LOCAL BALL

BY JOCK

The Tri-City ball field was the scene of a vicious battle in the baseball line yesterday afternoon when the South Salem Farmington youngsters piled up five scores out of nine innings against the White Diamond team, of Portland, who could only manage to squeeze four runs over the pan, which were due to some slow playing on the part of the home likelys, and several visitors' mat death on third base.

All manner of ball was exhibited by the players on both sides, and the most of them were put down on the score book as errors which, when they were all counted, amounted to six for the Fairmount bunch, and seven for the team from Portland, the errors were not due so much to booting the ball as by throwing the ball away, the boys seemingly to have muscle to spare at every base, throw which was either whipped under or entirely out of reach of the baseman.

Floyd Meyer put the sphere through for Fairmount, but the foxy young pitcher was pretty wild at times, besides permitting a man on the other side to craft home on him, although the fault was not his alone as Rhodes, the catcher, had a chance to get the man notwithstanding the chance being small. Otherwise Meyer can be credited for good work as he succeeded in striking out 17 men out of 27 at bat.

Berdman and Sanb were the battery for the White Diamonds. Berdman pitched ball and played his position much better than the men supporting him, and had he been given the proper support, he would have given the South Salem boys a good hard run for their scores.

Sorting out the errors and slow base running, the contest could be termed real interesting as both the teams were after the game red hot.

It appears as though the Capital City is not the only place where an errorless ball game failed to materialize yesterday, as the local Tri-City club made a trip to Woodburn and returned defeated by the league aggregation of that city by a score of 8 to 2, and the errors made exceeded those made by the Fairmount White Diamond teams here by eight or nine. The Cherry Pickers were forced to try two pitchers, they being Hull and Jerman. Hull started the game but was nulled out in the fourth inning after three hits had been made by Woodburn, and Jerman was substituted, he finishing the remaining five innings allowing four hits. Bowen sewed up the victory for the Woodburn huskies, although his left handers were punched around considerably.

GEORGIA HARPER AT SALEM

"Fascinating" and "clever" are some of the milder adjectives the critics employ to describe the acting of Georgia Harper, who will appear in the role of Nell Gwynne during her engagement here this week at the Grand opera house. She has been seen in a repertoire of different parts and interpreted all with skill and fidelity that show her to be an artist of rare accomplishment.

Mr. Joseph Detrick will perform the part of King Charles II. With these trained impersonators in the chief role, the play lovers of this city are assured of an evening of unusual pleasure when the rollicking Nell makes her bow to them.

The story is one of the times of King Charles II with cupid peeping in on the scenes and turning things his own way when the situations become strenuous.

There is enough emotional episodes in it to keep the spectator stirred up while he is watching the unfolding of the love romance that is interwoven with them, there is a vein of bright humor running through it all, in dialogue and situation that it wins the eye and ear of the fun lovers.

The beginning of the play finds Nell selling oranges on the streets of London, she meets the king and tells him what a rogue he is, not knowing that she is talking to the king. Nell is in love with one Sir Roger Fairfax, who has been banished from England through the influence of a prime minister who held a grudge against Fairfax's father. He also accuses him of an attempt to assassinate the king for which he is tried and condemned, but is saved by Nell who baffles the villain and win the king's love.

Nell laughs her way into all of the complications and then as easily out of them again, she is gay with out being frivolous, light and bright, altogether so captivating that everyone is delighted to see her happy at the end of the play.

The management is making a feature of this play and one will see correct costumes and scenery for each and every act.

Other plays to be presented during Miss Harper's engagement here will be "Sapho," "Camille" and "The Little Minister." The engagement is for four nights commencing Wednesday.

When you need to take something take it promptly for the stomach, but take something you know is reliable—something like Kodol for Dyspepsia and indigestion. Kodol is pleasant to take, it is reliable and is guaranteed to give relief. It is sold by all druggists.

ADDRESS OF WILLAMETTE PRESIDENT

Dr. Fletcher Holman, the new president of Willamette university, had his first introduction to a Salem audience last night, when he preached the sermon at the First Methodist church.

President Holman proved himself an eloquent and forceful speaker. The church was crowded to the doors with people who had come to hear him, and none of them were disappointed. The speaker chose as his theme, "The Spirit of Truth." In the course of his address the new president said:

"Man needs a guide. He often chooses a wrong guide, and from its guidance deduces wrong or illogical conclusions. Man lives and thinks in a finite world, even if he is related to the Infinite, therefore he needs a guide to lift him above the things of the world."

The argument set forth was that God had provided this guide in the person of Christ, that Christ was a manifestation of the spirit of truth, not only to the disciples and a few others of the time, but for all peoples and for all ages. "If Christianity has no evidence for its truth but historical evidence," he said, "then religion stands on a very poor foundation." Holman then proceeded to show that the evidence of the truth of the religion was contained in the fact that the Spirit of God was in communion with the spirit of men, and that this fact distinguished it from other religions.

The speaker denounced atheism and agnosticism, and particularly what he called "cultured unbelief." "Many men," he said, "come honestly by their convictions of unbelief. The reason for this is that they mistake logic for conclusive proof. They forget that there is something higher than logic, that is, faith. When a man can say with Paul, 'I know,' he can sweep all the storms of unbelief before him and can shake the very rock of ages."

Dr. Holman contended that the value of scriptural injunction was not in who wrote it or when it was written, but in what it was that was written, and that the failure to prove who wrote the scripture, or when it was written, did not lessen its value or weaken the results obtained from it.

The new president made a very favorable impression upon his audience, who listened earnestly through out the address. He will be given a reception tomorrow afternoon by the students of the university.
