WAR NEWS LARGELY FAVORS GERMANY; TURKEY MAY GET IN

War news averaged in Germany's favor today. On the North sea coast some 150,000 Belgians, British and French were in danger of being cut off from the allies' main body.

It was stated unofficially, but on good authority, that the Germans had taken Ghent. They were reported to have attacked Bruges.

Skirmishing had begun preliminary to an expected Belgian battle on the River Lys. The Belgian seat of government has moved to Havre.

In the French field the allies claimed to have advanced at various points, but no important changes had occurred. Stories from East Prussia conflicted, but stories were that the Germans held their own.

In Russian Poland the kaiser had gained extensively, controlling the whole country east to the Vistula except for Warsaw. Austro-German forces again dominated Galicia east of the River San.

The Russians, indeed, claimed a victory on the San, but indications were that disasters in Poland had crippled their Galician campaign.

The czar admitted losing the cruiser Pallada, but believed one of the German submarines which sank it was disabled by his fleet.

The Montenegrins claimed a victory over the Austrians south of Serajevo. The British ambassador at Constantinople warned the women of the embassy to leave, suggesting that Turkey was about to join the Teutons.

The sultan defied an Anglo-Franco-Russian demand that he dismiss his German naval officers. A mutiny of Russia's Siberian reservists was reported in Bessarabia.

Austria put on trial Gavrio Prinzip, whose assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand nominally began the war with 21 alleged accomplices.

Germany claimed to have seized papers in Brussels proving British violation of Belgian neutrality. Prince Oleg, son of Grand Duke Constantine of Russia, died of his wounds. Prince George of Serbia was reported fatally wounded and Crown Prince Alexander, also of Serbia, was less seriously hurt.

Boers in South Africa, led by Colonel Maritz and backed by the kaiser's subjects in German Southwest Africa, rebelled against the British, planning to establish a republic.

Recognizing the seriousness of the situation, the British proclaimed martial law throughout the South African union.

The Japanese called on the German governor of Kiao Chau to surrender. At Kiao Chau an armistice prevailed while the combatants cared for their wounded and gathered up their dead.
