Volunteers dismantle shelving at the old Cloverdale fire house.

Cloverdale volunteers prepare for big move

Volunteers have been moving equipment out of the Cloverdale Road fire station in preparation for the start of construction of a new fire station apparatus building.

Financed by bond funding, the new building will allow for a larger training room, and the ability to park all trucks side-by-side behind individual doors. This will allow for a faster response by the water tenders, which have been parked behind other apparatus in the old building for years. It also creates a safer environment for firefighters.

The new building will sport wider and taller doors for the trucks, allowing for faster egress during emergencies, and room for the new larger engines that have been ordered. With more space around the trucks the firefighters will be able to change into their protective clothing and board the trucks more quickly once they reach the station, as there will be sufficient room around the apparatus.

On Saturday, April 9, the last pieces of equipment, a hose storage rack, a set of lockers, two dressing benches, and other assorted equipment were moved out of the station and placed into storage.

On Monday, April 11, the Sisters Rodeo Association was scheduled to begin the process of jacking up the building in preparation of moving it to the rodeo grounds on Highway 20. This re-purposing of the building will save the Cloverdale Fire District the cost of demolition and debris removal prior to construction of the new building.

Construction is scheduled to start on April 24, by the bid-winning contractor, Griffin Construction of Prineville. The projected completion date is fall of 2016.

'Paper Tigers' documentary showing

Sisters School District will host a screening of "Paper Tigers," a film that captures the pain, danger, beauty, and hopes of struggling teens and teachers armed with new science and fresh approaches that are changing lives for the better.

The documentary, directed by James Redford and produced by Karen Pritzker, will be shown at Sisters High School auditorium on Friday, April 22, at 6:30 p.m. This is a free event open to the public. (The film is not recommended for younger audiences.)

Doors will open at 6 p.m.; light refreshments will be offered and there will be information on available resources from local service agencies.

"Paper Tigers" follows a year in the life at Lincoln Alternative High School in Walla Walla, Washington, which has radically changed its approach to disciplining students, and in the process has become a promising model for how to break the cycle of poverty, violence, and disease that affect families.

The film follows six troubled teens over the course of one year. The students were considered drop-outs with a history of behavioral problems, violence, truancy, and substance abuse.

With the motto "stressed brains can't learn" Lincoln High School principal invited his staff and students to learn about Adverse Childhood Experiences Study which shows that stressful events during childhood like divorce, domestic violence, and mental illness increases the risk of
