

USFS men honored for lifesaving

Next week the American Red Cross will honor three Deschutes National Forest employees with Health and Safety Heroes awards for using their safety training to save the life of a fellow employee.

Honored at the ceremony will be Melvin (Mel) Durrant, Zeb (Zeb) Watts, and Sean Ferrell.

On May 13, 2015, Durrant and Watts, forestry technicians for the Sisters Ranger District, were conducting an annual physical fitness test called the "pack test," which is required for all employees who are active in fire management whether they are firefighters or support personnel. The activity involves walking a pre-determined course within set time limits.

After completing the course Sean Ferrell and fellow employee Steve Bigby were talking with Durrant and Watts at the finish line. Suddenly Bigby collapsed with an apparent heart attack.

Using their training, Mel, Zeb and Sean went into action applying high performance (hands-only) CPR, calling 911 and retrieving an AED, oxygen and a trauma kit from a nearby vehicle.

Zeb did CPR while Sean and Mel applied a shock using the AED.

Bigby was revived before Bend Fire EMTs arrived on the scene. Bend Fire EMTs then transported Steve to St. Charles Medical Center where he was treated. Since that time Steve has recovered and returned to work.

Along with honoring the three employees, the award recognizes the Forest Service and Deschutes National Forest for maintaining a well-developed program of safety and emergency response training and equipment for their employees.

Bend's first car may be up and running soon

BEND (AP) — Engine repairs are under way on what is believed to be Bend's first car, in anticipation of bringing the early automobile out for the public to enjoy during Deschutes County's centennial year.

The Holsman "motor buggy" arrived in Bend in 1907 and was shipped from Chicago by train to The Dalles.

The black vehicle was displayed at the former Deschutes Pioneer Museum on NW Greenwood Avenue after being donated by a local family in 1971. It has also been featured in exhibits at the Des Chutes Historical Museum in the former Reid School building.

The Deschutes County Historical Society board of directors decided last year to get the Holsman running again for events later this year celebrating the county centennial. The county was created on Dec. 13, 1916.

The first event will be June 4 at a Bend Elks game. The historical society also plans to bring it to car shows, the Sisters Outdoor Quilt Show and the Deschutes County Fair.

"It's going on its own little tour," said Kelly Cannon-Miller, executive director of the historical society. "We want to make sure we make it around the county."

Few original Holsman automobiles remain today. The Holsman Automobile Company was based in Chicago and went out of business after less than a decade of production.

H.C. Ellis, the manager of the local telephone company that bought the Holsman, went to The Dalles to pick up the car. It took more than 24 hours to reach Bend, which included a five-hour break overnight to sleep, according to historical accounts.

Wade Bryant, an old-car lover and owner of Wade Bryant's Auto Repair & Service Center in Bend, is donating his time to restore the Holsman at his shop.

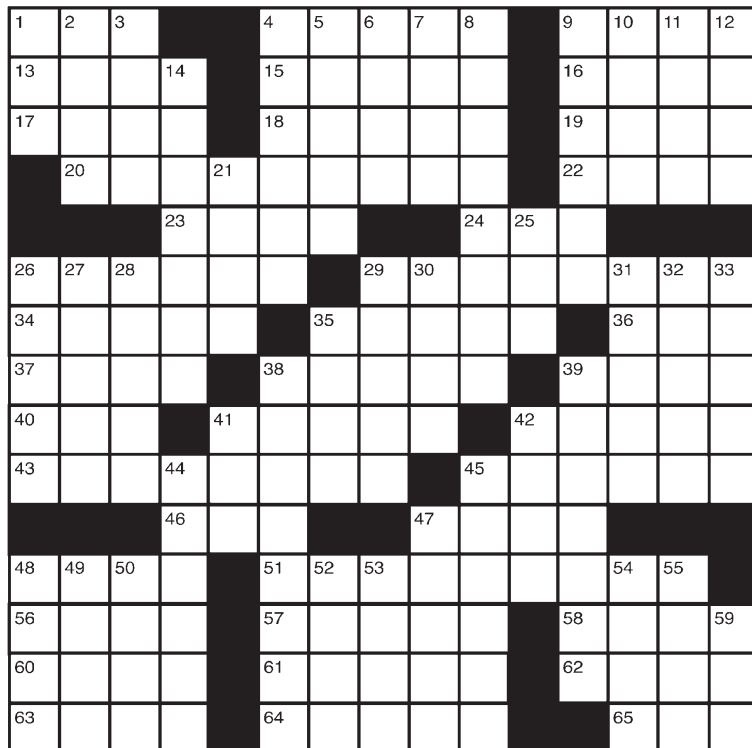

"I really enjoy it," he said. "It's an honor to be able to work on it. It's a great piece of Bend history."

Bryant said he believes the vehicle is about 90 percent original. The car's engine hasn't run for decades. Bryant has been working to bring it back to full power. The wood wheels will be sent to a South Dakota shop for a tuneup on the spokes. The only components that are not original are the hard rubber tires.
