We are Salem's Agent for the Famous Nettleton Shoe

No comment is required as to the character of "Nettleton" shoes, strictly a gentleman's shoe without a peer; they do not reflect a temporary and transitory condition, they represent a fixed policy heretofore unknown in high-class shoe making. Adding the Nettleton shoe for men to the other leading makes we carry places us beyond the reach of all competition whose good, high grade shoes are demanded. Adding this famous line means that we are prepared for the heaviest Fall shoe business ever done by any shoe house in Salem. Odds and ends of ladies', men's and children's shoe at clean-up prices to finish them. SHOE SECTION.

Nothing Doing Here—A letter which has passed through the hands of every county clerk in Oregon with the exception of Marion, Malheur and Lane counties, came to County Clerk Aden this morning from Mrs. Annie Hollingshead, formerly Annie Weidrich of South River, Ontario, requesting the county officials to give her information, if possible, regarding a will supposed to have been made out to her by the late Alexander Crofford of South River. The communication, which is written on common ledger paper, shows much signs of age since it was mailed from Ontario March 17, 1909, and attached to it is the names of Oregon county clerks with the information that nothing has been learned of the lost will in their respective counties. The writer states that Alexander Crofford left South River, Ontario, 25 years ago to make his home in Oregon, and that 10 years ago it was learned that he had drowned in Oregon bay, which place is not known in this state. Mrs. Hollingshead claims that before the deceased left Ontario he said he would write his will in her favor and owing to the fact she was aware of his having money and property in Oregon, she requests the above information. County Clerk Allen was compelled to disappoint the lady, however, as no such will had been filed in the clerk's office of Marion county, and the inquiring epistle was forwarded on to the county clerk of Lane county, from where, if nothing is learned, it will be sent on to Malheur county and then probably back to the original sender if nothing is discovered of the much wanted will of Alexander Crofford.

It will also build a road from Pendleton to the city of Umatilla. The incorporators are A. R. Turner and D. Betts.
