GERMANS POINT OUT PERFDY OF ENGLAND

Claim England Designs to Injure United States, Classing Her With Germany As Her Most Formidable Rival.

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 17.—Requesting the views of Governor Johnson on the action of Japan in submitting an ultimatum to Germany in the present European war, the chamber of German America commerce, with headquarters at 11 Broadway, New York, sent this telegram to the governor's office here: "We respectfully call your attention to the attempt of England to draw Japan into the present war."

"This is the same England that, during the struggle of the American colonies for independence, aroused the Indians and armed them against the American patriots. England, having refused to localize the European troubles in the Balkans, is not content in having mobilized the Russian semi-barbarians against Germany's civilization and culture but has now dragged into the sphere of war the mongolians and through them the Pacific ocean."

"The Japanese, being once let loose, may not rest satisfied to snap up the small German colony in China but may establish naval bases at the Carolines and at Samoa, giving them two fortifications and harbors between the Philippines and the United States. With their enormous army and navy mobilization they may use their opportunity to make themselves the complete masters of the Pacific ocean."

"Already the status quo in that part of the world has been upset by England's perfidious action, and what will become of the open door on the Asiatic shore of the Pacific?"

"There is great danger that under these circumstances the United States might also be embroiled in the world-wide conflict, and if so she has England to thank for it. We maintain that this is intended by England, as she considers the United States and Germany her most formidable commercial rivals. Kindly let us know your views by telegraph."

The governor is in San Francisco and has not seen the telegram.

ATTORNEY GENERAL PASSES ON TWO MATTERS If there are unquestioned evidences that sufficient notices were posted, the district boundary board can set without an affidavit to the effect that the notices were posted, according to an opinion handed down by the attorney general today. The inquiry was sent in by S. S. Duncan, county school superintendent of Yamhill county. The attorney general was of the opinion that the acts of the board were legal without an affidavit.

Alex Ginty, of Albany, asked if a man who had children of his own of school age but with whom children of school age were boarding could vote at a school election if he held only a contract for the sale of land. The opinion was that he could not qualify as a voter if the contract for the deed was not recorded in due form with the county recorder.

INVESTIGATION POSTPONED. San Francisco, Aug. 17.—United States District Attorney Preston announced here this afternoon that the Federal Grand Jury investigation of the sudden boost in the price of food stuffs had been postponed until Thursday. He said this was necessary because of the absence of a number of witnesses.

BATTLE IS NOW ON (Continued from Page One.) an advance guard for the three million more the czar is still mobilizing. There was much speculation as to whether the Russians would concentrate first against the Germans, the Austrians or attempt to strike crushing blows against both countries simultaneously. It was said they were already doing much damage, though there had been no engagements on a large scale, in east Prussia and Austrian Galicia.

St. Petersburg reports were to the effect that little damage was done by the German destroyers which bombarded Polangen, a Russian Baltic port. On Way to Strasburg. Paris, Aug. 17.—That the French troops in Alsace had pushed through Schirmeck and were following the railroad toward Urmatt on their way to Strasburg, was announced here today. There had been no serious attempt to test the German strength except at Mulhausen and in the Vosges district. Losses Were Severe. Paris, Aug. 17.—The French were pushing slowly but steadily today into Alsace-Lorraine. There was fighting at many points. Losses on both sides, it was said, were enormous. The French offensive movement was especially vigorous in the vicinity of Strasburg. Fighting south of Mulhausen also was desperate. The French here first shelled the German trenches and then charged, fighting with the Germans hand to hand.

The latter were driven back, abandoning their rapid firers in the haste of their retreat. While the struggle raged French aviators hurled bombs into the German ranks.

U. G. SHIPLEY COMPANY, SALEM, OREGON.
GENTLEMEN:
At last the styles for Fall suits, coats, dresses and waists, are settled for the season except here and there a style that can only be worn by tall, slim women. You are to be congratulated on not buying your ready-to-wear the early part of the season, for the lengths of suit jackets have settled down into two models—all of the models you bought in 32 to 36 inch jacket lengths with tunic and novelty skirts are correct for the shorter figures, and the 45 and 48 inch straight line jacket with plain skirt have first place for medium and taller figures.
Since August first we have expressed about 100 suits and sixty dresses and rest assured that every day or so from now on you will receive express shipments of ready-to-wear garments, dresses with straight lines, Russian tunic and Basque styles; are extremely popular and the garments sent you are the best values for the money we ever bought. All indications point to a bumper ready-to-wear season and the exceptional values you will be able to give your customers will make your ready-to-wear shop a popular trading center.
Yours very truly,
Women's Wear Association.

UNKNOWN TRAMP FOUND DEAD ON TRACK
Gashed His Wrists, Cut His Throat and Was Then Run Over By S. P. Engine and Several Cars.
Tired of living the life of a hobo, of walking the ties from place to place and unceremoniously hustled on to another; weary of an existence that offered little more than a couch in the shelter of some barn or shed and a Mulligan stew made in a tomato can in some out-of-the-way clump of bushes, and at last becoming disgusted with life and what it offered, an unknown man last night cut both wrists with a razor and gashed the left side of his neck so that he cut the jugular vein, and then lay down on the track of the Southern Pacific railway to be mangled by the next train that passed.

CHINESE ACTIVITY IS ONLY FOR DEFENSE
Tientsin, China, Aug. 17.—Though the Chinese government was strengthening its military forces in Kiao Chan vicinity today, it was acknowledged by the foreign board at Peking that it was acting merely with a view to keeping order among the Chinese who might, it was admitted, grow unmanageable in the event of fighting between Japanese and Germans at Tsing Tschau.
A clash between Japanese and Chinese was not deemed outside the bounds of possibilities. It was understood that the Chinese government would protest, in any event, if foreign troops landed anywhere outside the territory granted to Germany for military purposes under the terms of its concession.

WISDOM'S PART
Business men and housewives seeking the services of competent workers always read the Journal Want Ads and often insert Wants of their own.
The wise employer reads the Want Ads before he advertises for the help he needs. So, too, persons seeking profitable employment that is congenial as well, will do well to use a Want Ad, at the same time consulting the "New Today" and classified columns.
In any event it should always be a Want Ad when looking for either employment, or workers. That's the part of wisdom.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How the Parrot Saved the Little Girl's Life.
"Did I ever tell you how the parrot saved the little girl's life?" asked daddy as the children came for the evening's tale.
"No, daddy, you never did," said Evelyn, "and I am glad you are going to tell a story about a little girl. You have had several about boys lately."
"Well, this is all about a little girl. She lived in a pretty white house about a half mile from a large town in the state of New Jersey. To reach the town she had to cross a stream which, though small, was deep, and there was a footbridge over this stream. This was what they call a private way, not owned by the town, so I am sorry to say, the path and the footbridge were not kept in very good condition, and people had said for a long time that some day there would be a bad accident on that bridge, which had been up for a great many years and was unsafe.
"Sure, this little girl had an auntie who lived in the town, not quite a mile all told from the home of the little girl. This auntie had a parrot, a very bright bird, of which the little girl was very fond, and she was overjoyed when the auntie, who was going away on a long trip for about a year, left the parrot with the little girl's parents for safe keeping. The parrot grew to be the very best of the little girl and would let her pet him, which was more than his, which he was always ready to use.
"The little girl enjoyed hearing the parrot talk very much and taught it many new words, and among other things, she taught it to yell 'Help!' in the loudest, squawkiest tone you ever heard.
"The little girl was and when her auntie returned and sent word for her case one summer morning and she cried a little when she took Polly in his cage close to the edge, and when she got to the bridge, walking close to the edge, and all of a sudden a board that had been rotten for a long time broke, and down went the little girl with the cage and the parrot inside.
"and then the parrot saved the little girl's life. When she came up she was too breathless and too full of water to make a sound, and nobody had heard her fall in. But she had clung to the cage all the time, and when the help, help! at the top of his voice. A man was working in a field close by. Then he jumped in and brought the girl and the parrot safe to shore, and the little girl can now be seen at home for dry clothes. When her auntie heard about it she said that the little girl might keep the parrot that had saved her life."
