MEMORIES.

I love to think of the days gone by when I, barefooted, fre-, Would wander wherever I wanted to go, lazy and aimlessly. I love to think of the path that led thro' woodlands cool and sweet,

To the dear old stream where I used to go to free myself from heat. And I love to dream of that river bank and the placid swimming place, Where the willows swayed by the breezes kissed the water's breast with grace.

But I hate to think of the day when all my dreams were put to rout, When mother discovered my hair was wet and my shirt was inside out.

It's a long way back to the dear old days, the days of long ago, When I was a kid with freckles and a head of tousled tow. I don't suppose I would recognize the scenes that then were mine, The swimming hole, the meadows, and the pathway for the kine. I love to dream of my dreams of hen, as onward creep the years, But ever there's one thing steals in them that stops my flow of tears. And that's the thought of the day when I was flogged with a paddle stout, When mother discovered my hair was wet and my shirt was inside out. -Will F. Griffin in Milwaukee Sentinel.

CALIFORNIA POLITICS.

A direct primary election law is proposed to purify the politics of California, and contention has risen as to what should go into the law. E. G. Shostad, a member of the 'abor union party of San Francisco, protests against the provision requiring the voter to declare his party can walk on his head. With hands amiliation when he participates in the primary, and urges that it is un- in his pockets and feet in the air,

Would it be right for the members of the competing party to turn in talked interestingly of the work of and nominate the weakest candidate of the republican party, the candi- making the preliminary announcedate not desired by a majority of the members of that party? Yet this is just what would happen.

While parties are recognized as essential to our form of government, it would be a mistake to enact a law that could be used as a means of destroying them.

This question of secret party affiliation at the primaries was fought out in this state last winter, and the decision was in favor of open

If the voter wishes to cross over to the other side, let him do it at the polls after the parties have had a fair chance to choose their own candidates.

The Sacramento Union takes emphatic "round against Shostad's position, saying, in part:

Ringling Brothers Giant Aggregation to Be In Salem Aug. 28

Salem is to be visited by Ringling Brothers' circus on Wednesday, August 28. The first advertising car and twenty-five knights of the paste brush arrived in the city simultaneously last evening, and when they come, there is no resistance-the circus follows. Bill posters come in detachments of course. and others will follow, but any how, Salem is to have a circus. The show is presenting many unusual features this season, many of them being European novelties new on this side of the "pond." One of the great attractions is a foreign tongued fellow who bears the unique distinction of being the only man on earth who this performer ascends and descends stairs with as much ease as were his feet performing the stunt. In this same inverted position he skips the $21. marvel of the age is another great attraction. This horse hails from St. Petersburg and is known in circusboots and after reading the evening ing great care to pull the covers up A. White, press agent of the show, ments. He said: "It requires 200 publicity promoters to advertise Ringling Brothers' Circus. Of this number 25 are agents and car managers whose duty it is to see that every detail in their department is carried out to the letter. There are 100 bill-posters who 35c. travel on the four advertising cars, while 75 knights of the brush are employed to do emergency billing. By 'emergency billing' I mean the removal of paper which is often destroyed during rain storms, the billing of special excursion towns which the car brigade is unable to visit, and the distribution of special matter throughout territory in which boss bill-poster. The manager isthat a special agent may check same one day before show arrives."

Church sittings in the residence sections of cities are fairly highpriced, but they are only a part of the expense. There is a long list of regular causes for which contributions are asked, expected, and althem without paying and giving nearly or quite as much as those who are the possessors of at least moderate incomes. They cannot stand the strain, especially if they feed and clothe and educate. No tudes who should be the very bone and sinew of the church do not go to CORVALLIS & EASTERN R. R. church at all, or only go irregularly. The expensiveness of church-going is a real obstacle to the increase of the Kingdom of God.

One of the causes of the undue expense is that there are too many churches. They should be fewer in number and of larger seating capacity. The sittings should be free, or put at prices within the reach of the multitude. The numerous collections for "causes" should somehow be reduced. The causes are all right, but the money for them should not be obtained in the public congregation.-Leslie's Week-
