to the agreement made, which ended the former strike.

WALLACE, July 17.—M. St. Clair testified this morning that he heard Corcoran telling the miners there would be a meeting of the union on the morning of April 29. Saw Corcoran sitting on a box car when the train pulled out and again when the train came back.

Frank Culbertson, manager of the Tiger mine called Corcoran out of the union hall that morning. Defendants said the men were going to Warden to induce the men not to work.
