"John Doe, John Doe"—Only six John Does were brought before Judge Moores this morning in the police court, all of whom had been imbibing too freely in the flowing bowl. This was considered a very moderate number by the police, owing to the big crowd in town to attend the horse show Saturday. For the first three months of the year Chief Gibson reports 517 cases handled, consisting of "sleepers," drunks and petty criminal cases. This is the first time since the jail was constructed that so large a number of cases were taken care of by the police. However, none of those resulted in anything serious, and nearly half of them were given but two days each.
Spuds Are Suds—The spud market is getting on a high horse at present, and the Irish sort are selling at $1.00 per bushel. This is the highest the market has climbed in this city for some time in the potato business, and it is probably fortunate for the consumer that another crop will be on the market shortly. Several of the big farmers have come to realize the value in potatoes, and this season there will be a great increase in acreage. From reports in California the market is also becoming wild, owing to the shortage in Oregon, upon which California depends mostly for imported stock. Inasmuch as there was not any great amount of potatoes raised in the Willamette valley last year, the extra cold snap tended to reduce the supply to the famine point by freezing hundreds of bushels belonging to owners caught unprepared by the freeze.
