Private he will go to Woodburn on a recruiting expedition.

New Secret Police System Organized to Hunt for Spies

Washington, July 5.—Immediate necessity for smashing the German spy menace today caused the government to order quick organization of an entirely new secret police system—the national intelligence service.

It includes the operatives of the state, war and navy and justice departments. Treasury secret service men will continue to work individually on counterfeit cases.

The others, while retaining their separate organizations under their own chiefs, will co-operate in the spy hunt. They will meet daily, when information gathered by each branch will be placed at the disposal of the entire government service.

In its working the new body will be similar to Scotland Yard in Great Britain.

"I have no doubt spies are in our departments," said Senator Tillman of the senate naval affairs committee today. "I want to see the German devils ferretted out and hanged."

It is expected the spy situation will be taken up at tomorrow's cabinet meeting.

It was learned definitely today that Admiral Gleaves, commanding the American troop ship naval escort, sailed under sealed orders and that the messages to Admiral Sims, commanding the destroyers which were to meet the transports, were sent in a new code known only to a few stations. Germany evidently had full information.

MANIFESTO DEMANDS ELECTORAL REFORMS

"Intellectuals" Get Busy When Reichstag Reconvened Today

Amsterdam, July 5.—Greatest interest is manifest in the scheduled meeting of the German reichstag today throughout Germany. First Berlin dispatches reported that Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg might seize the occasion to make a general reply to British Premier Lloyd-George's recent Glasgow speech amplifying on the British war aims and asserting that there can be no peace without a victory.

Of scarcely less interest throughout the country was the report of the constitution committee expected to be submitted at the opening session of the German parliamentary body and the action to be taken on it. Back in May, the constitution committee, headed by the majority socialist, Philip Scheide-mann, made several recommendations for changes in Germany's governmental system. It was at that time was hailed as immediate accomplishment of the kaiser's commands to Bethmann-Hollweg urging a readjustment of certain inequalities in the government. Shortly after, however, a certain class of German radical socialists of the "Leder-socken" work at that time was hailed as immediate accomplishment of the kaiser's commands to Bethmann-Hollweg urging a readjustment of certain inequalities in the government.

Committee Killed It. The committee recommended that the imperial chancellor be made responsible to the reichstag in his actions. The move was hailed throughout Germany as a great reform step. But the committee promptly vitiated this by formally voting that the reichstag had no power to remove the chancellor for any act of his. Power of appointment of the chancellor and of his dismissal was retained, as always, with the kaiser.

The committee, however, did recommend a complete redistricting and re-appointment plan for representation in the reichstag. Exactly how this is to be achieved is to be decided at meetings of the committee, which are to be held this month.

Germany's present system of representation in the reichstag is that which was devised in 1871. It does not permit of minority representation. The constitution committee has announced it will change this scheme on the basis of equal suffrage of all men.

The German state of Prussia holds the balance of power in Germany and neither the reichstag nor the constitution committee can make reforms there without action by the Prussian reichstag.

Today's meeting of the reichstag was for a scheduled session of two weeks. The original plan was for a sitting of only three or four days but it was believed that this will be prolonged.

Made Formal Demands By John Grandens (United Press staff correspondent). Berlin, via London, July 5.—Coinciding with the re-convening of the reichstag today, a score of the so-called German intellectuals, united in a formal demand on the government for immediate parliamentary and electoral reforms, including equal, direct and secret suffrage. What made the manifesto of particular significance in view of reformers here, was that among the signers were such men as Delbrueck, Von Harnack, Meinecke, Emil Fischer, Treitschke and others of the purely "intellectual" type who have heretofore opposed the democratization plans announced by the radicals.

Thomas T. Bennett, prominent attorney and banker of Marshfield, passed the day in Salem yesterday.

A marriage license was issued this morning by the county clerk to Bryan Turner, a student of Salem, and Gertrude Swarts, of this city.

Richmond school will be the scene of a forensic struggle tomorrow night, when the advocates and opponents of the charter amendments meet in joint debate there at 8 o'clock.

While she was asleep yesterday at the fair grounds, an unknown person removed two rings from the fingers of Mrs. Frank Frickey, of Salem Heights. The police were notified.

The infantry needs 50,000 men, according to a telegram received at the local recruiting office today by Corporal Toy. A special effort is being made to enlist these men as soon as possible.

Dr. Morefield, and Harry Payne, both recent arrivals in this state, who purchased farms on the Asvian Farm road, have commenced the construction of new houses, and one of them has finished a new barn.

Many compliments were paid to Mrs. Charles Maxwell for her fine rendition of the ballad, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," which she sang at the fair grounds yesterday afternoon. She has appeared in public several times before, and is well liked by music-lovers.

Ernest Tirpitz, of Hood River, was received at the Oregon state penitentiary today to serve a sentence of from 20 years to life for rape. C. R. Harper, also of Hood River, was received. He was committed for the crime of sodomy and was sentenced to serve from one to five years.

Question marks confronted the news man this morning, as many people inquired why the aeroplane did not fly. The news man could not answer, and cannot yet. The reason why has not been given, and the parties who probably know cannot be reached.

R. C. Felber, who was committed to the Oregon state hospital from St. Helens, and Frank Snell, also a patient there, walked away from the institution last night and so far have not been located by the authorities. Felber is about 50 years old and is considered harmless. Snell is about 25 years old and is not considered dangerous.

Prices Generally Were On Lower Level

New York, July 5.—The New York Evening Sun financial review today says:

So far as the steadiness issues and the general list was concerned, prices in today's stock market gave way leisurely to lower levels in quiet post-holiday trading of a distinctly professional character. There were some outstanding features, however, of both weakness and strength.

Traction and motor shares were reactionary. Studebaker, Chandler and General Motor disclosed recessions of three to nine points.

The tendency of the market to recede gave encouragement to the bear operators in the afternoon and a general short selling movement forced prices down one to two points further until losses on the day ranged from one to five points or so. United States Steel and Crucible Steel reacted more than two points.
