"THE THREE OF US" TONIGHT

James A. Herne used to say that the success of a drama could be assured if it had enough of the right kind of human interest, in other words that "the closer to nature in plot and language a play is drawn, the more effective it will prove." Poor Herne has been gathered to his fathers for a long time, but his trisism lives and thrives, and we are told that it finds expression in the four-act play by Rachel Crothers entitled "The Three of Us," which comes to the Grand opera house tonight.

The play had its beginning in New York last season, where it had a successful run of 227 nights.

There is little in the setting of the play to suggest a mining camp. The movement is indoors at all times, and no attempt is made to depict the alluring atmosphere and scenic effects of Nevada. Realism, that kind of realism one associates with life in "Shore Acres" and "Way Down East" is dominant throughout and it goes far toward giving warmth and effect to the naturalness of the play.

We are assured the cast will be eminently satisfactory throughout. Miss Mabel Cameron, a native of San Francisco, as "Rhy," is an attractive girl, and gives strength to the more stirring scenes of the play.

CHECKERS WEDNESDAY.

Everyone Who Ever Saw Checkers Will See it Again—All Others Should.

the chief cities from the Twin Cities of Minnesota to Vancouver and down the coast to Los Angeles and back to St. Louis and thence to New Orleans, Texas and all through the South, will be seen at the Grand Opera house Wednesday. It is the only company playing "Checkers," and the personnel is substantially the same seen here during the last engagement in this city.

"THE THREE OF US."

The Most Delightful Play of the Entire Season Here Tonight.

"The Three of Us," which appears at the Grand opera house tonight, is undoubtedly one of the best plays that will be seen in Salem this year. The Journal's exchanges, wherever the play has been presented, speak in the highest terms of both play and actors. One of them says: "It is an everyday life story, fascinatingly told. The characters are humble, the story simple, and it has an actualness and pathos seldom seen on the stage." Allan Dale, the greatest of American theatrical critics, says: "Don't let the two of you fall to see 'Three of Us.'"

Draws Large Audiences.

Yesterday was a great day at the First Christian church. Victor Dorris was in his best condition, and he gave the people some things to think about. The morning sermon, "The Lord's Day" and "The Lord's Supper," brought the church up to the standard of New Testament ideals, which caused many to say, "I never heard it that way before." At the evening service the largest audience of the meeting greeted the evangelist, and they were not deceived in the lessons he brought to bear. "Alexander Dowie and Related Subjects," treated of the modern prophets and soothsayers, divine healers, etc. And those who had never heard the matter discussed before were loud in their praise of the manner in which the evangelist brought point after point out in the simplest and most profound way. Tonight the theme will be "The Arrest of an Angry Poe." Tuesday evening "Disposing of Jesus." Bible lesson every afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

TEA

You will find no poor tea in packages bearing our name. If you find any such, you know what to do.

Your grocer returns your money if you don't like Schilling's Best; we pay him.

Needcase.
A charming present the business woman will appreciate is an individual needcase. It is so small that she can slip it in her purse and take it down to the office, where it will not occupy any space in her desk. It is made just a little larger than a package of needles and is of silk covered cardboard. On one side is a strap to hold the package, and there are, besides, three thin channels leaves for the loose needles.

Tobacco Pouches Always Acceptable.

Tobacco pouches are always acceptable gifts for men, and stunning ones may be made from suede. A pretty pouch in rich brown or dark green, lined with a maroon silk, would be attractive when the edges are planked and a drawstring of heavy silk with long tassels runs in near the top. It's not the kid, the lining or the cord that makes these bags so unusual, for without the monogram or crest done in gilt thread or in bright colored silks the pouches, aside from being handmade, would be quite the same as those bought in the shops, but with an attractive emblem or two or three initials prettily embroidered in one corner the pouches are presents any man, no matter how surfeited with gifts, would be glad to receive.

Knitted or crocheted ties, though not a novelty, will be desirable gifts, for they are serviceable and, being made by hand, are a valuable accessory to any wardrobe. In plain green, dark cardinal or made of a combination of two tone effects or of two strongly contrasting colors, such as black and red or orange and blue, they are striking contrasts as neckwear.
