SALEM AGENTS FOR NET-TLETON SHOES FOR MEN

COMASSIE THE WHITE HOUSE COW

Blue Blooded Jersey Taken to Beverly to Furnish Milk for the Tafts.

Boston Post. Her name was Comassie Oxford Torment. And the name is not her only distinction, for she is to succeed the famous pet cow that Mrs. Taft installed in the ex-president's tennis court.

Mrs. Taft is intent on having a cow wherever she is, and as to move the famous White House bossy was deemed impossible, a new cow has been secured for the use of the President's family at Beverly this summer.

When Mrs. Taft ordered Bossy, "the pride of the White House," put into the famous tennis court, sacred to the memory of Colonel Roosevelt, Washington society gasped in astonishment. Neither President Taft nor Mrs. Taft cared for tennis. But Mrs. Taft did love nice fresh milk, and she was determined to have it.

No sooner did she behold the tennis court, with its green, soft grass, than her mind was made. "Here's the pasture," she said to herself. It was easy to secure a cow. From that time on there has been fresh, pure milk at the White House table. Supplied by Bossy, such milk and such butter and cheese had not been known there since the days of the early presidents, who were farmers themselves.

As the time drew near for the removal of the Taft family to Beverly the question arose, "What shall be done with Bossy?"

After much deliberation it was found that bringing Bossy to Beverly was out of the question. Then arose a new predicament. How was Mrs. Taft to get the fresh milk that had grown to be a necessity to her?

Mrs. Taft answered this question herself. She advertised. She asked for a healthy cow, without any disfigurements, and a good milker. The replies poured in by the hundreds. They came from every part of the country, and from every town and hamlet in the United States.

The choice finally fell on a cow on the H. P. Hood farm, at Derry, N. H. There the expert breeder, W. H. Ranney, picked out what is perhaps the most perfect Jersey cow alive.

He wrote Mrs. Taft about the cow, and she had her looked at. The examination was absolutely satisfactory. So Comassie Oxford Torment came to be the successor of Bossy, the White House cow.

Comassie is a full-blooded Jersey, their being not a single strain of alien blood in her. She is connected with the finest prize winning Jerseys in the country, her pedigree being traceable through many generations.

She is the daughter of Comassie's Oxford Lad, by Oxford Lad, by Flying Fox by Golden Fern. Her mother was Great Tormentor, and she is related to the famous Exile of St. Lambert. Connoisseurs pronounce her one of the best pedigreed cows in existence.

Comassie will be the new pet at the summer White House, and as such will be taken care of in a way that few animals can boast of, and Mrs. Taft will see to it personally that Comassie wants for nothing.

She will sleep in a beautiful, clean stall all of her own, in which sterilized shavings only will be used. Water will be filtered and will be artificially cooled for her special use.

Her pen will be heated and cooled by artificial means until a moderate temperature is reached, so that nothing may cause Comassie to become evilly disposed.

She will be washed and cleaned three times each day, a special soap of germ-destroying quality being used. She will have two men attending her, besides a milkmaid.

Her beautiful horns will be kept shining like glass, while her hoofs have been shaved and polished until they are as smooth as a mirror. Special polishing cloths are used for her, and nothing is permitted to touch her that can make her unclean.

If Comassie comes up to the expectations as a milk giver she may follow the Taft family to Washington. If she goes, Bossy's reign will be over.

Gilson's Barber Shop—the best.

Mystery—Supper at the Christian church Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Admission 10c; supper extra. 2t

Caught the Speckled—"Boxer" Nellands, Oscar Bowers, Frank Butts and Fred Carey, four Salem business men, stocked themselves up with all the necessary implements for angling and took to the tall timber in the Siskiyou district near Stayton yesterday, and besides having a most pleasant day of recreation and fun, they succeeded in snaring a beautiful collection of trout. Yesterday was an ideal day for trout fishing and they came up for the day in fine style.

Students from Pacific college, Pacific university, Willamette university, McMinnville college, Albany College and the University of Oregon are eligible to compete. An important ruling, recently announced by the Rhodes commission, makes it possible for a student who has not had Greek to enter the examinations in the other subjects and take his Greek after entering Oxford.

Sold Liqueur to Indians—Deputy U. S. Marshal Griffith came up from Portland this morning after Ed. Horstrom, who was located here by Chief Gibson. Horstrom was arrested on a charge of selling liqueur to the Indians on the Grand Ronde reservation, and was taken to Portland 11:15 Electric.

Sue for Right of Way—After setting a few cases this morning Judge Burnett, of department No. 1, of the circuit court, adjourned court until next Monday morning at 9 o'clock. An interesting case was set for Monday, it being the Parkersville Drainage District, a corporation, by S. W. Jones, Frank Bolter, L. D. Kelley, as trustees, against Josephine Holland, et al. This is a case involving 2830.64 acres of land lying just east of Chemawa, in this county, in which eminent domain is the principal question. The Parkersville Drainage District has started suit against the above named defendants for a right of way through a large tract of swamp lands lying between Pudding river and Chemawa for the purpose of draining the property. It is alleged in the complaint of the plaintiffs that the defendant refuse to come to a satisfactory agreement, in that they will not accept as payment the true value of the land in question. Attorneys Carson and W. H. Holmes appear as counsel for the plaintiffs, while G. G. Bingham and S. B. Linthicum appear for the defendants.

Back From California—After many weeks of capering about the southern portion of the Pacific coast, both on water and land, Fred Fish, the kingpin of the Hotel Willamette, has returned with the appetite of a famished wolf and a facial coloring equal to that of a boiled lobster. Fred, accompanied by his wife and his honorable son, Ed., left Salem some time ago, and boarded the good ship Roanoke, en route to San Francisco, from where they traveled to Los Angeles, where they attended the playful antics of the Elks' big convention. Mrs. Fish and son, Ed., took quarters with Mr. Fish's parents in Los Angeles, and are having the time of their lives "visitin'" and will not be home for two or three weeks. Fred's sporting blood was aroused to an extra warm heat, after he had been in Los Angeles a few days, when he learned that a real Mexican bull fight was to be pulled off in the extreme southern section of California, almost on the line between California and Mexico, at a place called Tia Juana, and for this place Fred hid himself. Along with several other tourists, Mr. Fish witnessed the much-talked-of bull fight, but the affair was not what could be called great, according to Fred's idea, as he states there was "nothing to it," but a bunch of half-breeds murdering a helpless beast.

Found Dead in Bed—Joseph Timmons, an aged resident of Gervais, was found dead in his bed this morning in that city, evidently having died from heart failure. Some neighbors of Timmons found him and notified Coroner Clough in this city this morning, who instructed that the body be buried at the expense of the county, Timmons being a charge of the county.

Bought Out His Partner—The partnership of Walter Johnson and Dick Westcott has been dissolved and now Mr. Johnson is sole owner of the establishment on Perry street, near Commercial. Mr. Johnson has purchased Mr. Westcott's interest in the stables and will conduct the business hereafter alone. Mr. Johnson has been in the livery business in Salem for the past 15 years and his long experience in this line of work has enabled him to accommodate the public in the best manner possible.

First Park Concert—Sunday afternoon the Salem Military Band gave a fine concert on Fairmount Heights, that was enjoyed by hundreds of people. The sentiment of all the visitors was friendly to acquiring the lands up there for a park. The boundaries of the park were outlined with white pennants printed "Vote for Fairmount Park," and the large crowd was accommodated with seats all over the grounds. There will be another concert next Sunday afternoon, and the election takes place on the following Monday.

Hobo Was Loaded—A fellow who had made himself a common nuisance to pedestrians on the streets last Friday night was thrown in jail by Constable Hamilton and when the officer searched him with the assistance of Deputy Sheriff Esch, he had on his person a quart wine bottle full of whisky, two full pints of whisky and two half pint bottles nearly full. He was removed from the county jail to the city bastille, where he laid out two days and paid a small fine this morning, and when he was released he called at the residence of Constable Hamilton and demanded the whisky, which is now in the keeping of the sheriff. The man, whose correct name is not known, accosted Constable Hamilton on the street Friday night while he was on his way home with Mrs. Hamilton, and asked questions that no decent person would think of asking before ladies, and not being satisfied with this, persisted in following the officer, which resulted in his being taken into the arms of the law. When he found out that an officer had him in tow he began making all kinds of excuses, but that guardian of the peace and dignity of Marion county turned him over to the city officials.
