PAWN BROKERS ACTIVE

Want Laws to Compel Recording of Installment Notes

Last year one of the prominent features of legislation that caused unusual interest was the effort of the gamblers to obtain protection. There are all kind of their schemer for protection, and this year it seems the pawnbrokers, scalpers and collection-sharps have their innings. Chief among their efforts are bills in both houses to compel recording of installment notes taken in part payment for pianos, sewing machines, furniture, wagons, farm machinery and all manner of goods and chattels that are sold on the installment plan. Why Oregon should pass a law in the interest of these classes, as against her striving citizens, who are compelled to purchase articles on the installment plan, is not clear. If any one should be protected, it is the person who buys these goods and pays the price. Laws of this character should be branded as class legislation in the interest of the shrewd money-getter, and against the common people.

PUBLISH ELECTION EXPENSES

A Reform Measure That Came Near Passing

The big fight Wednesday afternoon was over Smith's bill to require publication of election expenses. He made an impassioned speech for this reform. The committee on elections recommended its indefinite postponement, but its plucky champion demanded consideration upon its merits. Ayes 26, noes 30.

ROUTINE BUSINESS

Senate—Wednesday Morning.
The senate went into executive session with Senator Brownell in the chair. When the committee of the whole arose it reported in favor of the passage of the bill with an amendment requiring "previous chaste character," which was adopted. Senator Rand then moved indefinite postponement. Coe advocated the bill from the standpoint of the medical fraternity. Senator Farrar spoke forcefully for the bill. Senator Rand then presented the claim that the bill is a measure in the interest of morality. He claimed that the bill is unreasonable. He charged that innocent boys would be induced by girls under 18, and thus become subject to a term in the penitentiary. He advocated a stringent law against fornication. He charged that they might as well raise the age to 100 years, and insisted that the passage of the law would not increase morality.
