WEARING SALEM'S SCALP

The Salem independent ball team was unable to outplay the J. G. Mack team of Portland yesterday afternoon on the league grounds and the aggregation from the city below took the candy by a score of 8 to 3. Up to the seventh inning a prettier game of ball was never played in this city, the two teams running neck and neck with a score of three-and, and owing to several Portland men getting on bases and some wild throwing and catching on the part of Salem, the Mack men scored five times in close succession.

Lake did the work for the Mack team for the first six innings, but notwithstanding he had a great collection of curve balls the Salem boys laced him about the lot in good shape. Roberts made the big pitcher look foolish when he tumbled into a straight-over and made a clean hit out over shortstop, bringing in Salem's first run. Johnson and Humphreys were also the busy men for Salem. Johnson got a hit out over shortstop which would have been good for only two bases ordinarily, but he made a pretty run and beat the ball around to third base easily. Providing Johnson can get 20 feet start of a batted ball it is almost a sure thing that he can beat it out to a base. John Humphreys, although having a little hard luck yesterday in stopping a bunt and catching a ball just from Mars, handled his share of the game in good shape. In the usual difficult position at third John fixed the clock of a good many Mack men, and he willed the hickory fairly well. Heyser, Salem's catcher, was sure on the no-luck side yesterday. The big fellow could not stop a float although his attempts were creditable. This is the first time Heyser has been off behind the plate in this city, and for this reason he is somewhat excused. Chester Bowen again appeared in Salem in the box for Salem. Bowen shows wonderful development as a pitcher and he had the game won for fair had not there been several bad plays behind him which were too costly for Bowen to overcome. When last seen in the box by Salem Bowen had lightning speed but very small curve balls. Yesterday he had the lightning speed and a curve ball which broke just like the speed. His big tumbling drops and quick breaking shoots caused the Portland bunch to swing their heads off several times. Some good fielding was done by Ott, Jermain and Jones, who also connected with several of Lake's twisters. Taking everything into consideration, the Salem team played an excellent game and the J. G. Mack bunch can thank their luck for getting off with the game and the $200 purse as they did, for had not Salem went to pieces when they did, the score would have been on the other side of the book without a doubt.

With more team work and a little extra practice on the side, Salem will have a winning team, and the managers are figuring now on some plan whereby they can get the team in action together two or three times a week.

There is no question but that the Mack company is represented by a fast and tricky bunch of ball artists. Shea, one of the best, if not the best, catchers in the amateur line on the coast, played with the Portland team yesterday, and Gardner and Lake formed the pitching staff. Sumnerville, the man who hit a home run when the team played here before, played first; Burns second; Fay short and Harvey Newell third. All of these men are old-timers, some of them being members of big leagues heretofore and they showed superior team work to the Salem players. Their outfield would be hard to beat also, as the three garden tenders were on the job at every minute and they saved a goo. many hits.

There was no fond expressions from the large crowd of fans in attendance such as "kill the ump," and the crowd was apparently satisfied with "Buff" Lucas, who acted as official of the contest, and everyone went home congratulating themselves that they had an opportunity of witnessing a good first-class game in Salem for the first time this season.

HIS COW PLAYED A JOKE ON B. J. HOLMES

B. J. Holmes of West Salem has suddenly found himself getting into the cattle business. He had been going shy on milk for some time and was anxiously awaiting developments on the part of his milk cow. Last Tuesday, going out to the barnyard, he was pleased to see bossy contentedly chewing her cud while a big calf somewhat wabbly as to its legs was butting in where it thought there was the best chance for a square meal. Of course he was highly pleased but when he walked around to the other side of the proud mamma, he was astonished to see another spraddle legged youngster running an opposition pump on the milk supply. He went back to the house for a half hour and when he came back to take another look at his cow his eyes bugged out and he had to shake himself and wake up, for there was a third youngster moving around to see what the dairy outlook in Oregon was.

All three of the calves are little gentlemen and are all doing well, but Holmes has put in two days with a piece of chalk and the side of his barn trying to figure out where his share of the milk is to come from. All he has been able to get out of the problem so far is a result of three ciphers.

Did you notice that the dispatches announcing the death of H. H. Rogers said he left an immense fortune? He didn't even have, as the ancients used to have, a copper coin in his mouth to pay ferrage—to old Charon

BATTLE TONIGHT FOR ENGLISH CHAMPIONSHIP

[United Press Leased Wire.]

London, May 24.—With the entire American contingent supporting him, Sam Langford, the Boston bone-crusher, is a favorite at 5 to 2 over "Iron" Hague, whom he fights tonight before the National Sporting club for the heavyweight championship of England. So confident are the Americans that Langford will bring home the bacon, that they are offering to bet that the negro will finish the husky Briton within 10 rounds. The Englishmen are not so sure of their champion, and are taking very little of the money offered. The fighters are in fine condition. They weighed in today, Hague registering 182 pounds and Langford 169. Preliminary to the big fellows' appearance in the ring, Digger Stanley and Jimmy Walsh, the Boston bantam, will fight for the bantam-weight championship of England.

SLIGHT EARTHQUAKES ALARM MEXICANS

Oaxaca, Mexico, May 24 (via El Paso, Texas).—The inhabitants of the entire state of Oaxaca and surrounding country are terrorized today by a week of frequent earthquakes which are believed to preface the approach of a heavy tremor. Sleeping indoors has been abandoned by those dwelling in stone houses. The damage from the seismic wave has been slight, amounting only to cracked walls and broken crockeryware.

THOUGHT IT SUICIDE BUT FOUND IT MURDER

Spokane, Wash., May 24.—What was regarded at first as a suicide was developed into a baffling murder mystery, following the discovery of a bullet wound in the body of Anton Mortenson, a farm hand, employed on the Cederberg ranch farm, five miles from Spokane. It was at first supposed that the man had been kicked to death by a horse until Coroner Schiegel discovered the bullet wound.
