WORK TO GET OUT THE VOTE.

There is but one cause that Republicans should give attention from this time to the close of the polls on election day—get out the vote.

The drawbacks of the registration law must be overcome by hard work, and the duty of every Republican is to see that his nearest neighbor go to the polls.

The arguments in national and local affairs are all on the side of continuing a Republican administration. Especially is this true of our county and national government.

In our state affairs there is no room for improvement, but we can only get relief by electing the Republican legislative ticket, and demanding that the state tax be reduced. Republicans have given us the model county government, and will do the same in the state when it is demanded.

The Republican delegation are business men. Three of the candidates have had legislative experience, and the other two are first-class business men.

The Republican candidates for constable and justice in the Salem precinct are first-class men, and deserve your votes as much as do Roosevelt and Justice Moore or Binger Hermann. Get out the vote.

UNFAIRNESS TO JUDGE SCOTT.

The unfairness of the Democratic attack on Judge Scott consists not in the matters charged, but in waiting until a week before election to spring the charges.

Judge Scott has been doing business for the county for four years, and every dollar of it has been on the open books of the county, and published in the official proceedings of the county court.

Now at the last moment come the men who want to administer that office and accuse him of being a grafter and what not. But they have begun too late. Judge Scott has made his record.

The people with whom he has done business know that he is careful, conscientious and scrupulous to a penny. He has driven hard bargains for county work in every instance.

He does not deny that some parts of the county have received a larger percentage of aid in building roads than other parts, but it was because they were entitled to it.

The establishment of a better system of county roads has only been begun, and Judge Scott and his colleagues of the county court deserve credit for making even a beginning. Let us uphold them, and get more.

By all means snow under the eleven-hour fairy-tales.

OREGONIAN ROASTS REV. HILL.

Pulpit sensationalism is becoming almost as voracious as yellow journalism. A few months ago a new minister by the name of Roushger, or Roudger or some such name branded Portland as worse than Gehenna with the lid off. Then the Baptist minister took a turn at uncovering the seething cauldron of municipal iniquity and giving the Ladies' Aid Society and Young People's Circle a few choice glimpses at the inside. No sooner had these artists of the inferno dashed it up for pulpit consumption and Monday morning journalism, than the Rev. Edgar P. Hill, of that very select Portland Millionaire's club called the first Presbyterian church sailed in with a lot of funny business about the town where he makes a living being worse than Sodoms, Gomorrah and Sautie combined. Wednesday the Oregonian scientifically and overlastingly sizzles the Reverend detractor's cuticle off his carcass and nalla it up on the barn door for the flies to blow at. The fact is there is a stubborn and inconceivable fit on to plunge society back into the feudal ages where all was done in the name of the holy religion, and the state and government were not in it, except when the militia had to be called out once in awhile to break up the tendency to burn too many old women at the stake as witches. It looks as if the people of Portland had been gold-bricked into paying big salaries to a lot of common scolds, who have probably lived better in that community than in any town that ever gave them shelter.

FINANCIAL CONDITIONS.

The Henry Clews & Co. circular has this:

The April statement of foreign trade was better than expected. Our exports were $109,995,000, a slight increase over last year; while our imports declined over four millions to $83,496,000, leaving an excess of twenty-six and a half millions in exports, compared with twenty-two millions last year. Had it not been for the high price obtained for our cotton, however, there would have been a material decrease in exports, the general tendency of which has been to diminish. The decline in imports is, of course, attributable to lessened trade activity at home. Evidence which confirm the latter are decreasing railroad earnings, the shrinkage in bank clearings, depression in the iron trade and increased curtailment in the cotton industry. These factors, however, are exerting "little effect upon the stock market, because they have already been well discounted by the previous decline. First-class securities are well held in spite of such developments, and one of the most satisfactory features of the situation is the good demand for prime investments.

The issue of new capital, present and prospective, are likely to increase the demands upon our money market. Recent placements include $30,000,000 New York Central bonds; $25,000,000 Japanese loan; $20,000,000 Consolidated Gas issue; $37,000,000 New York City bonds, and $6,000,000 Burlington bonds, to say nothing of the millions of railroad paper recently placed. Already there is in prospect a $35,000,000 Cuban loan, a $15,000,000 Baltimore loan, besides rumors of other important contemplated issues. With such demands upon our supply of floating capital the recent ease in money seems unlikely to return very quickly.

LESSONS ON FREEDOM.

Lessons of government can be learned from the works of Mr. Herbert Spencer, who was truly philosophical in everything he wrote. American citizens can read the following paragraph, and make a direct application of the principles taught:

"Free institutions can be properly worked only by men each of whom is jealous of his own rights and also sympathetically jealous of the rights of others—who will neither himself aggress on his neighbors in small things or great, nor tolerate aggression on them by others."

This preaches a doctrine of usefulness which is really the foundation of popular institutions. It may not agree with the daily practice of politicians, whose only care is their own selfish aggrandisement; but it appeals to the true patriot, who loves his country and its institutions, and desires to see them perpetuated. If the rights of our neighbors are infringed our own privileges are in jeopardy, and the great Englishman was right when he said that "free institutions can be properly worked only by men who are * * * sympathetically jealous of the rights of others." To insure the permanency of free government there must be equal rights to all, and each must be equally interested in a rule of exact justice. This does not imply any insubordination to constituted authority, as taught by anarchists; but only a unification of the people in a great and universal rule of right and justice. There is a most sensitive dependence of the component parts of a republic upon each other, and the least deviation from the intelligent freedom of any portion or factor of government affects the entire fabric. Only by the cohesion and strength of the individual units, can popular government exist, and these should be stimulated to unity by a jealous regard for the interests and rights of each other. With such forces at work the people become a solid unit and on such a foundation republics can build as strongly as monarchies. Without such cohesive forces at work, governments by the people become merely warring factions, and may readily disintegrate into anarchistic mobs. Sovereignty and power rest with the people, and these should be free to act and sufficiently strong to enforce any and all law they may adopt.

X-RADIUMS

A cruel paragrapher has suggested that there is not much danger of Mr. Bryan's program of 1896 and 1900 being re-Hearst in St. Louis.

A man up a tree suggests that some one is contributing cold cash at a pretty good lick in order to defeat Congressman Hermann. Wonder if it is the big timber grabbers? His opponent comes from that part of Oregon where it has been hinted that such things really exist.

The Pilot.

Arthur Stringer in Everybody's Magazine for June.
I lounge on the deck of the river- steamer,
Homeward bound with its huddle of indolent life,
Untiring churning from headland to headland
Through moonlight and silence and dusk.
And the decks are alive with laughter and music and singing.
I see sleepers, the shadowy lovers sitting close to the rail,
The romping children, the dancers amidships,
But high above them there in the dusk,
Where the merriment breaks like a wave at his feet,
Unseen of lover and dancer and me,
Aquiline, anxious, unspeaking, encompassed with gloom,
Is the pilot, impassive and stern,
With his grim eye watching the course.

Moonshine.

Adam Bredde in Everybody's Magazine for June.
Moonshine, Moonshine, skippin' all 'round,
Moonshine, Moonshine lightin' up de groun',
Moonshine, Moonshine, peepin' thro' de trees—
Catchin' little niggers kissin' in de breeze.
Moonshine, Moonshine, sneakin' thro' de doh,
Moonshine, Moonshine, sittin' on de foh,
Moonshine, Moonshine, kissed my yaller gal—
Say, Mistah Moonshine, cayn't I be yo' pal?

Veatch Made No Speech.

R. M. Veatch, Democratic nominee for congress, was billed to speak in Lebanon last Friday afternoon. For some unknown reason he failed to put in an appearance, and hence there was no "speech," which is probably just as well, as Friday was a dull day in town, and the number of hearers would of necessity have been few. So far as we know we have been able to ascertain of but one man who came to town for the express purpose of hearing Mr. Veatch, and that man was Hon. W. H. Ingram, and he showed no signs of distress on being disappointed. Linn county is for Hermann, and this being the case no enthusiasm could be worked up for his opponent.—Lebanon Critterion.

Strawberries in Linn County.
Sol Lindley brought the first home-grown strawberries of the season to town last Friday, May 20th. Mr. Lindley states that, while the main berry crop will be later than common this year, that every indication is for a good yield. May 15th is about as early as any berries are ever ready for market. Twelve years ago this spring was a late season for berries, the very first not appearing until June 1st. The berry crop has of late years become an object of money-making to a number of our growers, and seemingly the more berries grown the more used.—Lebanon Critterion.

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedies. Facts of Science.
It is the rarest thing in the world a man to be necessarily bald. No one whose hair is not dead at the roots can be bald if he will use Newcomb's Hair Restorer. This medicine kills the germ that causes the hair to fall out at the root; and cleans the scalp and restores the hair to its natural condition. Mr. Mannett, of Maryland, Block, Butte, Mont., who had lost his hair, used Newcomb's Hair Restorer, and nature did its work for him, and in six weeks he had a full suit of hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Daniel J. Fry, Special Agent.
