It burns common Coal Oil (and not much of it, either) with a clean, blue, hot, smokeless flame. It has no wick to bother with, like the old-fashioned, yellow flame, smoking and smelling Oil Stoves. The "Quick Meal Wickless" was invented to enable ladies to do their cooking quickly and comfortably in a cool kitchen, and to prepare a "Quick Meal" and eat it in comfort. The "Quick Meal" drives drudgery from the kitchen and worry from the house; it sweetens temper and it lengthens sleep. "Quick Meal" Stoves make happy homes.

FORGOT HE WAS MARRIED

Lieutenant McCue is Peculiarly and Sadly Afflicted

All Recollection of Former Marriage Vanishes and He Marries a Pretty California Girl

(San Francisco Chronicle.)

Pretty Viola Simon returned sorrowing yesterday from her honeymoon. On June 12th, in this city, she married Lieutenant Wm. K. McCue of the First Infantry, United States Army after an acquaintance of six days, and less than two weeks later, on her wedding tour in Chicago, she found him to be a bigamist. She had given her hand and heart to a madman with a mania for forgetting. It was a month ago yesterday that she met the dashing officer with the clear eyes and ringing laugh that gave no trace of the fever that burned within his brain, and in those thirty days she has lived a woman's lifetime. In one week she had her romance, in the second her honeymoon, and in the third her time of trial, and yesterday she came home carrying her soldier's sword in her hand, with his medal won in Samar pinned to her breast, and with her eyes filled with tears. "Take my sword and my medal with you," had been almost the last words of the officer. "No matter what they say, you are my wife. I am not mad, I am not married; it is all a lie." But the girl knows better, and her heart is widowed because the burning sun and the lonely vigils in the Philippines scorched the brain spot where lived the memory of William K. McCue.

Tries to be Brave.

Viola Simon is only 18 years of age and is as brave as she is pretty. When she told her story she tried desperately to hide the sorrow in her life, but her laugh will grow hysterical and the dark eyes will fill with tears when she speaks of the man who is held a prisoner at Fort Sheridan. "Ida Westcott is his wife," she said, "there can be no doubt about that, but he cared for me and was insane and had forgotten that he ever married her. Three days after we arrived in Chicago he invited Lieutenant Beecham, who had accompanied him to Cuba and knew his wife, who was with him there, to dine with us. 'It will be a nice surprise for Beecham,' he said; 'he don't know that his old chum has a wife.' Lieutenant Beecham could not come that night, but later, when Lieutenant McCue was arrested, he begged that Beecham tell them that he was not married and had no wife in Cuba. He could remember every incident of the Cuban campaign, even the minutest details, but he could not remember his wife. To me he said that he had known Ida Westcott in Cincinnati, and that after being a private soldier she was the first girl that he had ever met. He said that she was his cousin and had fallen in love with him, but that he had never returned her affection. Finally, however, they became engaged, but the marriage he flatly denied. He cared for me more than he ever cared for the other woman, I am sure, but she is his wife, and it is her right to be with him now. Another officer in Chicago whom I spoke with had met his wife in Cincinnati when she was with the Lieutenant, and all of the army people appeared to know that he was married. Then came the telegram from the priest who performed the ceremony, but still Lieutenant McCue denied everything.

Says He is a Gentleman.

"On this one subject he is insane beyond a doubt, but on all others he is perfectly rational. He was more than kind to me and is a gentleman of the finest type. I became the victim through his misfortune and nothing else. If he had been sane this thing would have never happened. At the hospital on Wednesday when I left he became quite violent and kept calling aloud my name and asking for me. Finally I went to him and he begged me to remain and swore that I was the only wife he ever had. The doctors made me leave at once, as they feared brain fever if he was excited. As far as I am concerned there will be no prosecution for bigamy and I think that his wife will not trouble him. The matter now rests entirely with the army authorities."

Miss Simon was met at Benicia by her mother, Mrs. S. L. Simon, who accompanied her to this city. The young woman is now at her father's residence at 2731 Laguna street.

Strawberries.

I. C. Nealeigh shipped 916 crates of strawberries from four acres, and after he quit picking there were 150 crates left on the vines. On the last day of picking he got 38 crates. His Indians quit, and the berries got too ripe for picking. The vines were cultivated 14 times last fall and hoed eight times. In the spring he cultivated and hoed very lightly—Hood River Glacier.

A Ministers Mistake.

A city minister was recently handed a notice to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best Cough Cure." This was hardly what he had expected, and, after a moment's hesitation, he turned it over and found on the other side the matter intended for reading.
