Courtesy to Women.

A young woman, says a correspondent, who was passing the evening with the family of Lord Coleridge, the eminent English jurist, was about to start for her home at 10 o'clock when he offered to accompany her. She, with the respect due to his age and with the fearlessness of youth due to ignorance of the dangers surrounding young women, said: "I thank you, sir, but I do not want to trouble you. Cannot the maid accompany me?" His answer showed the respect in which he held all women. He said, "My dear, the maid is a woman also." If all men were so truly courteous there would be no complaint on the part of women that they do not receive the treatment they should receive from the opposite sex.

Pears and Blackberries.

Pears and blackberries are being taken in at the Salem cannery in considerable quantities, and the same are being shipped to Portland for canning and the trade. Good Bartlett pears are bringing from $20 to $25 per ton, and are being shipped out by the carload. Blackberries of all varieties, except the evergreen, are bringing 2 1/4 cents per pound, while the evergreen only bring two cents. The cannery people are not buying pears this season, as most of that product is being cared for by the local dealers.

Babies' skin will be soft, fair and smooth if you give them Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea this month. It regulates the stomach and bowels. It makes the little ones sleep and grow. 35 cents. Stone's Drug Store.

German Warship Coming to Portland.

Governor Chamberlain this morning received word from the secretary of the navy that the German man of war, "Falke," would be in Portland, September 18th. The governor has accordingly notified the mayors of Portland and Astoria of the fact, in order that the usual courtesies may be extended to the officers and men.

The governor also sent a telegram to the secretary of the navy this morning, urging the presence of a warship at Portland during the regatta.

Regulates the stomach and bowels, heals and soothes the little ones' stomachs and gives them a healthy and natural sleep. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea is the children's benefactor. 35 cents. Stone's Drug Store.

Will Take a Vacation.

The Women's Relief Corps will not have any more meetings until the first one in September. The sewing society will continue its work, and the next meeting will be next Thursday, August 24th, at Mrs. Helen M. Southwick's residence, on Marion street.

Don't wait until your blood is impoverished and you are sick and ailing, but take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. It will positively drive out all impurities. 35 cents, tea o tablets Dr. Stone's Drug Store.

More Delegates Appointed.

Governor Chamberlain this morning appointed John Dellar, Louis Kraus and M. Barde, of Portland, as additional delegates to the Irrigation Congress, which is to meet in Portland.

Shade Trees in Cities.

The large American cities, as a rule, are far behind the great European municipalities in making such provision for public comfort and civic beauty. Nearly $3,000,000 has been expended for tree planting on the boulevards of Paris. The New England cities owe their attractiveness to noble elms that grace the streets. The Providence Journal, in calling the attention of the public to Arbor Day, says that Rhode Island has kept it loyally since 1887, and always with enthusiasm. A New England writer truthfully remarks that a village shaded by thoroughly grown elms cannot but be handsome.

Hit the Trail on Sundays.

Commencing with Sunday, August 6th, the Trail at the exposition and all the amusement features, as well as the exhibit buildings, were thrown open, and hereafter will be running the same on Sunday as on other days. In fact the exposition will be practically as complete on Sundays as on week days. The Southern Pacific Company have on sale Saturday to Monday excursion tickets, $2.20 for the round trip, which enable visitors to go to Portland Saturday afternoon and remain until Monday night, or return Sunday evening, as they may desire. 8-7-1f

PERSIAN RUGS FOR AMERICANS

The rug and carpet trade of the province of Azerbaijan, is of special interest in this connection, as about nine-tenths of the product finds its way directly or indirectly to the United States.

The rug industry of Tabriz dates far back; the products of its looms are regarded by many as the most beautiful among the many varieties of Persian rugs. There is one large factory in the city, where I found over 1000 lads busily occupied on rugs of all sizes and designs. Many were reproducing the old patterns which were in vogue over 500 years ago, and are still admired in both hemispheres. These lads work with great rapidity, and earn from $2.50 to $3.25 per month. The number of operatives in this one factory is largely increased in flush times. There are other smaller factories in Tabriz and in the lesser towns while individual looms are encountered in most of the villages.

A few years ago aniline dyes were extensively used to dye the yarns employed in making rugs, and the effect was quickly felt in the decreased demands from abroad. In order to counteract the evil results the government very promptly resorted to the extreme measure of prohibiting the entry of aniline dyes. The measures taken in this respect have been fairly successful, and now but few rugs show traces of aniline colors. While thus striving to maintain the reputation of the Tabriz rugs at the place of manufacture, much dissatisfaction is expressed by those engaged in the trade at the treatment to which the products of Tabriz looms are frequently exposed after reaching America. In order to meet changing whims of fashion, certain tints are often altered into more popular hues. The methods of bringing about these chromatic changes are of a nature which not only affect the original color schemes, but frequently impair the permanence of the rug, thus seriously injuring the reputation of the wares.

Three years ago the rug trade was in an extremely prosperous condition. Toward the close of 1903 the demands from America reached an unprecedented figure, and prices rose rapidly in consequence. The so-called "Mousls" were trebled in value, the "Kermans" more than doubled, while the "Heriz" and "Saltanabad" varieties showed less marked increases. The manufacture of all grades of rugs was largely augmented, and local dealers laid in large stocks at the high quotations. When American purchasers refused to buy at the new rates, the market was enormously overstocked. Prices fell rapidly to figures in many cases below those of 1902. Many establishments of long standing were ruined, and the whole trade was sadly demoralized.

It is now slowly recovering. The demand from America is increasing, and manufacture is being extended in a normal and healthful manner. This applies, however, more particularly to rugs of wool. The silk rugs, for which Tabriz has long been famous, fail utterly to bring remunerative prices, and the smaller factories have discontinued operations, while larger establishments produce but a fraction of their former output. Silk rugs which in 1903 easily found sale at $100 are now sold with difficulty for $60. The competition of rug factories at Casacaera, Konia, and other Anatolian cities is largely the cause of this unfortunate condition.

The carpets and rugs of wool exported in 1903 were valued at $1,054,000, in 1904 at $1,151,000; silk rugs, $62,000 in 1903 and $59,000 in 1904.—Consul Norton, Harput, Turkey.
