

WORKERS FOUND SKULL

While Excavating for the New Fry Warehouse

A gruesome discovery was made this morning by the employees of the Capital Improvement Company, who are excavating for the new D. J. Fry warehouse, near the freight depot. It was a human skull in a rather decomposed state. No great surprise or curiosity attaches to this find, as old residents state that in an early day an Indian burying ground was located on a little tongue of land, which has since been built up in that part of the town. The warehouse men say that it gave all indications of having been buried in a box, and based this conclusion upon the appearance of the cavity in the ground, and thus it may have been the remains of a white man.

The only gruesome feature about the find is probably the fact that many people have carried away small pieces of the skull as souvenirs, and will thus preserve a very materialistic remembrance of an historic fact of little moment.

Compliments Our Artist.

Young Harris, an Indian boy at the Chemawa school, near Salem, is developing considerable ability as a cartoonist. They have been printed in the Salem Journal, and show considerable originality, and a proper conception of the subject.—The Dalles Chronicle.

Sunday School Picnic.

The German Baptist Society had a large and successful Fourth of July picnic at the Gus Heiden farm, six miles south of Salem.

There are ginger worms and red-pepper bugs—queer boarders—that have to be looked for, not in Schilling's Best, but in making it. There are eggs of these queer boarders, too small to be killed by grinding. Don't keep spices warm, or they'll hatch.

FOURTH VERY QUIET

Little Doing in Salem to Celebrate Independence Day

The Fourth of July passed very quietly, and, except for the two baseball games, the amusement was very slight. A great many people spent the day in Portland, and others went to Silverton, Dallas and Jefferson.

There were no serious accidents in the city, although during the late afternoon and evening a large amount of firecrackers, bombs and other sound-producing instruments were exploded.

It was more like Sunday than any other day, a striking contrast to the usual hip-hurrah time of Independence day. The saloons were open, but were deserted. Confectionery stores fared little better, and the hotels and restaurants had a light trade. The merchandise stores closed up for the day, and the proprietors and clerks enjoyed a vacation from their labors.

One story is told on a couple of business men who wanted to enjoy a little liquid refreshment. They sneaked around to the back doors of a wet goods emporium, and gave their order. A few minutes after the front doors opened, and in walked another customer. The first arrivals inquired how it happened that the front doors of the place were open, absentmindedly thinking that it was the Sabbath. The story is told just to illustrate the quietness of the day.

PERSONALS.

Misses Jennie and Carrie Goode left today for Newport.

Peter Blim went to Breitenbush springs today for a few weeks at the baths.

Do it today.

The time-worn injunction, "Never put off 'till tomorrow what you can do today," is now generally presented in this form: "Do it today!" That is the terse advise we want to give you about that hacking cough or demoralizing cold with which you have been struggling for several days, perhaps weeks. Take some reliable remedy for it TODAY—and let that remedy be Dr. Boschee's German Syrup, which has been in use for over thirty-five years. A few doses of it will undoubtedly relieve your cough or cold, and its continued use for a few days will cure you completely. No matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble. New trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists. At Dr. Stone's drug stores.

POPULISTS PROPOSE ACTION

Will Not Wait on Democrats to Nominate a Ticket

Springfield, Ill., July 5.—When the Populist national convention reassembled at 9 o'clock this morning 400 delegates from 23 states were present. The probable presidential ticket is Senator Allen, of Nebraska, and Tom Watson of Georgia. The convention is almost unanimous that the ticket should be nominated, irrespective of what the Democrats at St. Louis may do.

News From Chemawa.
