AMERICANIZATION DAY

Over fifty mayors of our largest cities have appointed mayor's committees as part of the National movement to make the Fourth of July, 1915, "Americanization Day," according to information sent out by the national bureau of education.

"Americanization Day" is a patriotic call to all citizens, American-born and foreign-born alike, adults and children, to rally to American ideals, purposes, and common interests of many peoples united into one Nation.

These mayor's committees represent the city government, naturalization officials, boards of education, city clubs, women's patriotic and civic organizations, social agencies, patriotic societies, and benevolent and fraternal organizations of foreign-born residents.

Among the features for this occasion already adopted by various cities is the giving of special recognition to the new citizens by having special admission tickets for them and their families so that, on entering the auditorium, they will be ushered to a special, raised platform on the stage.

Among the things the speakers on this occasion will emphasize are: That every foreign-speaking person in America should learn English by attending the public schools, because the English language is the master key to American opportunities and life...

WHY BRYAN HAS FAILED

One of the best analyses of the character of Wm. J. Bryan that we have read is that given by the editor of the Medford Daily Sun, who admits that Mr. Bryan's views are in advance of his times, and then discusses his case from that standpoint, as follows:

"The point which so many rabid pro-Bryanites fail to grasp is that this very quality is responsible for the general relief felt at his retirement from an administrative office. It is as embarrassing for a 'servant of the people' to be ahead of his times as behind them.

"William Jennings Bryan, private citizen, enjoys a far greater following today than W. J. Bryan, secretary of state, enjoyed the day before yesterday.

"As a fluent exponent of a higher international morality, as an exhorter for a more exalted plane of peace and amity, Mr. Bryan will be stirring the aspirations and hopes of thousands of people, who viewed with growing concern the administration of a state department, upon theories which have not as yet been accepted in the practical world of affairs.

"In other words, as secretary of state, Mr. Bryan's peculiar talents were wasted. He was a round peg in a square hole. His role is that of inciter, not doer; of the herald, not the statesman; a constructive imagination rather than an administrative genius, is his forte.

"It was a partial realization of this, perhaps, that led Mr. Bryan to retire at an opportune moment, so he might 'enjoy as private citizen the privilege which the president does not feel at liberty to allow.' Far from having been showered with more abuse than any other American in this generation, Mr. Bryan as a private citizen has had a larger following, has been granted a greater personal influence, than any other citizen in his country.

The annual report of the International Harvester Co. (trust) complains that the European war cut into its profits very materially. Its net dividends were only $7,463,231 on a working capital of $56,424,35. This concern is disappointed when it fails to make 50 per cent or more on its annual business.

Colonel Roosevelt endorses President Wilson's foreign policy. This is worthy of note because it is the first time on record that the colonel ever endorsed the views of another prominent public man.

Mr. Bryan says that the note was changed after his resignation. But is it not possible that his lecture engagements prevented him from reading it over carefully before?

The Canby Herald advocates the official institution of a "loganberry day" in Oregon. The idea is not a bad one.

Villa and Carranza are both willing that the other quit fighting in response to the demand of this country.

Shortage of material may prevent the formation of the proposed neutral nations' league.

And even this frightened Bryan off his roost. How about the Mexicans? They have not sunk any of our ships; have not challenged the right of our citizens to travel in the usual way...

PLEADS GUILTY OVER LONG DISTANCE PHONE

The Dalles, Ore., June 15.—Pleading guilty by long distance telephone to a charge of conducting a pharmacy without a registered license, C. P. Wilson, of Shaniko, 60 miles from here, is under sentence today to pay a fine of $100.

Justice Krasman, on the Dalles end of the line, heard the plea and assessed the fine after Wilson waived the right of personal appearance in court.

Oregon Flax Display is Unsurpassed Says Van Winkle

J. S. Van Winkle, of Albany, is in the city this week, with his family, to attend the graduation of his daughter, Miss V. Keith Van Winkle, Wednesday evening.

As postmaster for Albany during the past eight years, and the chairman of all committees to receive notables who might stop over in Albany, Mr. Van Winkle has occupied a prominent part in the social and business world of his home.

Mr. Van Winkle was postmaster at Albany eight years, his second term expiring last April. After having been so long in the service, he says he is glad to take a rest, at least for four years.
