Troops Mutiny and Mobs Parade the Streets—Women Pour Boiling Water on Soldiers Sent to Quell the Rioters

Lisbon, Portugal, June 26.—A hundred are reported killed and 600 wounded in the riots between soldiers and mobs demonstrating against the government. Six army battalions at Oporto have mutinied. Cavalry horses trampled men, women and children to death. The women fought the troops from their windows, pouring boiling water on them. The trouble started when mobs paraded the streets denouncing King Carlos for attempting to run the country without a parliament. The country faces bankruptcy.

Committed to Asylum.
Charles Cameron, a transient miner, was this morning examined by Dr. J. H. Brewer before Judge Scott, declared insane and committed to the state insane asylum. Cameron is 88 years of age, and his insanity was adjudged to be caused from intemperance. He was arrested on the charge of insanity some weeks ago, but, thinking that his condition would soon improve, the judge sent him to the poor farm.

County Judge Scott also committed Grace LaFollet, of this city, to the asylum this morning, after an examination by Dr. J. A. Richardson. The unfortunate young lady is 21 years of age, and the cause of her insanity was epilepsy.

Woman Testifies Orchard Told Her He Loved But Once, That Poverty Parted Him From His Girl, and That He Would Kill Steunberg Because He Had Made Him Poor

Boise, June 26.—Direct charges of attempted intimidation of their witnesses are being charged by the defense in the Haywood murder trial against the state's detective agencies. It is alleged that representatives of the mine owners of Colorado have been given places in the court room so they can listen to the testimony of certain witnesses, and contradict them in rebuttal. Representatives of the defense said today that Major Naylor, of the Colorado National Guards, who is in possession of all the records of the so-called military courts, and members of the citizens' alliance committee, have been given seats in the court room to compare the testimony our men give with the stories they told before this committee, and if the state thinks it can keep our witnesses away by this means it is badly mistaken. Our people are telling the truth, and if any are arrested for perjury it will be on a trumped up charge, from which they will be quickly cleared by the court. Major Naylor, when told of the charges against him laughed. "I am here as a witness, and have the same right to sit in the court room during proceedings as a defense witness. It is true I have got these fellows' records, but that has been known for a long time."

Edward Boyce, first president of the federation was the star witness for the defense today. He related all the circumstances connected with the inception of the organization. He said it was born as the result of the first Couer d'Alene troubles. The federation never counseled violence in any form, he declared. In Colorado, Wyoming and Montana our advocacy of the eight-hour law made us especially obnoxious and everything was done to discredit our motives and cause dissensions in our ranks. "There never was an inner circle, as has been charged." Boyce emphatically repeated a number of times his denial that members of the executive committee ever counseled violence or murder. He was no longer connected with the federation, having rich mining interests in Northern Idaho.

Mrs. Lottie Day, of Denver, formerly of Cripple Creek, knew Orchard as Dempsey at the Belmont rooming house in 1904. This place was over Pettibone's store. Orchard told her he had a chance to be rich; that he loved only once in his life; that he was separated from the woman he loved by poverty; that Steunberg was responsible, and that he would surely kill him. She told him to forget it. Prior to this conversation she talked with Orchard about gambling, and told him if he went gambling he would come back broke. She declared Orchard told her he would never go broke, as he always had a little money to the windward, as whenever he made a winning he put part of it in Pettibone's safe, where he could always get it. Pettibone introduced her to Orchard. On cross-examination she said she was originally summoned by the prosecution, and that she made her statement to Attorney Stone for the prosecution. Hawley stated he wanted the witness held in town for possible cross-examination. A lively row followed, Richardson declaring he would not hold the witnesses. Hawley demanded that the court order them held if the prosecution so desired. The court finally declared that all witnesses wanted held by the prosecution must remain within the jurisdiction of the court.

John T. Elliott, an inmate of the soldier's home, said he met Orchard on a train in the latter part of 1905. Orchard told him his name was Hogan, and that he had been working for the mine owners. He told him it had been planned to put the federation out of business by the mine owners and other capitalists. Part of the plan was to destroy the union, and he warned him that something startling would likely happen in Idaho soon.

Elliott stuck closely to his story under a severe cross-examination. He was in the insane asylum ten years ago. The defense is well pleased with the depositions from San Francisco, the Bradley affidavit being exceptionally strong. It is declared by him that the explosion was due to gas absolutely.

John O'Neill, editor of the Miners' Magazine, declared its purpose is to educate federation men, and unite them politically. He regretted to say he was a member of the legislature of Colorado in 1897. He lived many years in Leadville and the Cripple Creek district. He saw Orchard at Denver in March, 1904, in the headquarters a number of times. Orchard came to his office during the contest between Peabody and Adams for the governorship, and asked him to give him Peabody and Bell's address. He told him to look in the city directory. Orchard then told him that both men should be bumped off, but paid no attention to his remark. O'Neill was asked if he wrote the editorial declaring "Former Governor Frank Steunberg met his death last evening, according to the news dispatches, via the bomb route." He said he did. He also acknowledged writing several other editorials couched in similar language. William Davis was called and sworn just as recess was ordered.

HENEY'S WORK IN DANGER SPRINGS SURPRISE

Attorneys Attack Validity of Grand Jury, and Declare It Had No Power to Act and That Indictments Found By It Are Illegal

San Francisco, June 26.—All of the various grounds urged by the defense in support of a motion to set aside the bribery indictments against

CHARLES B. LANDIS. Indiana congressman, orator, former newspaperman and alumnus of Wabash university.

Vice-President Louis Glass, of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company, and other big corporation officials, were retired to positions of comparative insignificance yesterday afternoon by the appearance of a new contention presented and argued by Glass' attorneys. Briefly stated, the charge brought by Messrs. Delmas and Cogan in their effort to have the Glass indictment set aside, and which by formal understanding, is for the benefit of all the other defendants as well, is this:

All of the acts performed by the present grand jury since a date early in January of this year are invalid because the present grand jury ceased lawfully to exist when the new grand jury list for 1907 was certified by the county judges on the date referred to.

The undisputed facts are these: Early in January of this year the grand jury list of 1907 was duly certified by the 12 judges of San Francisco county, and was by them returned to the county clerk, but the Oliver grand jury, being in the midst of its bribery-graft investigation was not thereupon discharged. Instead it was continued in existence under the belief that, having been selected in the fall of 1906, it could legally exist for 12 months or until the fall of 1907.

Judge Lawlor, in commenting upon the merits of the defense's contention, said:

"Of course, if this grand jury has no existence in law, its acts have no validity and the indictments must be set aside. The court will welcome any further light that counsel may be able to afford. The hearing is continued until 11 o'clock tomorrow."

OFFICERS MUST TESTIFY

Chicago, June 26.—Judge Landis this afternoon directed the clerk to issue subpoenas for Rockefeller, W. H. Tilford, C. M. Pratt, the president and secretary, respectively of the Standard Oil Company in New Jersey, and for J. A. Moffatt, president, and G. W. Stall, secretary of the Standard Oil Company in Indiana, to appear in his court July 6 to testify concerning the Alton rebate cases. He says he will summon others.

H. E. Felton, president of the Union Tank Line, and director of traffic for the Standard Oil, and F. A. Wann, a high official of the Alton road at the time the alleged rebates were granted, will be summoned. The court announced that it would go into the innermost working of the oil trust, its subsidiaries and railroad and other corporations with which it transacts business, and especially into the declaration of dividends.

Through its attorneys the trust had defied the court, telling Landis that his request for information concerning the company's profits was "impertinent and extra judicial." Landis insists on Rockefeller and others appearing in court. If Rockefeller succeeds in dodging a subpoena Rogers will be sure to attend.
