

Free Army band concert set at Fir Street park

The 204th Army Band will perform in a free community concert on Sunday, July 26, at 1 p.m. at Fir Street Park on the corner of Fir Street and Main Avenue.

Performance features the small ensembles of the 204th, including: The Brass Monkeys Brass Band, the 204th Rock Band and Jazz Combo, and the Brass and Woodwind Quintets.

"It's a smorgasbord of small groups," said concert organizer Tyler Cranor, who is also band leader at Sisters Middle School.

Cranor plays bass and tuba. "I've been a member of the group for a little over four years now," he said. "It's a reserve band, so all the members kind of travel from far and wide."

"Far and wide" means from Klamath Falls in the south to Marysville, north of Seattle.

The array of small groups features a variety of music, from a modern New Orleans-style ensemble to a traditional jazz combo, from a rock band to traditional woodwinds and brass.

The concert is free and open to the public. Bring your own blanket or lawn chairs, and water and a picnic.
